IRISH SOUND BATTLE CRY OF INDEPENDENCE

FreeStateDelegates Arrive in Canada.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, July 16.—Ireland wants her independence and intends to get it, Sean O'Kelly, vice president of the Irish Free State and leader of its delegation to the British imperial conference which opens at Ottawa next Thursday, said on his arrival here early today.

Surrounded by a group of cheering Irish of Quebec, who boarded the liner Laurentic as it docked, the midget leader of the expedition endeavored to combine greetings and information at the same time. He shook hands with well wishers while answering questions.

The Free State, O'Kelly explained, expects a larger share of inter-empire trade, and is prepared to approach the discussions at the conference on a basis of mutual advantage.

Wants United Ireland.

"We have no set program and do not intend to talk politics," he said. "We are here to see what we can do to improve trade conditions for the Free State. Unfortunately, that does not include the whole of Ireland, but we hope it will before long. What we want is a united Ireland.

"We are going to lead Ireland on to its true destiny, which is freedom. The course of events at this conference must be largely dictated by the results of the conversations and correspondence between President Eamon De Valera and Prime Minister MacDonald.

"If Great Britain insists on enforcing the tariff on Irish agricultural products it does not seem possible for us, meeting in Ottawa, to arrive at any satisfactory trade agreements with her. Trade agreements between some of the other dominions and ourselves may be discussed. We feel we could discuss and develop a greater trade with Canada, from which we already purchase a considerable quantity of produce."

WHAT CANADA WANTS

BY GEORGE SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 16.—Canada's principal demand of the British imperial conference opening at Ottawa next Thursday will be for a preferential entry into the United Kingdom markets of Canadian wheat, tobacco and bacon.

In return for such a trade favor the dominion expects that she will be asked by Britain to reduce her present high tariffs against British manufactured goods, particularly textiles.

Whether Britain's expected concession is made by tariff impositions against other nations or simply by quota stipulations, this dominion does not care, but Canada's wheat fields, her tobacco counties of southwestern Ontario, and the needs of her farmers everywhere, it is agreed, demand that these "big three" be given preferential entry. Premier R. B. Bennett heralded this program before the house of commons at the last session.

Parliament Hill Is Site.

Parliament hill, where leaders of the empire are assembling to try and mold all British nations into an economic unit, has a setting of natural grandeur.

The parliament buildings' central edifice in a group of impressive copper roofed stone palaces in which revolve the wheels of Dominion government, is set on the edge of a cliff overlooking the picturesque Ottawa river, the boundary line between the provinces of Quebec and Ontario.

This mighty cliff, on which Canada's house of parliament and administrative buildings are built, arches out into the wide river, making the galaxy of government buildings visible for miles on all sides—up and down the river. For Parliament hill is in reality a "hill."

Gigantic Statues.

On Parliament hill's grassed grounds, and in parliament buildings' corridors, Canada's great statesmen of other years, from pedestal and oil painting, will be present, in spirit, at the great empire conclave for which their Canadian successors are mainly responsible. And on the upper floor of the parliament buildings, lining a 200 yard corridor which the conference delegates will tread every day on their way to the parliamentary restaurant, are hung likenesses of British premiers from Ramsay MacDonald way back to forgotten personages of the seventeenth century.

GUSTO CAPTURES CLASSIC PRIZE AT ARLINGTON

Gusto, racing in the colors of Morton L. Schwartz of New York, yesterday won the $88,100 Arlington classic, richest 3 year old stake in the world, before a crowd of 30,000. Three lengths behind Gusto was Stepenfetchit. Third place went to Evergold, a field horse owned by Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago.

The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:03 3-5. The favorites, Top Flight and Faireno, finished out of the money. Gusto returned $20.54 to win, $9.18 to place, and $5.36 to show in the $2 mutuels.

'FUR' SAMMONS GIVEN FREEDOM BY SHURTLEFF

BaltimoreSeeksHim for Big Holdup.

James (Fur) Sammons, murderer, robber, public enemy, and a member of the Capone gang, was ordered released from Joliet penitentiary by Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday. Sammons' attorney, W. W. Smith, complimented the court, and the hoodlum of thirty-three years' standing went forth a free man, after being congratulated by his friends.

No attempt was made to arrest him on a warrant which authorities at Baltimore, Md., asserted last night they had left with the Chicago police. Sammons was indicted there for a pay roll robbery in 1926. William Neimoth a Chicago gangster, was convicted of this crime and sentenced to ten years in prison, his trial being held two years ago after he had lost a long fight to defeat extradition.

State's Attorney Herbert O'Conor of the Maryland city said that he had the same evidence against Sammons as against Neimoth. But at the detective bureau last night it was maintained that there was no order to arrest Sammons.

$47,000 Pay Roll Holdup.

It was charged that Neimoth and Sammons directed a $47,000 pay roll stickup of the Baltimore clothing plant of Henry Sonneborn company.

Judge Shurtleff's ruling was given at the close of a fifty-two page opinion, which he read—requiring one hour and forty minutes—in the crowded courtroom at Woodstock, in McHenry county.

"Whether the relator is the desperate public enemy he is proclaimed, and his liberty will place the state in danger, I do not know, and I have not deemed it one of the issues in this case," read the court's opinion.

"Or a Jean Valjean."

"Or whether he may be like that dangerous and desperate public enemy of France, Jean Valjean, who spent nineteen years in prison for stealing a loaf of bread to feed the starving children of his sister, I do not know."

The freeing of Sammons was opposed by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, who was represented by his assistants, J. J. Neiger and John P. Madden; by State's Attorney Swanson, represented by Euclid Taylor, habeas corpus expert, and by the Chicago crime commission and the Secret Six, whose observers heard the opinion read.

Assistant Attorney General Neiger asked and was granted sixty days for the filing of a bill of exceptions and announced that he will attack Judge Shurtleff's jurisdiction in arguments before the Supreme court at the October term.

Reviews Career of Crime.

Judge Shurtleff's opinion reviewed the entire record in the Sammons cases, one being a conviction for the murder of Patrick Barrett a saloonkeeper, and another for robbery with a gun. He was sentenced to death for the murder and to a year to life imprisonment for the robbery, both in 1904. Gov. Richard Yates commuted the murder sentence to life imprisonment and Sammons went to the penitentiary.

In 1922 Gov. Len Small commuted Sammons' term to 50 years and less than a month later the state board of pardons and paroles issued a parole. Three years later Sammons obtained a full discharge and he was at liberty from 1922 until 1930, when Attorney General Carlstrom rendered an opinion that the parole act did not apply to commutations. The opinion was upheld by Judge John P. McGoorty and Sammons went back to Joliet.

Judge McGoorty's ruling was upheld by the state Supreme court and this was one of the grounds on which Judge Shurtleff's jurisdiction was attacked. But Judge Shurtleff held that where "relator is prevented from bringing all the facts and issues before the Supreme court . . . no discourtesy may be imputed to the inferior tribunal" that reopens the case.

Protection of State.

The judge said he had not been able to "avoid or pass entirely unnoticed the public clamor aroused by this hearing, and the charges and criminations made." With further reference to Sammons, the court affirmed: "He is a citizen of Illinois, and entitled to the protection of the laws of this state, and can only be confined in the penitentiary by due process of law and the law of the land."

Judge Shurtleff was elected, for a second term, in June, 1927, and his term expires in June, 1933.

THE NEW PLAN TO SETTLE THE WAR DEBTS ONCE AND FOR ALL

PREDICTS COOL WEATHER WILL REMAIN TODAY

A continuance of yesterday's pleasant weather, in which a gentle lake breeze cooled the city, is the outlook for today, according to the prediction made last night by J. R. Lloyd, government forecaster. Moderate northerly winds and fair skies are predicted for today. Tomorrow will be somewhat warmer, Forecaster Lloyd said.

The highest temperature yesterday was 83 at 9 p. m. This was 14 degrees lower than Friday's maximum. At 10 o'clock the temperature had dropped to 79, fluctuating later in the night.

While Chicago and the immediate surrounding region enjoyed comfortable temperatures yesterday, the rest of the country, excepting the seaboard and Rocky mountain sections, sweltered. Downstate Illinois did not escape the heat. At Cairo it was 96 and at Springfield and Peoria, 94. Cincinnati also reported 94 degrees. Similar temperatures prevailed at Dubuque and Davenport, Ia. Fort Worth, Tex., had 102 degrees.

Baby's Skull Fractured in Fall from Window

Earl Jensen, 2 years old, leaned against a window screen in his home at 2042 Cleveland avenue last night and fell two floors to the ground when the screen gave way. At the Children's Memorial hospital physicians said he suffered a skull fracture but would live.

Veterans Riot; White House Gates Locked

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Rioting broke out in front of the White House late tonight when police broke up a demonstration by radical elements of the bonus army.

In a brief but brisk battle between the veterans and several hundred police reserves responding to emergency alarms, three members of the bonus army were arrested, night sticks were wielded with vigor and the rioters were scattered, some of them with bruised heads and faces.

Immediately after the rioting broke out President Hoover canceled his plans to go to the capitol to personally receive notice of congress' adjournment and scores of secret service men and department of justice agents who had been patrolling Capitol hill in anticipation of his arrival were rushed to the White House.

Ordered to Remain on Guard.

Washington virtually was an armed camp all night and several hundred police reserves and secret service operatives were under orders to remain on guard at the White House throughout the night.

The riot was the first the White House has experienced since last fall when a small group of communists battled police. Probably at no time since the war, however, has a more serious situation confronted the authorities, and for the first time since the war the big iron gates of the executive mansion grounds were shut and locked.

The march on the White House was led by Urbain Lidoux, better known as "Mr. Zero," and he was one of the first to be arrested. About 150 veterans, all members of the radical wing, engaged in the procession, breaking away quietly from the main body that picketed the capitol.

Rush to Head Off Raiders.

Immediately that word spread of the plan every available policeman in Washington was ordered to duty and squad cars were rushed out in an effort to head off the raiding party. They arrived at the executive mansion before police could stop them and instantly trouble started.

When orders to disperse were defied a police lieutenant attempted to take an American flag from one of the leaders. Instantly he was set upon by a dozen veterans and police leaped to his assistance. Without any more gestures at temporizing the police, led by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, head of the metropolitan force, wielded their night sticks and drove the veterans blocks away from the vicinity of the executive mansion.

Motor Traffic Diverted.

All streets surrounding the mansion were closed to traffic and no one was permitted to stop for any purpose in the vicinity. Motor traffic was diverted to other streets.

Aroused by the dangerous temperament of the veterans, the pick of the secret service has been ordered to Washington immediately from all parts of the country.

AIR LINER MISSING ON HOP OVER ANDES; NINE PERSONS ABOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 16.—A Pan-American-Grace line passenger plane, carrying six passengers, one pilot, a radio operator, and a steward, at nightfall had not been heard from since it left here early this morning on a two hour flight over the Argentine Andes. It was feared the craft crashed in a snowstorm. Six planes searched for the transport this afternoon.

The plane left here at 7 a. m. for Buenos Aires and should have reached Mendoza, Argentina, at 9 a. m. Its radio was last heard at 8:30 a. m.

This afternoon three Pan-American-Grace planes were sent out to search for the missing ship. Commander Merino Benitez of the Chilean air force ordered out two more planes and Capt. Ralph H. Wooten, military attache of the American embassy, set out in his own plane.

Capt. Wooten returned tonight and reported he saw no trace of the missing plane. A searching party left here by automobile at dusk. Physicians and mountain guides are in charge of a supply of medicine. All are equipped with skis.

Pilot C. J. Robinson, Radio Operator C. W. Meyers, and Steward Arnold Woods are all Americans. The plane carried five Argentine business men and one American, F. E. Camus, the air line's Santiago manager.

DROWNED WHILE SWIMMING WITH HIS SWEETHEART

Robert Logan, 22 years old, 2209 Campbell Park avenue, a salesman, was drowned late last night while swimming at the Jackson park beach. He had gone to the beach with his sweetheart, Miss Gertrude Adams, 433 South Leavitt street, to celebrate her 21st birthday.

The two were swimming in five feet of water when Logan disappeared. Miss Adams hurried to shore and called for help. A dozen men at the scene made no attempt to respond, she said. She then found a life guard, but too late to save her sweetheart.

Arvid Mellbom, 11 years old, whose home is in 5th avenue, just south of LaGrange, was drowned last night in Crystal pool, in Willow Springs, while the tank was crowded with other young swimmers. His body was found early this morning. He was taken to the pool by two aunts in whose care he had been left by his parents when the latter went to Detroit. The aunts did not discover his absence until late at night.

Estelle Bowman, 11 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bowman, 1931 Chicago avenue, was drowned yesterday while bathing in Lake Michigan at South Haven. Her body was recovered by life guards. Mr. Bowman is a hardware dealer.

RELIEF, HOME LOANS, INFLATION APPROVED IN FINAL SESSION

REVENUE RECORDS REVEAL ATTRITION OF U. S. FORTUNES

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—In one of the new palaces housing government departments several hundred bureaucrats are witnessing these days the greatest drama of our times—the shrinkage of incomes by more than half on the average, the toppling of the great fortunes, the unmaking of millionaires, the passing from the scene of those who were rich for a day, and the rise of the racketeers to high rank in the new wealth.

As the income tax returns pass beneath the eyes of the officers and employés of the internal revenue bureau the drama of the changing order takes shape. The old aristocracy of legitimate trade, decimated by the depression and burdened with taxes, gives way before the steady advance of the millionaire bootleggers of the Volstead era now dividing among themselves the billions of dollars which the government once collected in taxes on liquor.

A Moving Spectacle.

Approximately four million individual and corporation income tax returns spread before the eyes of the government experts, the moving spectacle of the rich getting poor and the poor getting poorer. Thousands of millionaires who but three or four years ago possessed incomes of $50,000 or more are now returning incomes of $10,000 or less. Tens of thousands who once were listed in the $10,000 to $50,000 classes are now paying taxes on incomes of less than $5,000, while several hundred thousand once taxable on less than $5,000 have disappeared altogether from the rolls.

Of the 269,000 corporations that reported net incomes back in 1928 there are fewer than 175,000 today and their incomes are estimated at from one-third to one-half on the average of what they were four years ago.

Shatter Balancing of Budget.

The continued dwindling of the incomes of the 300,000 individuals and 200,000 corporations chiefly relied upon for 219 millions of additional revenue from income taxes under the boosted rates of the new billion dollar tax increase act is one of the circumstances which appear likely to render abortive the plan to balance the federal budget this fiscal year. With better times still "around the corner," there is little likelihood of the treasury deriving more than 150 millions additional revenue from 1932 incomes, only half of which will be collected in this fiscal year.

Other circumstances rendering illusory the much advertised balancing of the budget are the failure of congress to retrench expenses sufficiently, the additional drains on the treasury from depression relief appropriations, and the improbability that the European debtors will pay the 270 millions due the United States on the war debts this year.

From 43,000 to 10,000.

If a millionaire be defined as a person possessing property yielding an income of $50,000 or more a year there were 43,184 American millionaires in the heyday of the boom times of 1928, according to the statistics of income issued by the internal revenue

Senate Wins Battle with House on Currency.

Congress' Last Day

Passed the 2 billion 122 million dollar relief bill.

Passed the 125 million dollar home loan bank bill designed to relieve the burden on small home owners due to frozen credits. Appropriated $250,000 for administrative expenses of bill.

Approved the Glass currency bill as a rider to the home loan bank bill after a protracted deadlock, which will inflate the currency by approximately a billion dollars by extending the currency privilege to government bonds bearing not more than 3⅜ per cent interest.

Voted to reimburse the farm board for 45 million bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton turned over to the Red Cross for relief purposes.

Called up the Glass resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment in the senate by a vote of 37 to 21 and placed the measure on the calendar for consideration in the fall session.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Congress adjourned tonight at the tail end of a day of legislative storm and suspense spent in passing two of the most important bills of the session—the two billion 122 million dollar relief bill, containing the first federal provision for direct aid to unemployment, and the 125 million dollar home loan bank bill, carrying in the Glass amendment the first outright currency inflation measure since the depression began.

With legislation appropriating 447 millions of federal money, committing the treasury to support one billion, 800 millions of new Reconstruction Finance corporation bonds, and authorizing a possible billion dollar currency expansion, congress brought to a typical close a session in which measures to meet the depression have been paramount to all else.

Battle on Inflation Rider.

Significant of seven months that have seen frequent outbreaks between conservative and radical, the issue which was tossed back and forth between a house and senate, each reluctant to yield, was that of the Glass currency inflation rider to the home loan bank bill.

Senate radicals and many Democrats insisted on its passage. House Republicans and a large Democratic group insisted as vehemently that it be defeated.

The amendment was originally drawn up by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] as a senate substitute for the Goldsborough inflation bill passed by the house. Allowed to slumber for many weeks, it was resurrected by Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] and attached by the senate to the home loan bank bill, one of the series of President Hoover's emergency measures.

Expands Currency Billion.

It provides for a currency expansion of approximately 995 million dollars by permitting national banks, during the next three years, to issue notes against all long term government bonds bearing an interest rate of 3⅜ per cent or less. The amount of inflation is limited by the capitalization of the national banks, which in turn limits the amount of their government bond holdings.

Back and forth all day the Glass amendment was shot between house and senate, with the hoped for adjournment tonight hanging in the balance. Three times the senate refused to yield on its stand that the Glass amendment must go in.

Twice the house, in roll call votes, held solidly to its contention that the amendment must come out. It was long after dinner when the bill came back to the house the third time. The strain was beginning to tell. Walter Newton, secretary to the President, was on the floor telling the representatives that "the chief" would sign, even though inflation was agreed to. Republican Leader B. H. Snell of New York gave in; so did Democratic leaders opposed to the amendment.

For the third time the roll was called and this time the balance swung over the dividing line. By a vote of 120 to 114 the home loan bank bill plus its rider was adopted.

A few minutes later the $250,000 approriation for the administrative expenses of the newly created home loan bank system was started on its way to passage. Its course, too, ran into a storm on its appearance in the senate. Senators with voices all tuned to shout "Aye" when the adjournment resolution was prepared were brought up short when Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], always opposed to the home loan measure, rose to object at length to the way in which he claimed the appropriation bill was being steam-rollered to adoption.

Creates Home Loan Banks.

By virtue of the home loan bill from 8 to 12 discount banks are to be created to make loans to home financing institutions on mortgage paper secured by home property not exceeding $20,000 in value. Member institutions are expected to subscribe for the minimum of $5,000,000 of capital each bank is to have, but any necessary capital not so furnished, to a total amount of 125 millions, is to be supplied by the federal treasury.

Over the final day and night thus filled with parliamentary battle towered the relief bill finally passed by virtue of the senate's agreement earlier in the afternoon to accept the much debated "publicity clause," providing that all loans hereafter made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation shall be reported to the President and to both houses of congress.

Biggest Bill of Session.

In sheer magnitude the relief bill surpassed any other measure adopted during the session, exceeding in the money involved even its two billion dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation act.

In the first of its three sections the bill carries 300 million dollars to be loaned by the corporation to states and municipalities for the relief of the needy. Governors are to make affidavit as to the necessity for such loans. No one state may receive more than 45 millions, and states must repay the loans with interest at 3 per cent, either through deductions from future federal aid appropriations or in some other method to be agreed on.

The second section of the measure authorizes loans to states and their political subdivisions, and to private corporations to finance self-liquidating projects intended for public use. Loans are also authorized to finance the export and marketing of farm commodities.

Earlier both house had pushed through an appropriation of $40,000,000 to retire existing loans against the farm board for wheat and cotton released to the Red Cross for relief work.

It is in this section that another Glass amendment is included—a provision authorizing federal reserve banks, in emergency cases, to make loans to individuals.

Nearly Double R. F. C. Credit.

To cover the loans expected under these two sections the bond issuing power of the corporation is expanded one billion 800 million dollars, thus increasing the toal credit facilities of the corporation to three billion 800 millions.

In its third section the relief bill appropriates $322,224,000 to be used in an enlarged program of public works construction. Highway and trail work is to be carried out without any limitation; other construction is not to start unless the treasury certifies that the necessary money is on hand or may reasonably be borrowed.

As finally passed, the relief bill is a combination and compromise measure, based in the main on the original bill written by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.].

Battle Over Publicity.

Senate agreement on the relief bill, which was adopted by the house yesterday, came only after a lengthy discussion of the publicity clause. Overnight telegrams had poured into congress from many banks throughout the country protesting against loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation being made public.

Supporters of the bill, headed by Senator Wagner and Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, insisted that the publicity provision was not retroactive, that it would apply only to loans made in the future, and that reports made during the summer recess to the clerk of the house and secretary of the senate, in the absence of authority to the contrary, will be kept secret. In the end, they prevailed, but not until the debate had several times warmed up into a bitter give and take battle.

Debate in the two houses during the eleven hours in which the home loan bank bill and the Glass amendment were tossed back and forth became vehement several times. Particularly warm was the debate in the house preceding the final vote in which it gave in to the senate.

Attack Inflation as Ruinous.

The house's giving in, said Representative Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, presented "a picture not attractive to the people of the United States."

Representative Louis T. McFadden [Rep., Pa.], who not long ago enlivened another debate by charging that the President had "sold out to the international bankers," vigorously denounced the inflationary scheme.

"There is no need for it," he shouted. "It will disrupt the national banks throughout the country."

By admitting new bonds to the circulation privilege it would drive down into the 60's the value of the 700 million dollars of 2 per cent bonds which now alone enjoy that privilege, he predicted. And he charged that "bankers on the inside of government affairs" stood to make large profits through their anticipation of the inflation bill's passage.

Rap "White House Lobbyist."

To that charge he added another, that the President's secretary, Walter Newton, whom he called a "White House lobbyist," had taken an active part in breaking down opposition to the Glass rider.

With the final vote in the house taken and Senator Couzens at last willing to subside the road to adjournment was cleared.

At the very last Senator Robert B. Howell [Radical Rep., Neb.] made one final futile gesture to get through a farm relief measure by presenting the McNary bill as an amendment to the $250,000 home loan bank appropriation. He was submerged under a chorus of "noes."

And So They Adjourn.

Then Senator Watson presented the resolution for adjournment sine die. And this time the chorus consisted of hearty "ayes." It was 11:09 o'clock.

A crowd of representatives who had gathered in the back of the senate chamber to watch the senators perform the final rites started hot foot back to their own end of the Capitol.

There, too, there was a final flurry as Representatives F. H. La Guardia [Rad. Rep., N. Y.] and John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.] sought to postpone the end of the session by demanding a roll call. Like Mr. Howell, they also were submerged, and at 11:29 o'clock the shouts of the representatives voted the end of the first session of the 72d congress.

JACK GARNER WALKS OUT ON HOUSE; HEADS HOME FOR VACATION

His tickets called for departure at 6:01 p. m., and at 6:01 p. m. he left Washington behind. His gavel was in the hands of John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], Garner's close friend and dependable assistant. He handed it over an hour before train time and amid cheers from the members, Democrat and Republican alike, he slipped off to where Mrs. Garner awaited him with packed bags.

There was jollity in the house before he left. All day it had waited for the senate to get done, recessing and meeting again.

"Have a nice summer, Jack," he sang out, "because you're going to have a tough fall."

"The election is already over," laughed the speaker. "What I hate is to quit this body and go somewhere else."

GLASS BILL ADDS 995 MILLIONS TO U. S. CURRENCY

National Banks Profit by Measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—Acceptance by the house last night of the Glass currency expansion rider to the home loan bill, when it surrendered to the senate stand which had kept congress deadlocked most of the day, will put before President Hoover a measure to increase the power of the national banks to issue paper money.

The measure provides that the privilege of currency issuance, previously limited to 2 per cent government bonds, will be extended to those carrying interest of 3⅜ per cent or less. This will add about three billion in United States bonds against which currency can be issued.

While it was agreed today by several New York bankers that the national banks will profit under the new project, if approved by the President, it was regarded by a majority of those interviewed as a method that might lead to currency difficulties later.

Privilege Limited Now.

At the present time the only governmental bonds carrying the circulation privilege are the 2 per cents of 1930, which are outstanding in the amount of $599,724,050; the Panama canal 2's of 1916-36, outstanding in the amount of $48,954,180, and the Panama canal 2's of 1918-'38, of which there are $25,947,400 outstanding. Thus a total of $674,625,630 of bonds all carrying a coupon of 2 per cent, now is available to form the basis for the issuance of national banknotes.

The new bill would add to this list more than three billion of other government bonds carrying coupons of 3⅜ per cent or less. However, it would be impossible to use all of those bonds as a basis for circulation. A national bank is allowed to issue currency only to the extent of its capital. The aggregate capital of all national banks in the country now is one billion 600 million. That amount therefore, is the upper limit of national banknote emission. Theoretically, however, about 995 million of additional national banknote circulation could be issued under the Glass bill.

Offers Chance for Profit.

This additional currency would offer to the national banks a much greater profit than has been available previous from the circulation privilege, unless a tax on circulation were to be levied, based on the coupon of the bond against which currency was issued.

The annual profit derived from circulation by a national bank under the present law may be summarized as follow. using $100,000 of 2 per cents costing $102 as the basis and calculating the earning power of money at 4 per cent:

$100,000 2 per cent bonds yield....$	2.000
*$95,000 circulation lent at 4 per cent gross yield	5,800
Less tax on circulation ½ per cent, $500; sinking fund to retire premium on bonds, $500; expenses, printing, etc., $100	1,100
Net income with circulation	4,700
†Net income without circulation by lending net cost of bonds	101,500
At 4 per cent	4,060
Profit	640

*Deducting for 5 per cent redemption fund.

A similar calculation, based on $100,000 of 3⅜ per cent bonds costing currently about $99 and with a 4 per cent money rate, shows the larger profit made available if the Glass bill becomes a law:

$100,000 3⅜ per cent bonds yielded.	$3,375
$95,000 circulation lent at 4 per cent	3,800
Gross yield	7,175
Less tax on circulation ½ per cent, $500; expenses, printing, etc., $100	600
Net income with circulation	6,575
Net income without circulation by lending	3,960
Net cost of bonds, $99,000 at 4 per cent	2,615

Revenue Records Reveal Destruction of Fortunes

bureau. The stock market cracked in October, 1929, leaving 38,650 persons reporting incomes of $50,000 or more for that calendar year. The number of millionaires declined to 19,688 in 1930, the last year for which detailed figures are available. The indications, however, are that the statistics for 1931, to be issued next fall, will show fewer than 10,000 millionaires, with the prospect of a further decline to be recorded for 1932.

In the class of multi-millionaires with incomes of 5 millions or more there were 26 in 1928, but only eight in 1930. There is reason to believe that there are only two or three now—John D. Rockefeller, Andrew W. Mellon, and J. P. Morgan being those most likely to have survived in this class.

Hoover and Cabinet Hard Hit.

The millionaire class of official Washington has been as hard hit as any. President Hoover himself is down to his last million, according to an authoritative statement to the house by an administration spokesman. There are five members of the cabinet who were millionaires up to three years ago, but according to admissions by at least one of them they are not all millionaires now. They are Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, and Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont.

The richest man in congress is, or at least was, Senator Hamilton F. Kean [Rep., N. J.], who up to three years ago was reputed to be worth upward of 65 millions. Until Kean came to Washington Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], worth some 40 millions, was the richest man in congress and it may be he still is, for his fortune is invested almost exclusively in tax exempt securities, the income from which has not appreciably diminished. It may be, therefore, that Couzens is now richer than Kean.

Millionaires Move to Capital.

An interesting phenomenon is the fact that whereas nearly everywhere else the number of millionaires decreased between Jan. 1, 1928, and Jan. 1, 1930, the number in Washington increased from 346 to 436. There has been an uninterrupted movement of millionaires to Washington for many years, attracted largely by the lures of official society, and to this factor has been attributed the net increase here despite the operation of forces unmaking millionaires here as elsewhere. There was, however, a net increase of 3,150 in all taxable returns in the District of Columbia in that period compared with decreases generally in other parts of the country.

In Illinois there were 4,196 millionaires in 1928 and 3,564 in 1929. The five million income class numbered three Illinoisans in 1928, and two in 1929. Two in the four million income class dropped to one, while the three million income class held its own at three and the two million income class dropped from eight to five. The one and one-half million income group doubtless lost some, but gained a sufficient number from those above coming down to raise its quota from ten to eleven.

In the Illinois List.

Of 31 Illinoisans with incomes of one million or more a year in 1928 there were only 22 in 1929. A lot of the former higher ups landed in the $750,000 income class, which went up from 23 to 31. The $500,000 income group diminished from 65 to 51, the $400,000 class from 60 to 38, and the $300,000 class from 114 to 80. Those with $250,000 incomes went up from 36 to 39, while the $200,000 income class dropped from 156 to 138 and the $150,000 class from 282 to 243, the $100,000 class from 722 to 638, the $90,000 class from 249 to 220, the $80,000 class from 339 to 290, the $70,000 class from 473 to 409, the $60,000 class from 598 to 527, and the $50,000 class from 972 to 766. Taxable returns in Illinois decreased from 254,571 persons in 1928 to 249,249 in 1929.

Income tax statisticians estimate that there has been an average shrinkage since 1928 of about 50 per cent in incomes of those who pay direct federal taxes. Secretary Mills estimated that the individual and corporation taxes on 1932 incomes at the old rates would yield slightly more than one-third of the amount derived in 1928, but because of the variation of surtaxes this does not mean an average two-thirds drop in incomes.

A Comparative Table.

	Net income.	Taxes.
Individual	$25,226,326,912	$1,164,254,037
Corporation	10,617,741,157	1,184,142,142
—1929—
—1930—
Corporation	5,627,312,995	618,246,431

Figures on the net income of individuals and corporations in 1931 are not yet available, but unofficial estimates indicate a considerable further shrinkage. The treasury has just reported that income receipts for the 1932 fiscal year which include the latter six months of the 1931 calendar year were $427,275,625 from individuals and $629,603,704 from corporations.

Taxable individual returns declined from 2,523,063 in 1928 to 1,946,675 in 1930. There were 269,783 corporations reporting net income in 1930 and 214,412 in 1930. Active corporations reporting no net income increased from 174,828 to 231,287.

1928 the "Fat" Year.

Multi-millionaires with incomes of 1 million or more a year were most numerous in 1928. There were 511 of them in the United States with incomes aggregating $1,108,863,041, an average of $2,169,986. In 1930 there were only 149 of them with incomes aggregating $355,661,694, an average of $2,386,991.

In the 500 thousand dollar a year income class there were 983 in 1928 with incomes aggregating $670,861,671, an average of $682,463, and in 1930 there were 311 with incomes aggregating $207,742,381, an average of $667,982.

In 1928 there were 3,059,964 taxpayers with incomes under $5,000 whose incomes aggregated $8,268,365,840 and two years later there were 2,613,195 with incomes totaling $7,022,000,000. Between $5,000 and $10,000 there were 628,766 in 1928 with aggregate incomes of $4,282,520,180 compared with 505,715 in 1930 with incomes of $3,453,071,157. Between $10,000 and $25,000 the number dropped from 270,889 with aggregate incomes of $4,037,853,104 to 197,376 with incomes of $2,092,966,300. Between $25,000 and $50,000 there were 68,048 in 1928 with incomes totaling $2,326,502,829 compared with 40,573 in 1930 with incomes of $1,374,333,332.

SENATE CALLS UP REPEAL BILLS; LETS THEM DROP

Vote and Talk Pointed at Straddle Charge.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—In an eleventh hour attempt to tell the country that senate Democrats are in back of their party's repeal plank, Senator Glass [Dem., Va.], today, by a vote of 37 to 21, called up from the table his resolution demanding repeal of the 18th amendment. This vote was five short of the 42 necessary to have given the two-thirds majority necessary for passing the constitutional amendment had it ever come to a vote.

But the main function of calling up the resolution was to give Democratic wets an opportunity to refute the charges of "straddling" which had been hurled at them by the Republican wets because of their recent refusal to back the Bingham beer bill attached as a rider to the home loan bank bill.

Plead for Other Bills.

No sooner had Senator Glass finished his brief presentation of his resolution, which also calls for federal supervision to prohibit the consumption of liquor at the place of sale, than Senator Bingham [Rep., Conn.] pleaded for his substitute resolution. It is better, he argued, because it limits federal jurisdiction to interstate commerce regulation of the liquor traffic.

Senator Tydings [Dem., Md.] took the floor to declare that the Bingham plan was better than the Glass proposal, but that both were inferior to the resolution of Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], which calls merely, for out and out repeal.

"We made an awful mistake when we adopted the eighteenth amendment," Senator Tydings declared, "because we took a purely local matter and put it under national jurisdiction. When we go about passing another amendment we ought not to leave any vestige of that early mistake.

Let States Settle Problem.

"In other words, we ought not to have any police regulation about federal jurisdiction. Let the states settle their own liquor problems. Is there any senator here who will get up and say his state needs federal help?"

"I do," piped up Senator Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], father of the eighteenth amendment.

"Well," said Mr. Tydings, "I don't need the federal government to bludgeon my people of Maryland to heaven; they'll get there by themselves."

Later the prohibition debate was shoved aside for the home loan bill. But the wet Democrats felt they had signaled their interest in repeal by their vote to call up the resolution.

The roll call on Senator Glass' motion to proceed to consideration of his resolution follows:

FOR THE RESOLUTION [37].

Democrats [20]—Ashurst, Bailey, Barkley, Black, Bulkley, Bulow, Cohen, Fletcher, Glass, Hayden, Lewis, McKellar, Neely, Pittman, Robinson [Ark.], Stephens, Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh [Mass.].

AGAINST THE RESOLUTION [21].

Democrats [4]—Costigan, Morrison, Sheppard, Thomas [Okla.].

All pairs were general, but it was announced that Senators Bankhead and Coolidge, Democrats, and McNary, Oddie, and Steiwer, Republicans, would have voted "aye" had they been permitted.

Fire Truck Lacks Gas, Oil; Chief Fishing, House Burns

Carl Junction, Mo., July 16.—(AP)—Volunteer firemen who rushed to the fire station to answer an alarm discovered the town's only fire truck had no oil in the motor and no gasoline in the fuel tank. Then they learned that the fire chief had gone fishing. In the meantime fire ate its way through the walls of a nearby house and threatened two others.

What's Left of Colosimo's Is Closed by City Police

Police last night visited Colosimo's restaurant at 2126 South Wabash avenue which was raided by prohibition agents last month. They found the second floor outfitted for business. Only two diners were present. The police warned the management that an amusement license was necessary for operation. The place was closed on a second police visit at 11 p. m.

APPROPRIATIONS OF 72D CONGRESS NEARLY 6 BILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Appropriations totaling $4,459,651,102 for the fiscal year 1933 were passed by the first session of the 72d congress, according to the reports of Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] and Representative Joe T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the senate and house appropriations committees, made public today.

In addition to this amount, which included the 10 regular supply bills for the fiscal year 1933, the two deficiency bills for the fiscal year 1932, and various special appropriation acts, the sum of $1,285,907,728 had to be appropriated to meet the 640 million dollars of interest on the public debt, the $496,803,478 for sinking fund and other debt retirement funds, and other permanent expenditures.

Total Is Nearly 6 Billions.

The total of current and recurrent appropriations, therefore, was $5,745,558,830. As deductions from this sum, Senator Jones listed estimated postal revenues for 1933 of $725,000,000 and an estimated saving of $150,000,000 under the economy act, leaving a balance for the session of $4,870,558,830.

With Republican "satisfaction and pride," Senator Jones called attention to the reduction in expenditures, which he said has been made during the session.

"The total appropriations, including regular annual permanents and indefinites, and deficiencies," he stated, "have been reduced from $5,618,546,098 to $4,761,192,479—a reduction of $857,353,618. Added to this enormous reduction the $150,000,000 estimated minimum saving on account of the economy bill makes a total reduction of $1,007,353,618.

"I fear there exists in the minds of some of our citizens some distrust of congress. I hope every one of our people will weigh this matter carefully and with fairness in their hearts give due credit to their representatives in congress for achieving this reduction."

With equal assurance Representative Byrns declared this "remarkable showing" was due largely to the "vigilance" of the Democratic house, claiming the economy movement was undertaken there long before President Hoover sent special messages to the capitol urging that it be done.

Finance Board Fund in Report.

Study of the senator's report disclosed, however, that this total for 1932 included the $500,000,000 for the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the $125,000,000 required under the bill expanding the capitalization of the federal farm loan banks. Also in the 1932 total were large nonrecurring items such as the $101,900,000 for the federal farm board, the $22,000,000 for seed loans, and the $35,000,000 for the shipping board's revolving fund. These amounts make a total of $783,900,000.

There were still further nonrecurring items such as the $23,000,000 carried in the 1932 agriculture bill for various projects, the $20,000,000 advance on road funds, and the $5,000,000 for the census. Other appropriations totaling between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 were merely postponed, and will have to be passed in December.

In all, therefore, the 1932 appropriations total was expanded by the inclusion of nearly $900,000,000 of emergency and nonrecurring items.

Balanced against this was the $322,224,000 for the construction section of the relief bill which appears in the total appropriations for the fiscal year 1933, thus leaving some $575,000,000 properly to be deducted from the savings claimed by Senator Jones.

On this basis the savings without the economy bill would be in the neighborhood of $280,000,000 instead of $857,353,618. Including the economy bill, the savings accomplished during the session would amount to $430,000,000 as compared with the $1,007,353,618 claimed by Senator Jones.

Mr. Byrns' report disclosed that the saving through reductions in the regular appropriations bill amounted to only $184,000,000, of which, he declared, the senate was responsible for only $22,000,000.

After eliminating permanent appropriations the house appropriations chairman also deducted the "estimated" saving of $150,000,000 in the so-called economy bill. Thereby he reached a net total of $4,309,651,102 and claimed a net reduction of $1,139,853,618, in current appropriations as compared with last year.

With the economy bill savings thrown in, he claimed congress slashed current appropriations $334,294,094 below budget estimates.

J. P.'s and Constables Try to Put Each Other in Jail

The Magistrates

Magistrate Edward Clark of Homewood yesterday held Magistrate Charles Farrell of East Hazel Crest to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000 on a charge of false imprisonment. At the same time he discharged Police Chief Glenn Hankins of East Hazel Crest.

The charge was made against the East Hazel Crest officials by Harry Reeves, an electrician, also of East Hazel Crest. It had its inception in June over a suit for a $40 debt against Reeves in Magistrate Farrell's court. Farrell fined Reeves $5 and $7 costs for contempt of court for ignoring a summons and locked him up for failure to pay the fine.

The Constables

Constable Gilbert Tracy of Oak Park was arrested yesterday by constables from Des Plaines on a warrant charging him with larceny by bailee. The complainant was Police Chief Carl Skoog of Arlington Heights, who told the following story:

"Some months ago I installed a police radio in my car costing $114. In June I was notified by the Atlas Finance company that I must pay $80. I owed only $40. On June 23 the company got a replevin against my car from Magistrate McGrath in Oak Park, and my auto was taken by Constable Tracy.

"On July 12 I was notified that my car would be sold unless I paid $163.71. I paid, and got my car back, but a shotgun, a revolver, and a tire were missing. I then took out the warrant against Tracy."

Cicero Policeman Balks Holdup; Shoots Robber

One of two bandits was wounded in the shoulder last night during an attempted robbery of Jerry Bursick's meat market at 1501 South 62d avenue, Cicero. He escaped. The two robbers entered the store, leaving a third man in their car outside. Policeman Henry Zorna, of the Cicero force, in civilian attire, was talking to Bursick. He fired at the men, hitting one. Both got away in the waiting car. Later the wounded man appealed for aid at the home of L. Burcl, 1436 Lombard avenue, Cicero. He fled when Burcl tried to seize him.

Creditors of the late Knowlton L. Ames Sr., chairman of the board of the Booth Fisheries company, have filed claims totaling $5,926,634 against his estate in the Probate court. This aggregate was reached yesterday when the Central Republic Bank and Trust company filed a new claim of $1,398,690.

Mr. Ames, who killed himself last Dec. 31, left an estate of $50,000, according to his will, which was filed in the Probate court soon after his death. He also left an insurance trust of $1,100,000. The trust, however, has been held inviolate by Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr., who gave his opinion recently that the trust funds could not be used to settle Mr. Ames' debts.

Claims by Bank.

The Central Republic bank's claim is composed of six divisions, as follows: $259,000 on Booth Fisheries notes which Mr. Ames guaranteed at the bank; $370,590 in notes of the Northwestern Fisheries company, which he also guaranteed; $112,850 in a note guaranteed for his son, John D. Ames; $50,000 in a note guaranteed for Charles H. Widman; Mr. Ames' personal note for $244,000, and $362,250 alleged to be owed for stock of the Booth Fisheries company which Mr. Ames contracted for but did not actually purchase from the bank.

Other claims already filed against the estate are:

Guaranty National bank	65,000
Farnum, Winter & Co., brokers	360,058
Florida National bank	35,157
Union National bank	22,550
Chase National Bank of New York	1,752,340
Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company	237,000
Central Hanover bank	987,000
First National bank	45,000
Guaranty Trust of New York	654,860
Marine Trust	18,629
Peoples Trust and Savings bank	65,350
Total	$4,502,944

A dozen smaller claims total $25,000. These, with that of the Central Republic bank, bring the total of claims to $5,926,634.

Bequests in Ames' Will.

Under Mr. Ames' will one-third of his estate was given to his widow, Mrs. Ada Howell Ames of Evanston, and the remainder to his son by a former marriage, John D. Ames, 42 East Elm street.

Under the terms of the insurance trust, which was established more than a year before Mr. Ames' death, $250,000 is set aside as a life trust from which his widow will receive the income. At her death the trust terminates and the principal will be divided between her daughter and her stepson or their heirs. A trust of $150,000 is created for Mr. Ames' 5 year old daughter, Emily. The income from this trust is controlled by John D. Ames until she is 25 years old, when she will receive the income directly. At the age of 40 she will receive the principal.

FRANCE INSISTS ON U. S. AID AS PRICE FOR PACT

PARIS, July 17 [Sunday].—[U. P.]—Premier Herriot declared flatly in the chamber of deputies this morning that France must return to the Young plan of reparations settlement unless she can make a "satisfactory" settlement of the debts she owes the United States.

After displaying signs of impatience at being forced to explain the Lausanne reparations settlement throughout the week before the deputies, the premier undertook to reply to the bitter attack on the Lausanne agreement being made by Deputy Louis Marin, Nationalist leader.

"Frenchmen cannot be asked to pay more than they receive [from Germany]," Herriot declared. "The Lausanne agreement is provisional. If we make a satisfactory settlement of the debts we owe elsewhere, the agreement becomes final. But if the settlement of our debts is unsatisfactory then we return to the Young plan [under which Germany would have to pay reparations amounting to almost 100 times as much as the Lausanne agreement calls for].

"All possible eventualities have been envisaged in the Lausanne settlement. Consequently, all of our rights are safeguarded."

The French premier entered the debate after Marin had climaxed his remarks with the question:

"What about France's debts to America and Great Britain?"

Review of What Congress Did in Seven Months' Session

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—The first session of the 72d congress, which drew to its close today, saw the central government's treatment of the depression develop into a seven months' course of drastic legislative therapy.

Together with the executive, congress administered this treatment in a series of measures that began with the moratorium for inter-governmental debts that included the creation of the reconstruction corporation, and that ended only today with the passage of the two billion 122 million dollar relief bill and the combination home loan bank and currency inflation bill.

Also in combination with the executive, congress gave the country a new revenue measure designed to raise more than a billion dollars in additional taxes, a series of appropriation bills in which cuts fell far short of the conversation about them and an economy bill which started to save some 260 millions and ended by saving 110 millions less than that.

Depression Moves Closer.

During the seven months and nine days of the session the depression moved closer and closer to Capitol hill until it sat literally in person in the galleries of congress and marched in a shuffling picket line about the east plaza. For the session that began by postponing the debt payments due from European debtors ended with more than 20,000 ragged veterans encamped in Washington as the "bonus expeditionary force."

But the 72d congress will be remembered as more than the "depression congress." It will be noted down in the political annals as the first congress in twelve dry years to reflect that gathering revolt against prohibition which wrote its dissatisfaction into both the Republican and Democratic platforms at Chicago.

With a few explosive exceptions the session was marked by a spirit of cooperation between the legislative and executive branches and between the parties and blocs in congress. There were, of course, differences of opinion.

Affected by Campaign.

Some of these rather plainly were of political origin, particularly toward the end of the session when the President had become the Republican candidate for reëlection and the speaker of the house had been nominated Democratic candidate for the vice presidency.

Others were the result of a direct clash between opposing theories of government. The national distress proved an invitation to the demagogue and panacea monger. Many pieces of the resultant radical legislation were quietly shelved or vigorously quashed by the conservative element in the house and senate—more than lived through the legislative process to impart a distinct radical flavor to bills and resolutions.

On only three important pieces of legislation did President Hoover exercise his power. These were the bill extending veterans' privileges to hitherto unthought of classes of former soldiers, and the first Garner-Wagner relief bill with its federal loans to individuals and the bill to shear the President of his powers under the flexible provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act.

Despite a Democratic house and a senate in which the balance of power lay with the radical group, President Hoover was, on the whole, successful in imposing his will on congress in the matter of the administration's economic program and the tax bill. In his turn, however, he was forced to fall in line as to government economy and a relief bill embodying more direct methods of federal aid.

The house Democrats began the economy drive; the senate Democrats under the pressure of radical demands generated the movement that finally resulted in the relief bill passed this afternoon. In both cases Mr. Hoover was forced to hurry to catch up. Eventually he did catch up and sought to stamp his name on both movements—by spurring on the flagging Democrats in the case of the economy bill and by forcing the Democrats to strike "pork barrel" public works appropriations and loans to individuals from their relief legislation.

The give and take between White House and capitol saw the relegation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to the court of St. James and the rise of a new power behind the throne in the person of Mr. Mellon's successor, Ogden L. Mills.

Reconstruction Project.

The keystone and largest single proposal in the President's emergency program was the creation in January of the Reconstruction Finance corporation with a federally furnished capital of half a billion dollars and the power to issue three times that amount in debentures guaranteed and purchasable by the United States treasury. During the first five months of its existence the corporation loaned $1,054,814,486 to 4,196 institutions, including railroads, banks, insurance companies, and agricultural credit organizations and to farmers through the secretary of agriculture.

Originally designed to take over the work of the voluntary and ineffective bankers' credit pool in thawing out the country's frozen credits, the corporation became the central trunk on which were grafted other relief enterprises.

The relief bill adopted today saw the corporation's power to issue debentures expanded another one billion 800 million dollars, thus making the corporation a 3 billion 800 million dollar institution.

Relief Bill Marks the End.

The passage of the relief bill marked the end of a series of efforts, extending back into the previous congress, to appropriate federal money for the direct help of the unemployed. The beginning of the recent session found the radical groups, particularly in the senate, taking the lead in continuing the movement. From their hands, the initiative passed to the senate Democrats with President Hoover seeking anxiously to break into the picture with a plan of his own. Lastly, Speaker Garner joined the group of relief bill authors with a measure that the President was stirred into labeling "the most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed to the American congress."

The house on June 7 passed the Garner "pork barrel" bill, and the senate three days later adopted a measure which Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] was the principal author. Differences between the two bills were reconciled, with Mr. Garner agreeing to forego a large portion of "pork" but insistent upon loans by the finance corporation to individuals. To the accompaniment of defiant utterances by Mr. Garner President Hoover threatened to veto the bill and carried out his threat, sending with his veto message the draft of a measure that left out the loans to individuals. It was this bill, founded on the original Wagner measure, which finally won adoption.

Puts Over the Moratorium.

The most successful attempt of the President to guide congress was in the case of the moratorium. He was forced to listen to violent protests at his method of having gathered congressional pledges in June, 1931, when he first broached the idea of a debt holiday to Europe. But he triumphed with comfortable majorities in both houses in having the moratorium ratified.

But these were not all of the emergency measures passed by congress. The Glass-Steagall bill broadened the rediscount base of the federal reserve system and released gold reserves for new currency issues. The capital stock of the federal farm loan banks was increased by a $125,000,000 treasury subscription. And a like amount of federal money was placed behind a new system of home loan banks designed to relieve home financing institutions of small home mortgage paper.

This program moved through congress to the accompaniment of a chronic demand for currency inflation and for measures of a distinct panacea type. The Glass inflation bill which was accepted by the house today only after a prolonged deadlock with the senate had been attached as a rider to the home loan bank bill and accepted by the senate as a substitute for the far more radical Goldsborough inflation bill formerly agreed to in the house. The house also passed the Steagall bill to guarantee bank deposits, but this measure failed to progress in the senate.

Battle Over Tax Bill.

The Glass banking bill to revise certain features of the federal reserve system and amending the banking laws, particularly those affecting branch and chain banks, came to a stalemate, though portions of it were incorporated in the Glass-Steagall bill.

While these measures aimed at reviving the country's dormant credit system were in process of passage congress was at work preparing a tax bill at the reiterated behest from the White House to "balance the budget." The tax bill emerged from the house ways and means committee to become submerged in a house battle that saw the leadership of Speaker Garner and other Democratic leaders ripped to shreds. A radical coalition tore the manufacturers' sales tax from the bill and jammed into it higher surtax and estate and gift tax rates, together with numerous special excise taxes.

In the senate finance committee the bill was made the vehicle for a fight on tariffs. On the floor the radicals carried on the attempt to "soak the rich." At the last moment, with passage of the bill in sight, Secretary Mills appeared before the finance committee and President Hoover came before the senate in person to announce that the bill fell far short of balancing the budget and that 285 millions more in taxes must be raised. The President voiced a mild approval of the sales tax and a final attempt was made to adopt it. But again the vote was adverse.

What Bill Will Raise.

As finally agreed on, the tax bill was expected to raise 1 billion 118 million 500 thousand through greatly increased income, surtax, estate and gift tax rates, a long series of special excise and nuisance taxes, and increased postal rates.

The difference between the expected additional revenues and the expected deficit at the end of the fiscal year 1933 was, according to plan, to be made up by savings in expenditures.

Much was made of cuts in appropriations. The President claimed that the budget saved 369 millions under the outlay for last year. Congressional critics showed that some 200 millions of this amount was accounted for by nonrecurring items. In the same fashion congress ought to show great savings under 1932 expenditures, but with emergency and nonrecurring items eliminated the savings made by congress in the annual supply bills for 1933 amounted to only 169 millions below the budget estimates. Without the economy bill, actual savings totaled only some 280 millions.

Inspired to action at last by increasing demands for government economy house Democrats began to work for an economy bill. Once more the President found himself left behind, but by a sudden change of front caught up with the procession. Chopped almost to nothing in the house, the economy bill was somewhat revived in the senate, emerging finally as a measure expected to save approximately 150 millions, its chief feature being a combined furlough and pay cut order for federal employés.

Votes on Prohibition.

The growing national discontent with prohibition was reflected in congress by two test votes in the house and several votes on the legalization of beer in the senate. On March 14, voting to bring the Beck-Linthicum repeal resolution to the floor, the house cast 187 wet votes, the largest of its kind since prohibition as against 227 dry ballots. Two weeks later a similar vote on the O'Conner-Hull beer bill was 132 to 216.

Senate wets pinned their hopes to various bills to legalize beer, and measures by Senators Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] and Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] were offered as amendments to the tax bill and in a final effort to gain modification and increase federal revenues as a rider to the home loan bank bill. The various attempts met failure, but as in the house the wets were able to muster a strength that would have been impossible even a year earlier. In all, 34 senators cast wet votes in the various roll calls.

Veterans' Bonus Certificates.

As in the previous congress there was agitation for payment for veterans' bonus certificates in full. Greenback issues and other radical schemes were proposed as means of getting the necessary two billions. Answering the congressional haranguing came the bonus marchers, until some 20,000 were in the capital, constituting a perpetual threat of serious trouble. Despite the efforts of party leaders a bonus payment bill passed the house, 209 to 176, but was brought to an abrupt halt in the senate by an adverse vote of 18 to 62.

Politics played its part in the passage of a Democratic tariff bill intended to take from the President his powers under the flexible provisions of the Smoot-Hawley measure. But the President vetoed it.

In the passage of the "lame duck" resolution to change the constitutional dates for the beginning of congress and the inauguration of the President and in the adoption of the anti-injunction bill, two measures long advocated by Senator George W. Norris [radical Rep., Neb.], received approval.

Farm relief was much talked of. There was a brief investigation of the farm board and a promise of one more thorough, but not new legislation of a fundamental nature was agreed on. A Philippine independence bill passed the house, but with the administration strongly opposed to it, it failed of action in the senate.

The senate conducted two noteworthy inquiries. Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], before the finance committee, exposed the activities of banks and financial houses in passing several billion dollars' worth of foreign securities on the American people. The banking and currency committee investigated the stock market and brought to light the activities of pools and speculators.

The world court protocols were reported to the senate, but not acted upon.

With but a few days of the session to run, assertions by foreign statesmen that American representives had given tacit consent to the Lausanne reparations agreement brought to the attention of congress once more President Hoover's policy with regard to revision of the war debts.

Despite administration assertions to the contrary, a congress almost solidly opposed to cancellation recalled that in the Hoover-Laval memorandum last fall, in inspired statements at the time of the Laval visit, and by virtue of an all but open declaration to that effect in his annual message, President Hoover had taken the attitude that if the former allies would forgive Germany in the matter of reparations the United States would be willing to open negotiations for a downward revision of the debts.

SEN. GLENN BACK; PREDICTS EARLY DRY LAW CHANGE

Friends Congratulate Him on His Fine Record.

Senator Otis F. Glenn returned from Washington yesterday still hopeful that modification of the prohibition law would be enacted by congress in the short session which convenes in December. He said he would use every effort for a reduction in the costs of government.

Help Coming for Chicago.

The emergency relief bill which was being put through its final stages yesterday affords an opportunity for "substantial help" to Chicago, the senator said, but he declined to estimate just how much. This measure provides that no state can obtain a loan of more than 15 per cent of the $300,000,000 allotment, which would allow Illinois $45,000,000 as the highest figure. Whether the top sum could be obtained is a question the senator was unable to answer. The Illinois emergency relief commission has announced that it will be forced to close its station before Aug. 1, if federal aid is not granted.

"The bill will not solve the problem by any means," said Mr. Glenn. "The Reconstruction Finance corporation bill and other relief measures have helped, although the emergency has been too great and far reaching to be met fully by the writing of laws. But it is hoped that the relief bill will aid the unemployment situation materially."

Self Liquidating Projects.

Besides what Chicago may receive from the $300,000,000 fund, the city may get help from the R. F. C. on "self liquidating" projects, the senator said. He mentioned the sanitary district reduction plants and the proposed subway as the type of projects on which loans might be made.

Senator Glenn had words of hope for the prohibition repealists and believes that a chance exists for modification by the present congress.

"When the senators and congressmen get home and talk to their constituents I believe the drys will have a change of mind," he said. "They don't appreciate the change in sentiment. There are a number who believe in temperance and I think they will find that genuine temperance is better than theoretical prohibition.

"Nearly all the exponents of prohibition were sincere and high minded in their purpose and it is difficult for them to admit the failure of their program. However, many of them already acknowledge the failure.

Repudiate Pledge.

"If the Democratic members of congress had not repudiated the pledge of their national convention, modification of the Volstead act would have passed congress at this session.

"But when the effort was made in the senate only four of the 21 Democratic senators who attended the convention and shouted wildly in acclaim of their platform, voted to bring about immediate modification. And in the house Speaker Garner—the Democratic vice presidential candidate—would not permit the question to come to a vote.

"With congress ready to adjourn the whole country will breathe a sigh of relief. Congressional veterans such as Senators Watson and Smoot say that this has been the most strenuous, exacting, and critical session in their long service, including even the world war period. Nearly all well informed people believe that America is weathering the worst storm since the civil war.

Garner's Leadership.

"The national deficit approaches three billion dollars. The house of representatives, under Speaker Garner's leadership, passed bills carrying an additional burden to the taxpayers of some four thousand million dollars, which, fortunately for the national credit, were defeated by presidential veto and by action of the senate.

"It is estimated that savings of about 700 million dollars have been made by various economies. In my judgment the next congress must proceed vigorously for severe and drastic economy. We have too much government at too great an expense. Less government and less taxes should be our slogan."

Among those who greeted the senator were United States Marshal Laubenheimer, Collector of Customs Czarnecki, State Senator James J. Barbour, State Representative Ralph E. Church, A. L. Schwartz, his law partner; Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, and Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich.

G. O. P. REVEALS TEXT OF PLANK NOT MADE PUBLIC DUE TO ERROR

This plank was adopted by the resolutions committee, and was a part of the committee report which the official report which the convention accepted, but it was not made public with the official text nor read before the convention. In the haste and confusion of giving the text to the newspapers and to the convention it was omitted, and although the mistake was discovered next day, the plank never has been generally published throughout the country. It follows:

"The Republican party recognizes that low cost of transportation for bulk commodities will enable industry to develop in the midst of agriculture in the Mississippi valley, thereby creating a home market for farm products in that section. With a view to aiding agriculture in the middle west the present administration has pushed forward, as rapidly as possible, the improvement of the Mississippi waterway system and we favor a continued vigorous prosecution of these works to the end that agriculture and industry in that great area may enjoy the benefits of these improvements at the earliest possible date."

FRIENDS CHASING NEWLYWEDS ARE NABBED BY COP

Two newlyweds escaped pursuing friends last night because the friends exceeded the speed limit in the south side outer drive and were seized by a motorcycle policeman.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the newlyweds, Warner Blackmun, 25 years old, of Indilli park, Hammond, and Mrs. Dorothy Anderson Blackmun, 22, of 7623 Eberhart avenue, secretly left their friends at the Stevens hotel where the wedding had taken place. Two groups started out in pursuit.

One car was driven by Miss Rita Lanser, 19 years old, of 6362 Ellis avenue, the other by James Emmery 22, of 41 Waltham street, Hammond a junior at Northwestern university. At 39th street and the drive Motorcycle Policeman Matt Boland, of the South Park force, saw the two autos racing along at 55 miles an hour. He caught them at 55th street. Miss Lanser was given a ticket for speeding but Emmery was held for bail on a similar charge.

GROCER SLAIN IN STORE; QUIZ WIDOW AND SON

Shot once in the head, George Carl, 44 years old, was found dead late last night in the living quarters in the rear of his grocery at 2511 South Crawford avenue. The absence of a gun in the room indicated murder police said.

Mrs. Vera Carl, 40 years old, his widow, and Dorn, 9, his son, found him on their return from a visit to Mrs. Carl's mother, Mrs. Mary Grilec, 3714 West 25th place.

Lieut. Herbert Burns, of the Lawndale station, questioned Mrs. Carl, the boy, and Mrs. Grilec. The boy told Lieut. Burns that last week his mother had said she had visited a fortune teller and that the latter had told her that "daddy would be killed by a stickup man."

NAME SENATORS TO INVESTIGATE U. S. FARM BOARD

McNary Heads Committee of Five Members.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—The names of five members of a special subcommittee to investigate the federal farm board were announced to the senate today by Senator Chas. L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the senate committee on agriculture.

Senator McNary will act as chairman. The other four members of the subcommittee will be Senators Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], Geo. W. Norris [Rad. Rep., Neb.], under whose resolution the committee will act; John B. Kendrick [Dem., Wyo.], and Burton K. Wheeler [Rad. Dem., Mont.].

The five will meet next Tuesday to make plans for the inquiry. A decision will be made at that time, it is expected, not to begin hearings until after the November elections.

Announcement of the personnel of the committee was made in the face of a brisk debate in which Senators William H. King [Dem., Utah] and Kenneth McKeller [Dem., Tenn.] were attacking the record of the board and demanding its abolition. To the pending bill before the senate, to reimburse the board for the 45 million bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton recently authorized to be turned over to the Red Cross, Senator King offered an amendment seeking to cut the farm boards' membership to three appointive members and the secretary of agriculture.

His amendment would have directed the new board to wind up the farm board's affairs as quickly as possible. The present board, said Senator King, has done its best "to clear out the treasury." Since an inquiry of the board had been promised, however, he agreed to withdraw his amendment.

COUNCILMAN DROPS DEAD.

Albion, Mich., July 16.—Charles H. Baker, 78, member of the Albion city council and police commissioner, dropped dead in his grocery store today. He had served eight years on the council and two years on the county board of supervisors.

CARLTON E. FOX ASKS COURT FOR CUT IN ALIMONY

Carlton Ernest Fox, son of Albert Fuchs, a pioneer north side real estate dealer, told Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday that he had continued to pay his wife, Gladys, $100 a month, although recently his income had dropped to $115 a month. Fox, who changed his name during the world war, was arraigned because he is $1,250 in arrears. His wife was granted $200 a month alimony when she obtained a separate maintenance decree in 1921.

"I need a reduction in that alimony order," Fox said. "My own and my father's real estate is tied up. Besides, my wife violated our separation agreement when she filed an alienation suit against my father. After four trials it was settled out of court."

Judge Trude indicated that he might reduce the alimony, but when Mrs. Fox protested he ordered her to produce witnesses to prove that her husband's income was larger than represented, and to appear before Judge Philip Finnegan when the courts open for the fall term.

CHICAGO POLES GREET HAUSNER, RESCUED FLYER

Stanislaus Hausner, Polish aviator who was rescued June 11, a week after his plane had fallen into the Atlantic ocean 600 miles from the Portuguese coast, arrived in Chicago yesterday.

He came from Cleveland in a ship of the United Air lines and is a guest of the American Polish National alliance. This organization, he said, has promised him support in a new attempt to make a nonstop flight from the United States to Poland.

Linda Lipaczynski, Polish vice consul, greeted the aviator at the Chicago airport.

Hausner was picked up from the sea by the oil tanker Circe Shell after hope that he was alive had been abandoned. He was suffering from exposure and hunger, but recovered before the rescuing ship landed him in New Orleans.

SENTENCED FOR ROBBERY.

Joseph Esposito, 22 years old, 800 South Ashland avenue, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction and fined $100 yesterday by Judge Edward B. Casey on the charge that he robbed Irwin Melsten, 1652 West Monroe street.

7,029 PAY TAX INSTALLMENTS; TOTAL $600,764

July 25 Is Deadline for First Payments.

In the first week of the operation of the installment plan of payment of 1930 taxes the county collected $600,764.96 on 7,029 bills. This was disclosed in a report made yesterday by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough.

Few large taxpayers took advantage of the plan, the treasurer reported. The average payment was $85. Many owners paid more than the 25 per cent initial payment under the plan. The balance on the 7,029 bills is $257,519.27.

Penalty Cut in Half.

Under the McDonough plan 25 per cent of the bill must be paid before July 25, when judgment is to be asked against delinquents. The balance is to be paid in three installments at 60 day intervals. The 1 per cent per month penalty is to be reduced by County Judge Jarecki by 50 per cent under the plan.

Many inquiries were received at the office from property owners delinquent on large bills. County Treasurer McDonough said he is confident many of these will make payment before the deadline of July 25. He declared the plan is proving itself a success.

The Tribune yesterday published a list of taxpayers delinquent on taxes above $10,000, according to volume No. 486 of the treasurer's rolls, who have paid no tax or only a small percentage of their bill. Some delinquents to the amount of $10,000 have paid more than 50 per cent of bills.

JARECKI EXTENDS TIME FOR FILING OF '30 TAX OBJECTIONS

The time limit for filing of objections to the 1930 real estate taxes was extended yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to July 22. Several hundred property owners jammed the corridors of the county building yesterday to get their complaints in before the deadline at noon, and 10,000 objections were filed during the day.

Sale of 600,000 parcels of Cook county real estate on which the 1930 assessments have not been paid is scheduled to start July 25. The filing of objections automatically stops the county treasurer's office from selling the property.

Objections to the taxes on approximately 400,000 parcels of real estate are expected, thus reducing the sale for taxes to 200,000 parcels, or approximately one-sixth of the property in Cook county.

Gov. Emmerson Delays Execution of Bonham

Gov. Emmerson yesterday granted a reprieve until Aug. 19 to Howard C. Bonham, who was under sentence to die in the electric chair next Friday. The stay was granted upon the recommendation of W. C. Jones, chairman of the state board of pardons, to permit further investigation of the case. Bonham was convicted of slaying Paul Tulupan, Chicago restaurant manager, on Dec. 13, 1930, in a holdup.

Death of Dentist Due to Drugs, Jury's Verdict

Dr. H. B. Neiswanger, 46 years old, a dentist of Hayes, Kas., died yesterday at the home of John F. Brent, 278 Beach street, Highland Park, where he had been visiting for several months. A coroner's jury held that death was due to drugs self-administered on Thursday. The jury was unable to determine whether the drugs had been taken accidentally.

LOOP BROKERAGE ROBBED OF $23,000 BY TWO GUNMEN

Two gunmen yesterday raided the offices of J. L. Marks & Co., investment brokers on the third floor at 30 North La Salle street, and escaped with $3,000 in cash and securities valued at $20,000. Mr. Marks, head of the company, was beaten by the bandits when he refused to open the safe and nine persons were forced to lie on the floor.

Mr. Marks said last night that the entire loss was covered by insurance and that only about 5 per cent of the stolen securities were negotiable.

The robbers first held up Mr. Marks, his son, Maynard, and a friend, Philip Shorr, and forced them into a private office with the Markses' colored chauffeur, and two janitors. One of the janitors, Redmond Sullivan, was struck on the head with a revolver when he attempted to resist. The robbers then rounded up Miss Nell McNally and Miss Betty Bennett, stenographers, and James J. McKeon, secretary of the firm, and forced them into the office.

When Mr. Marks refused to give up the keys to the safe, one of the bandits hit him with a revolver and knocked him down. He then ordered McKeon to open the safe and the employes were made to lie on the floor. The bandits took three steel boxes from the safe, emptied the contents into a cardboard box, and fled.

BUILDER MAKES HIS THIRD VISIT TO ALIMONY ROW

When Walter W. Dzierzanowski, a building contractor, entered his cell at alimony row in the county jail yesterday he was treading familiar ground. On two other occasions in the last 12 months he has been committed because he fell behind in payments under a temporary alimony order to his wife, Helen, 5248 Waveland avenue, and two children, Gertrude, 18 years old, and Casimir, 12 years old.

When Dzierzanowski appeared yesterday before Circuit Judge Craig Hood his wife explained that he had failed to pay her any alimony since she obtained a divorce two months ago. He now owes $268, she said. Judge Hood examined the court records and said:

"Judge Trude twice sent this fellow to jail and each time he was able to produce money enough to win his release. I believe that he is trifling with the court. I shall follow Judge Trude's precedent."

MRS. A. T. HERT, G. O. P. LEADER, AT PARLEY HERE

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville and Washington, titular head of the women's division of the Republican national committee, spent yesterday in Chicago conferring with Mrs. Ellis A. Yost and other members of the party at the national headquarters in the Palmer house. She left last night, but is expected to return later to participate actively in the campaigning here. Mrs. Yost will remain to direct the organizing of the women's forces until the election in November.

REPORT TO URGE ELIMINATION OF LOCAL TAX UNITS

State Survey Reveals They Are Costly.

Elimination of many of Cook county's local tax spending bodies is to be recommended by the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures in a report to the next session of the general assembly. This was revealed yesterday by State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, secretary of the commission.

"Rapid progress is being made in the field work of the commission's technical staff among the local bodies in the state," Mr. Schnackenberg declared. "We have realized that the heaviest part of the burden on the taxpayer is due to the cost of local government. A corps of specialists employed by Griffenhagen and Associates are dealing with the problem of local government in Cook county and also with the situation in counties outside Cook county.

Pays a Heavy Cost.

"E. O. Griffenhagen, director of the study, has pointed out that whereas the Chicago region is economically and socially a unit, it is being seriously hampered in its progress and is paying a heavy price in the costs of its public services by tolerating an outworn an inappropriate scheme of governmental organization, including a congeries of political subdivisions of various types and sizes and purposes separated by purely arbitrary boundaries.

"Despite a full realization of the practical legal difficulties of the situation and the probable resistance of reactionary elements and even of the possibility that citizens who have the most to gain thereby will fail to understand the advantages and the savings that a change would produce, the committee is proceeding to work out plans for reorganization.

Services Rendered.

"It intends to bring out the actual facts as to what functions of government and community services are now actually being performed in the Chicago region by Cook county, by the city of Chicago proper, by other municipalities adjoining it, by the many taxing districts within the boundaries of the city or the county, and by the numerous minor bodies that have survived a former day or that have been added from time to time to complicate the situation."

CITIZENS OF LAKE CO. ORGANIZE TO SLASH EXPENSES

Citizens of Lake county have organized to combat excessive public expenditures. This was revealed yesterday by John E. Reardon, secretary of the Waukegan school board. The new organization is known as the Government Economy League of Lake county.

The purpose of the association is to gain a general reduction in local government expenses through coöperation and constructive activities with public officials. The initial meeting was held Friday night in Libertyville.

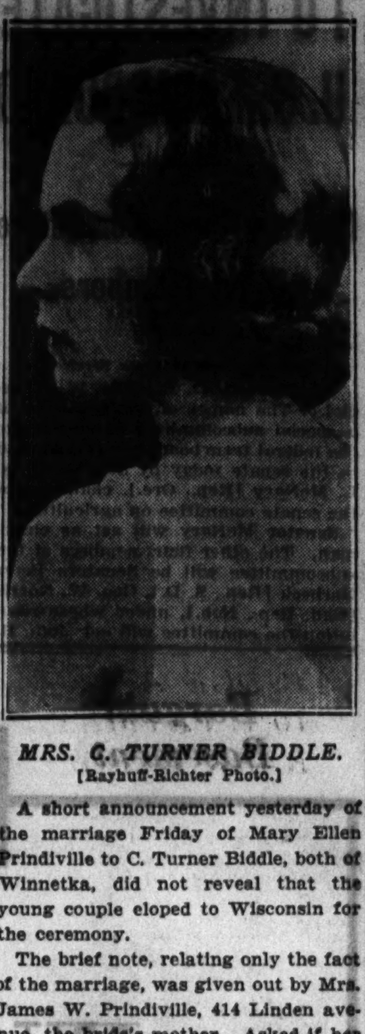
ELOPES



MRS. C. TURNER BIDDLE.

A short announcement yesterday of the marriage Friday of Mary Ellen Prindiville to C. Turner Biddle, both of Winnetka, did not reveal that the young couple eloped to Wisconsin for the ceremony.

The brief note, relating only the fact of the marriage, was given out by Mrs. James W. Prindiville, 414 Linden avenue, the bride's mother. Asked if her daughter had eloped with Mr. Biddle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Biddle, 290 Forest avenue, she referred the questioner to the announcement, refusing to go further into detail. The groom's home was then called.

"I don't know whether you would call it an elopement," said Mr. Biddle pleasantly. "But all we know is that we have a telegram from them saying that they were married. Where? Well, the telegram was from one of those funny little towns in Wisconsin. They are on their way now to Mrs. Prindiville's camp at Big Fork, Minnesota."

The bride is the daughter of the late James Winslow Prindiville, who was active in lake shipping for many years before his death in 1930. Her husband is connected with the insurance firm of W. A. Alexander, 134 South La Salle street.

EXPERT WARNS OF LIABILITY IN TAX STRIKE

In a legal opinion given out last night Hayden N. Bell, tax expert for the county, held that organized efforts to refuse or to prevent the payment of normal and legal taxes may make the leaders liable for criminal conspiracy.

His opinion was given at the request of Robert C. Keenan of 2465 East 74th place, a representative of the South Side Teachers' association. Mr. Keenan had raised the question of whether or not it is unlawful or criminal for two or more persons to join in a movement to cause taxpayers not to pay their general taxes until the state or United States Supreme court has passed on the legality of the taxes.

Mr. Bell outlined what constitutes conspiracy. This, he explained, is the concurrence of two or more persons to accomplish an unlawful object by any means or to accomplish a lawful object by unlawful means. Refusal to pay taxes, he added, tends directly to the obstruction and destruction of government.

McHENRY JURY INDICTS 55 IN MILK PRICE WAR

Dairying Association Officials Named.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Don N. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, whose 18,000 members produce most of the milk consumed in this area, and 54 other officers and members of the association were indicted yesterday by the McHenry county grand jury at Woodstock on charges of conspiracy and unlawful assembly. The charges grew out of the milk price war which raged in McHenry county last spring.

DON N. GEYER.

Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff set bonds of $3,000 each for 53 of the indicted men and $3,500 for two others. Most of those indicted are dairy farmers. The judge said they would be arraigned in about two weeks, when he has completed his court sitting in Lake county.

Charge Conspiracy.

The jury voted a total of 112 indictments. Two indictments each against 53 of the members of the association charge conspiracy and unlawful assembly. They were based upon evidence given to the grand jury by witnesses to a milk riot staged at Union, near Woodstock, on April 11. In that riot, which lasted nearly two days, several hundred pounds of milk produced by farmers not belonging to the Pure Milk association were dumped and trucks sent to gather the milk for a Chicago dairy company, the Kreml dairy, were stopped and turned back.

Another indictment against two members of the association, Clarence Bromwell and John Konicek of Will county, charged them with resisting police officers. They are charged with attacking Sheriff Lester Edinger and Chief Deputy Sheriff Harold Reese, both of whom were injured. Their bonds were set at $3,500 each.

Name Local Officials.

Named with Geyer were officials of the association's local units in Lake, McHenry, Will, and Kane counties in Illinois and in Walworth and Kenosha counties in Wisconsin. Two directors of the association, whose headquarters are at 608 South Dearborn street, Chicago, were named—Ole Stalheim of McHenry county and Harry Pfister of Lake county. Pfister is treasurer of the farm organization.

Others were John Olbrich, president of the McHenry county local, and Charles Wray, president of the Lake county local unit of the association.

While State's Attorney V. S. Lumley of Woodstock, who is confined to his home by illness, refused to reveal the evidence in detail he said it was sufficient to back up his declaration that "as prosecutor in this county I do not intend to tolerate intimidation of farmers who are entitled to market their milk unmolested."

Disorders have been frequent in the last few months among the farmers of McHenry county, which furnishes more of the Chicago milk supply than any other county.

One point of disagreement arose when several farmers declined to allow their herds to be tested for tuberculosis until compelled to do so by state law. For this attitude they were barred from membership in the Pure Milk association in 1929.

Then came the April riot, which occurred on the farm of August Thurow, an independent dairyman. Some 1,200 members of the Pure Milk association gathered there and destroyed 30 cans of milk belonging to Thurow and other independents. Konicek and Bromwell were arrested at that time. They were released on bonds of $2,000 each, furnished by Geyer on his arrival from Chicago.

Dairy Barn Burns.

Geyer settled in cash with the nonmembers for their spilt milk. The following week, however, there was a fire in the barn of George Pollock, near Union. Sixty-five pure bred Holstein cows died in the blaze and the loss was estimated at $40,000. State officials who investigated found evidence that the fire was incendiary, but no plausible motive was disclosed. Pollock was a member of the association and had been at Thurow's place during the riot, although he took no part in it.

Several months previous the barn of Isaac Lantz, a farmer who was at odds with the association, was burned near Plainfield in Will county, with a loss estimated also at near $40,000.

In addition to the other charges, State's Attorney Lumley has presented to the grand jury a claim that the milk association is treating some of its McHenry county members unfairly. The grand jury, it was announced yesterday, will meet next Friday to investigate these charges.

Successful Coöperative.

The Pure Milk association has been regarded as one of the most successful marketing coöperatives in the country. It has maintained almost a 100 per cent control of the selling by its members. Geyer is a director of the National Coöperative Milk Producers association, which has governmental support. Charles W. Holman, secretary of the national coöp, was in conference with the local association's directors this week.

Through the Pure Milk association farmers have been enabled to bargain as a unit with milk distributors since 1929, when the organization was founded. Its contracts with the distributors are carefully drawn and they provide that arbitration must be resorted to before there is any strike of the men furnishing the supply.

Three times this provision has been invoked, the arbiter being Dr. Clyde L. King of the Wharton School of Finance, Philadelphia. Last May Dr. King ordered the third reduction in retail milk prices in three years, the figure set being the present 11 cents a quart. Pints are now 7 cents.

Will C. McQueen, Kane county dairyman, is president of the association. He said yesterday that the indictments in McHenry county constituted a challenge and that the association "would fight it out to the end."

EUROPE CUSTOMS MEN SEEK COIN, NOT CONTRABAND

Money Is Inspected at Every Frontier.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 16.—It used to be—back before the world economic nightmare began—that your baggage was thoroughly searched and mauled over every time you crossed a European frontier, which was every few hours in this neck of the woods.

Not any more. Today it's your pocketbook the frontier officials want. In the scramble for your money—especially if it is "gold" money; that is dollars or francs—they have forgotten about your luggage completely.

In Germany and the states of central Europe and the Balkans it has become a grave offense to have a purse with more than a little pocket money on you. Only with a special permit from the national bank or a special stamp in your passport showing how much you have brought in (which most frontier guardsmen conveniently forget to give you) can you get by with as much as you brought in or indeed with enough to last you to the next capital.

Sidestep Czech Border.

I recently ran the gantlet from Bucharest to Berlin. I crossed three frontiers, the Rumanian-Hungarian, the Hungarian-Austrian, and the Austrian-German. At the last, going from Vienna to Berlin, it would have been shorter to go via Prague. But that meant meeting Czech officials coming in and going out and those with business to do had been duly warned that the inspection of one's purse in Czechoslovakia was sometimes very severe. One frontier skipped may have meant days and money saved, not to mention trouble.

The Orient Express coming from Bucharest to Budapest reaches the Rumanian-Hungarian frontier at 3:15 a. m. Since it is an all sleeper train, many passengers are attempting to sleep at that hour. The joke is on them as it was on me because I was trying to sleep, too.

There were loud bangs on the compartment door. Swift kicks from a horse couldn't make them any louder. I scrambled for the light, switched it on, unchained the door, and opened it.

Three plain clothes men with a couple of uniformed officers behind them crowded into the tiny compartment. I told them I didn't have anything to declare, but that they could take a look at my two bags and a typewriter if they wished to. They didn't wish to.

They Wanted His Purse.

"Your purse," shouted one—in German.

"Your purse," shouted the second one—in Hungarian.

The third said it in another language, probably Rumanian.

Anyway, I got the idea. They wanted my purse.

"What's this. A train robbery," I cried out sleepily in the first language that came to me, probably a mixture of English, German, French.

"No. It's not a robbery. It's customs inspection. Give us your purse. We want to see your money," one of them explained.

Well, so do robbers want to "see your money," and so I resisted these fellows, which is a risky business in the Balkans, where officials are not a whit less important than kings.

I explained to them that I was removing from Rumania the sum of $250 in travelers' checks, and that I had a document from the National Bank of Rumania giving me permission to do so. It impressed them, shut them up for a minute.

"And now your purse, please," they said.

We jawed back and forth in what seemed like hours, but probably was only a few minutes. The train porter came in to help me, adding a few new languages which had not been introduced before. But we were no match for these frontier men and finally in sheer exhaustion I gave in, reached for my pants, grabbed my pocketbook and turned it over, glad for a chance to rest and sleep even if my money was gone.

Money Is All There.

That really is all there is to it. After a while, about the time you are really asleep again the officials come back with your pocketbook. You wake up. You count your money. It is all there.

The train moved on a few miles. The Hungarian officials climbed in. The attack was renewed. This time I handed over my pocketbook meekly. The officials did not bother me much this time because I had the proper stamps put on my Hungarian visa when I left Hungary a few days before.

But I had a fellow passenger in the upper berth. It was his turn to catch it. He was Rumanian and, as everybody knows, there is no love lost between Rumanians and Hungarians. The officials, unfortunately, were Hungarian. My fellow passenger, like myself, thought it was a robbery, but in the end he submitted. Every one does.

He had a little of every currency good or bad. A few dollars, lei, leva, lire, pengoes, schillings [Austrian], shillings [English], crowns [Czech]. He laid it out, they all counted it, argued over it, but in the end the officials, after noting it down, let him off. After all, it isn't what you bring in a country that matters so much in these days of currency restrictions, but what you take out.

Old Story Again.

So you journey on through Budapest. And then you come to the Hungarian-Austrian frontier. The old story repeated itself. By this time my passport was swimming with figures. I pointed to some of them, gave my pocketbook again, the Hungarians counted it carefully and then returned it. Other passengers who had got on at Budapest were not so lucky. They had to turn their pengoes and schillings or dollars over to the customs officials. They can have it when they return, they are told.

The Austrian officials follow right behind their Hungarian colleagues, grabbing your purse before you have time to mark down how much money you are bringing in. When that happens you can't take it out. That's all.

Such are the pleasures of European travel in these dark days. They are hard on tourists or business men or newspaper men. But they must be great for smugglers. Nobody ever thinks to look in your bags any more.

Tells of Perils

CLARENCE M'ELROY.

RESCUED FLYER TELLS OF HORROR IN MEXICO JUNGLE

Dodged Wild Beasts for 17 Days.

MEXICO CITY, July 16.—(AP)—Little by little today, as a wavering and halting voice came back to him, Clarence McElroy, American aviator who was rescued yesterday from the deep Mexican jungle, was able to tell snatches of the horror through which he lived for 17 days.

McElroy was brought into the little town of San Geronimo yesterday by a searching party half dead from starvation, thirst and an injured leg. He had been missing since June 27 when he took off from Vera Cruz in a plane he was flying to Honduras for delivery.

Roy Gordon, American resident of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, who was flying with him, was killed in the crash, which occurred in the midst of a terrific tropical storm.

Badly Hurt in Crash.

The crash left McElroy badly hurt, without food or water, with no knowledge of Spanish or of how to combat or escape the deadly perils of a tropical jungle. He tried to arrange the wreckage to protect the body of his companion as well as possible from the jungle beasts. This done, he made a crude attempt to dress his injured leg and then struck out westward, knowing the low mountain range and civilization lay beyond.

Constantly on the alert to escape snakes, wild beasts, and disease, and fighting off tropical insects, McElroy crawled his painful way through the tangled thicket. He estimates that he only covered four miles in nearly three weeks of crawling.

Although he said he believed the wreckage of the plane was only four miles' distant from where he was found, searching parties had not located it after a full day.

Saved By Indian.

One of McElroy's first acts last night as he slowly regained his voice was to offer a generous reward to Melardo Enriques, the Indian hillman who stumbled over his exhausted body in the jungle late Thursday and saved his life. He had reached the limit of his endurance, he said, and he believed death was close at hand.

McElroy's first agonized request, made by signs, was for water. He was given milk and cheese by the relief expedition and later put on a strict diet. He constantly called for more water.

The aviator said that he would have died of thirst except that he was able to catch small quantities of rain water during the frequent tropical downpours. He obtained some nourishment from fruits, but he was in constant fear he would select some poisonous fruit.

BRAND AUSTRIAN ACCEPTANCE OF LOAN, 'SELLOUT'

Parties Protest Terms of League Aid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, July 16.—Austria's "sellout" to the league of nations in return for a $43,000,000 loan, $16,000,000 of which it receives in cash, brought a storm of protests from both right and left parties today.

In fact, it became extremely doubtful whether the Austrian parliament would accept the league's "gift." Socialists, comprising the largest group in parliament, and Pan-Germans were angered when they learned that Austria had agreed in return for the loan to maintain independence for another 20 years.

Favor Union with Germany.

Both groups favor union with Germany or at least a customs union such as the world court vetoed last year. They admitted tonight that the terms of the new loan will kill the chances of an "anschluss" for twenty years. Their view is that Austria can never be a self-supporting nation and that union with Germany is inevitable within the next ten years unless France and Great Britain keep the country artificially alive with loans such as was granted yesterday.

Lacking only one vote in parliament to kill ratification of the loan, Socialists and Pan-Germans said that they are confident of picking up the stray vote which would enable them to reject the league's loan conditions.

With the exception of government organs, the press evinced no appreciation of the league's generosity in granting the loan.

Austria Made "League Colony."

"For a few millions we sell our liberty and become a league colony," the conservative and radical papers complained.

"We were not paying foreign debts anyway, but now we sell our independence to France or Britain in order to borrow money from them to pay back what we owe them," the Socialist organ asserted.

Of the $43,000,000 credit, $27,000,000 would be paid to the Bank of England and is for converting short term into long term loans.

"They said we get the loan to save us from bankruptcy, but now we get both—the loan and a transfer moratorium which amounts to bankruptcy," the Allgemeine-Zeitung said.

Germany Protests Terms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 16.—"Austria is compelled to sell her freedom for $16,000,000," complained the German press today in criticizing the "political conditions" imposed on Austria in return for the loan by the league of nations. The loan was for $43,000,000, but only $16,000,000 was in cash.

Political circles in Germany are particularly angered over the loan terms which would postpone the possibility of an Austro-German union for twenty years. The Kreuz Zeitung caustically commented on the "new era of understanding which Lausanne was supposed to initiate and which has worked out in this form."

The Wilhelmstrasse took pains to explain that Germany withheld its vote for the loan at Geneva but withheld further protest because Austria indicated she would suffer a complete financial collapse without help.

JUDGE APPROVES 10% PAYMENT TO BANK DEPOSITORS

A 10 per cent payment to depositors in the closed Sheridan Trust and Savings bank was authorized yesterday by Circuit Judge Joseph Burke. The payment, totaling $384,000, will be the first to be made since the bank closed on June 8, 1931.

Receiver Ernest Ridgeway explained that the delay in this first dividend was due to an obligation of $1,750,000 to the First National bank. This obligation has been reduced to $213,000 and the First National bank has agreed to defer the balance until depositor claims have been partly satisfied.

Checks to depositors will be sent out soon, the receiver said.

FLAMING YOUTH.

The other day President Hutchins of the University of Chicago addressed some remarks to the young Democracy. The Democratic platform had not yet been drafted and Mr. Hutchins was offering suggestions. He went so far as to present a platform in 500 words, a platform which he put forward in the name of the youth of the land.

The Hutchins platform was almost indistinguishable from the political principles of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, now in his seventy-first year. There were differences, but not important ones. The young Democrats lean a little more toward federal relief than do the elderly Republicans; the young Democrats are therefore an inch or two to the left of the elderly Republicans, but no more.

If Mr. Hutchins' speech had been nothing more than another speech on party policies it would scarcely deserve attention. The remedies he proposes are the old stuff of political controversy in this country. Some of them have been fought over for seventy-five years and more. If youth is expected to produce new ideas to meet new situations, and it is, what Mr. Hutchins had to offer was nearly negligible. He was prophesying over dead bones without the prophet's success in breathing life into them. Nevertheless, his speech was important, if not for what he said, then for the spirit which animated it.

Youth has always been abused for its profligacy, but seldom has it been abused as in this generation. Perhaps there has been some justification in fact for the tirades directed against young men and women on moral grounds, but if so, the case is hard to prove and for our part we don't put much stock in it. A much more substantial accusation against the youth of the land, and this can be demonstrated, stresses political indifference, not to say incapacity. Twenty years ago young men were smashing their way into political leadership in the Bull Moose movement. At about the same time young women were putting up a real battle for the vote and winning it. Historians who study these two movements as if they contained nothing more than political programs will miss much of the real meaning. The Progressive party amounted to something because young men were ambitious and wanted to crowd the elder statesmen off the bench and, it might be added, succeeded in some measure in doing so. The women, and particularly the young women in the suffrage movement, had much the same ambition. This desire to seize power is as wholesome as it is often cruel. It is an evidence of self-confidence, and as long as it is found in youth there is reason to believe that we're not on the toboggan.

Mr. Hutchins' address to the young Democracy was reassuring because it indicated that there are young men in this country who are politically ambitious, a fact of which the world had hitherto been pretty largely unaware. There are, of course, young men who vote the Democratic ticket and young men who vote the Republican ticket, but they haven't been going places. Perhaps that is the fault of their early education, which has been intrusted almost exclusively to women unaccustomed to thinking politically. Perhaps the disrepute into which politics has fallen has had something to do with it. Probably the Utopian nonsense of much that is taught in the higher institutions has soured the oncoming generation.

At any rate, youth ought to be demanding its place in the sun. It ought to be irritated at its elders for hanging around and holding all the good jobs, thus blocking men just as good or better from receiving their heritage. Youth ought to be vexed by its restraints. It ought to be conscious of the tyranny of parents and teachers. If it isn't, the fact suggests spinelessness and decadence, whether the young man in question is rich or poor. The poor boy ought to be stung by his poverty and the rich boy by the fact that he is dependent on his father and therefore in a subservient position. A crown prince who doesn't grow restive as the years pass isn't going to make much of a king.

Mr. Hutchins got some of that wholesome impatience into his address. It is, of course, a little odd that Mr. Hutchins should have become the spokesman of frustrated and impatient youth. At the age of 33 he stands at the head of his institution. He is the boss and the graybeards must come to him for advice and for approval of their plans. He is spending the money which Mr. Rockefeller and other old men have intrusted to him. He has less reason to complain of the tyranny of age than any other man in the United States of his years. He is the last man that an economic determinist would have picked to lead the political revolt of youth. The question arises whether even he, with all the independence of action which he has won for himself, thinks that he is held down by old men's stupidity, folly, and excesses of caution.

The speech suggests that he does. We hope so, because with that driving force he will not be content with one speech. He will continue to inveigh against the elder statesmen until, perhaps, he has whipped the young men into resentment and action. The nation today has need of all the energy and idealism which youth can bring to it.

PROTECTING DRY STATES.

One of the objections advanced by official prohibitionists against outright repeal of the 18th amendment is that it would leave the prohibition states at the mercy of the revived liquor traffic. This objection has a foundation in past experience. Although the Supreme court held seventy-five years ago that the interstate commerce clause did not prevent a state from prohibiting the transport of liquor into the state, the court in 1890 decided that the states had not authority to prohibit sales in "original packages." The result was the establishment in dry states of original package saloons. Congress took cognizance of this situation by passing the Wilson measure which authorized the states to regulate, in effect to prohibit, the original package scheme, and this law was held constitutional. But the Wilson act a few years later was held by the Supreme court to be inoperative until the original package had reached the purchaser or consignee. The effect of this was to protect direct-shipment shipments to the consumer. To meet this evasion the Webb-Kenyon act was passed in 1913 and held constitutional in 1917. It prohibited the shipment or transportation in any manner of liquor into any state in violation of the law of that state. In 1917 this was followed by the Reed amendment, which provided penalties for "whoever shall order, purchase, or cause intoxicating liquor to be transported in interstate commerce, except for scientific, sacramental, medicinal or mechanical purpose," into any state prohibiting the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages.

Strong legal authority holds that these laws would be restored to full force and effect if the 18th amendment were repealed, but prohibitionists argue that they are after all merely statutes existing by the will of congress and subject to repeal by any majority of that body. They therefore demand that dry states should be protected by a constitutional provision.

The opposition to prohibition, even that part of it which disapproves of any interference with private habit as mischievous, would not seriously oppose this demand if it were properly formulated. For example, Dr. Noel Dowling, Nash professor of law in the Columbia university law school, writing to the New York Times, offers a suggestion worthy of serious consideration. He proposes the following amendment:

"Section 1. The 18th amendment is hereby repealed.

"Section 2. The power of the several states to regulate the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors within, or the transportation thereof into or out of, the states shall not be limited by the clause of the constitution conferring power on the congress to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes, nor by any law made in pursuance thereof."

This, Prof. Dowling contends, would free the states from the obstruction to state regulatory or prohibitory legislation which in the past has arisen under interpretation of the interstate commerce clause of the constitution. It would also protect them from congressional interference. "In other respects," says Prof. Dowling, "it would leave the commerce power of congress as it is now, with ample range for its exercise consistently with or in aid of state policy. It would not affect the federal taxing power nor treaty power. It is aimed at the source of the states' difficulties" and more than restores the status quo auto. It would give them a new freedom in self-protection.

Such an amendment seems fairly to meet any reasonable desire of state prohibitionists for the protection of their system within dry states. It will not appease prohibitionists who wish to impose their system upon communities which do not approve it. Prohibitionism of the fundamentalist order is a quasi-religious emotion which aspires to save the individual from his own weakness or error and would employ the force of federal law to impose its code of virtue regardless of the conscience and will of the individuals or of the communities which do not willingly adopt it. The essence of national prohibition is in this, and any scheme for permitting a nonprohibition state to be free from the prohibitory decree will be unsatisfactory and sinful. But we think this sect of prohibitionist is a minority and the time for rational compromise at hand. There is sound objection both on grounds of principle and on grounds of expediency against even state prohibition, but the opposition to national prohibition is willing, we are confident, to waive it. There is no serious disposition among opponents of national prohibition to impose their will upon the states in which prohibitory statutes are enacted or may be enacted. The notion that congress would overrule state policy does not seem to us plausible, but if it is feared we think the fear should be removed, if necessary by constitutional provision.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.

About twenty years ago the interstate commerce commission was charged with the duty of valuing all railway property. This project was inspired by the popular political theory that the railways were grossly overcapitalized and full of "watered stock." The result, it was contended, was exorbitant rates and swollen profits. The idea, expressed in a provision of the commerce act, was to correct this intolerable evil by an examination into real investments and property, the conclusions of which would serve as a basis for a future rate making strictly limited to a fair return on a proper capitalization.

So in 1913 the commissioners took off their coats and went to work. The work is not yet done. It has cost, it is estimated, about one hundred and seventy-eight million dollars, of which the public through appropriations to the commission has contributed about forty millions and the railways about one hundred and thirty-eight. In the meantime, especially since 1929, values have taken the most spectacular nose dive in our financial history. Conclusions, it would seem, would have to be drastically modified.

The project was highly plausible in 1913, at least to those influenced by the eloquence of the politicians who were exploiting the shippers' discontent and the sentiment always prevailing among some part of the public against any large enterprise. But the public has paid for the experiment rather heavily, directly and indirectly. Not only has it cost a diversion of time and strength of the commission which was needed for their complicated and onerous duty of rate regulation but 178 million dollars which might have been more profitably spent either by taxpayers or the railroads has been absorbed in an effort that after twenty years has brought none of the results expected. In the boom times such an expenditure was not noticed by the public, but in present circumstances it may remind us that the interventions by government in private enterprise ought to be carefully examined before adoption.

THE FACES IN THE POLITICAL NEWS REEL

THE CAMPAIGN will need some help from Hollywood, although not from Mickey Mouse. It's too obvious already that the training camps will produce their own animated cartoons, but the boys will need the Hollywood makeup specialists who know how to keep the human face at least no less than human for the camera. A smear of ocher is one requirement which may not be needed by Democratic senators absconding from their beer pledge. If the statesmen are to campaign by news reel, as the indications already are, they'd better add the makeup table to the political baggage. Senator Barkley, the well known keynoter, is admittedly in life a Demosthenic exhibit of manly grace and beauty, but no one touched him up for the news reel. A camera close-up would have made the leonine features of Daniel Webster like nothing but the map of a much magnified chipmunk with the scurvy and the mumps. The statesmen should prepare for the camera or keep out of it. They are frightening the people for the safety of the republic. It is the twitching face of Demos issuing words. Everybody's scared enough without this.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE OF CHROMOSOMES

NORMAN THOMAS, Socialist candidate for President, as an intelligent man knows that what keeps a free suffrage country going are the hereditary genes in the chromosomes. A nation which derives all its government from frequent voting under the stimulation of universal suffrage by excitable politicians survives because the essentials of national conduct have been transmitted from father to son for generation after generation. Its security is in the cradle. Peoples who have not been thus prepared blow up when they try popular government and representative democracy. Parties and political ideas flow along on this current of inherited conduct. Some ideas can trouble the current, but it washes them out. The Socialist state has none of this hereditary preparation. Mr. Thomas must not only win an election. He must change the inheritance. Comrade Zack Foster knows this and, knowing that it could not be done, he thinks Mr. Thomas is a fool for trying. The Red way is not to vote it up but shoot it up.

THE DOCTORIAL RECRUITS

JOHN DEWEY, Robert Lovett, and other doctorial politicians who have adopted Mr. Thomas are, it is to be feared, charlatans. Mr. Thomas' postulates are not primarily those of indignation. His idea that another order of society would work and would be better does not have birth in a fit of impatience with, for instance, Mr. Hoover. He doesn't think Mr. Roosevelt would almost do, but turns away from him because he won't quite. Dr. Dewey, and a philosopher he is, concludes that his own sentiments are outraged and resolves to find an emotional release in a burnt offering of other people's private property. A belief that human instincts can be turned into a new hereditary channel and that full coöperation for general good instead of competition for self-interest will be made man's nature doesn't get any creditable foundation in a rage at Insull's exodus, Ford's closed shops, Bain's busted banks, or Simmy Fess' beatitudes. Some of Mr. Thomas' recruits must give him private amusement, but then he gives Commissar Zack even more.

ZACK AND HIS SNICKESNACK

COMMISSAR ZACK would divide Mr. Thomas into two unequal portions as soon as the head lopping started. The commissar might recognize the doctorial politicians as negligible helots and set them to carrying water, but Mr. Thomas would get different treatment. To the comrade the biggest fool in the world is the menchevist, the half-way fellow who is waiting for the genes in the chromosomes to produce a different type of citizenship. Kerensky is worse than Nicholas. So off with his head. Comrade Zack Foster knows that the change, if he is to get any benefit from it, must be made by force and that the resulting social order is not to satisfy Dr. Dewey's, or any other doctorial, idea of equalitarian equity. It is to produce a dictatorship in the interest of persons who can get the upper hand with machine guns and cannot get it in free competition. Zack is in the campaign as a candidate for President, but that is a soviet laugh. The communists do not make the mistake of grafting the commissars on democracy, adult suffrage, or representative assemblies. Dr. Dewey's importance to Foster would be that of hymn singer unless the commissar carelessly concluded that the doctor must know something about bots and consequently earmarked him for a collectivist stock farm.

RUSSIA TRUE TO HEREDITY

RUSSIA WAS actually prepared by heredity for what it got under Lenin and Stalin. It was not necessary to change human nature, merely the icons, substituting the hammer and sickle for the cross. Coercion, to exercise it or submit to it, was the Russian birthright. The social order had not contained any manhood privileges and it continued not to contain them. The beneficiaries of compulsion were changed, but not the habit. The fellows who went from under and into the dictatorship were on top instead of being underneath. Goods changed hands with power, but primal ideas and habits of life didn't. The Cossacks changed from the livery of the czar to the livery of the commissars. The victim might note the difference.

THE PRESIDENCY A HARD JOB.

SIX Presidents of the United States died when less than 60 years of age. These, and their ages at death, were: Garfield, 50; Polk, 54; Lincoln and Arthur, 56; McKinley and Harding, 58. Of these, one-half—Polk, Arthur, and Harding—died from natural causes.

Eight were between 60 and 70 years. These were: Roosevelt, 61; Grant, 63; Wilson, 65; Taylor, 66; Washington and Johnson, 67, and the two Harrisons at 68.

The same number were in the next decade of life when death arrived. They were: Hayes and Cleveland, 71; Tyler, 72; Monroe, 73; Fillmore, 74; Pierce, 75; Buchanan, 77; Jackson, 78.

Four were between 80 and 90, these being Van Buren, 80; John Quincy Adams, 81; Jefferson, 83, and Madison, 85. John Adams lived beyond four score and ten, dying at 91.

The rule, to which there are a few exceptions, was that the earlier occupants of the presidential chair reached ripe old age, and the later ones died when younger. The average age at death was 69.1. The mean age was 68.5. Counting William Henry Harrison as on the older side of the dividing line, we find that all of those in that group occupied the presidential office prior to 1860 except Hayes and Cleveland. Of those who died at ages below the average or mean—whichever we use—all occupied the office after 1860 with the exceptions of Washington, Polk, and Taylor.

When the republic was young it held to the custom of electing elderly men to the presidency. The average age of the group of Presidents occupying the office prior to 1861 was 58 years at the time they entered office. One was 68, four others were over 60, one was 49, and another was 50. Those starting after 1860 had an average age of 52, or a drop of six years. Not one was over 60, though two were 57. Three were less than 50. One was 43.

In spite of the fact that in the second group we selected younger men for the presidency, the period of survival after undertaking the duties has decreased. The earlier group lived an average of seventeen years after entering on the duties of the office and thirteen and one-half years after laying them aside. The corresponding figures for the later group are twelve and less than eight years, respectively. From the second group we omit those who died from violence.

The meaning of these comparative figures is that since 1860 the job of being President has been far more strenuous. The work now is so hard that it exhausts even vigorous young men. Our Presidents no longer suffer from smallpox and malaria, but the load of work and worry is beyond human endurance. A young, vigorous man takes up the job. An old, worn man leaves it. Rarely do we have more than one living ex-President to serve as a senior counselor.

SUGAR CAUSED RASH.

Mrs. E. H. S. writes: When our girl was one year old she was afflicted with an eczema. We tried all kinds of salves and she would be better one day and worse the next. We were at a loss to know what to do, for we followed her feeding schedule closely and, physically, she was a perfect specimen. I decided to try experimenting. I made out a chart each day of the foods she ate at each meal and just how the rash looked night and morning. Every two days I would eliminate one certain food from the diet and note the effect on the rash. I went through the entire list of foods she ate, with no improvement until I eliminated sugar, when the rash disappeared instantly. She is now 4 years old and eats everything a child her age should, but we still go lightly on sugar.

REPLY.

Your plan was a good one. Some one of the sugars is the offending food in a fair proportion of cases. About twenty years ago a German specialist rated the sugars as the principal causes.

CURED BY QUITTING SALT.

Mrs. L. P. writes: Will you suggest a remedy or treatment for bed wetting in a 15 year old boy who has been afflicted since infancy? I have tried patent medicines and use little liquids after 3 p. m.

REPLY.

A business man tells me of a personal experience which is worth trying. As a young man he had a group of urinary troubles, of which bed wetting was the most disagreeable. A doctor placed him in a hospital and put him on a low salt diet. He stayed in the hospital long enough to become accustomed to the taste of salt free butter and unsalted foods generally. When he stopped eating salted foods his enuresis ceased.

TALKS IN SLEEP.

Miss R. K. writes: Is there any cure for talking in the sleep? I am 18 years old and talk every night. I never eat before going to bed.

REPLY.

The most important factors in this condition are nervousness, emotionalism, excitability, and discomfort. To cure the trouble train yourself to be calm, cold, dispassionate. Never indulge in excitement or emotional outbreaks. Go to bed at peace with the world. Sleep in a comfortable bed.

WATER AND TEETH.

Dr. B. A. W. writes: I don't know how it is elsewhere, but in our town the teeth that are mottled are those in which there is least decay. Our public water supply is held to be responsible for mottling. We advise mothers to give their children boiled cistern water until they have cut their incisor teeth. In that way objectionable mottling is prevented. We advise them to give the school children (and they have cut their incisors) water from the public water system in order to protect their teeth from decay.

SEE A SPECIALIST.

J. V. writes: I read in the sun for a few days and nothing happened until upon waking one morning I was surprised to find that I could hardly see with one eye. This was due to the sun, I believe. Everything seems blurred. Will I lose the sight of that eye? How long will it take to go away? Is there anything I could do to cure it?

REPLY.

Have an eye specialist examine your eye and base answers to your questions on what is found. Many persons are blind in one eye and do not know it. Of course, glare is harmful.

RECOVERY DOUBTFUL.

Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A party recently took bankruptcy proceedings. In the final settlement, before the full amount had been paid by the receiver to the one taking advantage of the law—there being some left after all debts were paid—the bank in which the receiver had deposited the money closed its doors. Does the bond the receiver filed cover this and if so, what procedure should be taken to collect same? How long will it take to collect?

S. C. P.

It seems probable that the matter was handled in such a way that there can be no recovery. If you wish to pursue the point you should first ascertain in whose name the deposit was made and the wording of the bond. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRAFFIC LAWS.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What are the various speed limits throughout Chicago? 2. Is it illegal to park on Chicago streets at night with no parking lights? 3. Is it illegal to drive over a street car safety zone when there are no people on it? T. M.

1. In the built up business portion of a city, 15 miles per hour. In the residence portion, 20 miles an hour. Outside the business and residence portions, 25 miles per hour. Outside the city limits, 45 miles per hour. These limits are not absolute. The statute prohibits driving at a speed greater than is reasonable and a speed in excess of the above named limits shall be prima facie evidence that the operator is running at a greater speed than is reasonable.

OFFENSIVE TO NEIGHBORS.

Chicago, July 6.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a vacant lot next to us on Lake Park avenue where every one in the neighborhood comes to burn rubbish, making an awful thick smoke and a bad odor which comes into my kitchen. The garage nearby cleans up the floors with some kind of mixture absorbing all the grease and oil and this is burned on the lot, so you can understand why I am almost compelled to live with my doors and windows shut.

A. S.

Report is made that store and garage owners have been notified to discontinue practice complained of and location will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with.

MORTGAGE INTEREST.

Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise whether interest money deposited in a bank which failed in June can be re-collected when contract on mortgage called for interest to be deposited in said bank. Interest has been paid up to date and it means the security of a hard working woman and her family.

E. L. H.

It seems probable that the wording was that the interest coupons were payable at the bank, which was a very different thing from authorizing you to deposit the money in absence of the coupons. It seems probable that you must stand the loss. We could advise to better advantage if the wording in question and the facts as to whether your coupons were at the bank, or your deposit was otherwise authorized, were before us.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 17, 1916.

LONDON.—News has been received here that the Portuguese government has equipped an army with everything necessary to enable it to fight side by side with the Anglo-French armies and that this army is ready to answer the call whenever required.

LONDON.—The Anglo-French troops are now only one mile from Combles, which, prior to July 1, when the allies' offensive began, was the German headquarters on this sector. The French have recaptured La Maisonnette and Biaches, in the Somme sector, which were taken by the Germans last night during a heavy fog. Northeast of Verdun the French made considerable progress to the west and south of Fleury. In the Champagne sector the Russians have joined with the French in attacking the Germans. These Russians are part of the czar's forces which landed in Marseilles last spring after a perilous trip from Vladivostok.

PETROGRAD.—Russian troops have captured the town of Baiburt, in Turkish Armenia, by assault. Baiburt is sixty-five miles northwest of Erzerum and about sixty miles south of the Black sea port of Trebizond.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An effort is to be made this week to have congress take a hand in straightening out the National Guard tangle, both in the home state of the guard and along the Mexican border. Congressman Madden will start the ball rolling by introducing a resolution in the house requesting from President Wilson a complete statement concerning the mobilization of the guard and its present distribution in concentration camps and along the Mexican border.

CHICAGO.—Sunday outings and the heat cost eight lives yesterday. Six of the victims met death by drowning at Chicago's beaches and neighboring resorts. The maximum temperature for the day was 88, at noon.

CHICAGO.—Norman Walt Harris, founder of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and a member of the banking firms which bear his name in New York and Boston, died at his summer home on the shore of Lake Geneva, Wis. He lacked a month of being 70 years old. He was first stricken with heart trouble last April in Japan and immediately started to return to the United States. His son, Albert W. Harris, accompanied him to Chicago. Mr. Harris was a trustee of Northwestern university and made large gifts to the endowment fund of the institution. Last December he presented the university with the Harris Hall of Political Science and History, costing, with the endowment he also gave, $250,000. He gave large sums to Wesley Memorial hospital and founded the Harris School for Nurses. Another gift was that of $250,000 for the establishment of the N. W. Harris public school extension of the Field museum. In addition to these he gave $100,000 to endow the Harris foundation for retired deaconesses of the Methodist Episcopal church and was the largest giver toward the Chicago Training School for Foreign Missions, at 50th street and Indiana avenue. He was born in Becket, Mass., and came to Chicago in 1882.

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION.

Baldwin, Mich., June 28.—In THE TRIBUNE of yesterday is an article concerning the American Federation of Teachers' convention and the purpose of the organization to petition congress for "federal aid" for our public schools. It is stated that 13,000 communities in the United States last year were unable to finance their school budgets.

I was surprised to learn that this organization has a "legislative agent" in Washington—Miss Selma Borchardt. She is quoted in support of the policy of "federal aid" as saying:

"Was it socialism when we fed the starving children of Belgium? Was it communism when we rehabilitated the schools of France? It is a fundamental American principle to help those in need wherever they are, and to safeguard the interests of children. We demand that state rights be maintained by local administration of federal funds, but we also demand that congress help American children as it has helped those abroad."

It is generally assumed that school teachers, more than any other class, know something of history, and, particularly, that they have learned something of our political traditions, our dual form of government, the national strictly limited in its powers and the states retaining all powers not delegated; that they have learned of the vital principle of local self-government as an essential bulwark against a consolidated despotism. But no such knowledge can be discerned in Miss Borchardt's statement.

Our taxes were used—though irregularly—to feed the Belgians. Our taxes were not used to rehabilitate the schools of France; there is no constitutional power in congress to apply our taxes to such purposes. But even if they were thus unconstitutionally used it would be no argument in behalf of further unconstitutional use in aid of the public schools of the state. Miss Borchardt's argument is like that of the League of Women Voters in behalf of federal aid to maternity—millions are spent in the states to care for the farmers' hogs, they say; why shouldn't the federal government spend as much for our babies?

The answer, of course, is that federal spending on hogs is wholly unconstitutional, as is its spending on child health.

It is not a fundamental principle of American government to help those in need anywhere, as Miss Borchart asserts; on the contrary, it is a fundamental principle that the federal government leave the people alone everywhere, to stand on their own feet. As Cleveland said in vetoing a "drought relief" bill in 1887, "The lesson should be constantly enforced, that though the people support the government, the government should not support the people."

The objects to which congress may appropriate our taxes are strictly limited by the constitution, and education is not one of those objects. Notwithstanding, congress has, in fact, appropriated hundreds of millions for education in the states, particularly in the state agricultural colleges. It is sheer usurpation of power. Congress now appropriates our taxes for any purpose it sees fit. That explains the $2,500,000,000 federal deficit, our crushing taxes and the stagnation of trade and industry, with our 8,000,000 unemployed. George Tichnor Curtis, in his "Constitutional History of the United States," discussing the limited objects to which congress may appropriate our taxes, says:

"All the property of the country may be taxed for the legitimate objects of taxation. If one of those legitimate objects is individuals or masses or classes or the whole people, the two houses of congress and any President acting together can divide up all the property in the country upon the plea that a general division will promote welfare. By this process this government could devour itself and there would be nothing left for it to subsist upon."

Miss Borchardt tells us state rights will be maintained by local administration of federal funds, but in practice "federal aid" has always elevated a federal bureaucrat to control in the field that was "aided." And the U. S. commissioner of education, with his department already divided into a rural schools division, a city schools division, and a higher education division, is biding his time until the Teachers' federation puts over "federal aid." Then, at last, all schools receiving "aid" will make "reports" to him. Next will come absolute federal control of our public school system, as it came to our "state" agricultural colleges, with uniform censored and doctored textbooks, for the regimentation of our 29,000,000 school children.

In seeking "federal aid" for our public schools these teachers are, consciously or unconsciously, seeking to destroy local self-government and change our form of government into a bureaucratic despotism. Every advocate of the policy merits instant dismissal from his or her job.

A FAN ANNOYED.

Chicago, July 5.—Sunday's advertised double header at Wrigley field should never have been started. All the front office was interested in was to play off the required 4½ innings so that the game would be on the right side of the ledger. I wonder how much longer the fan is going to kick into the coffers of the baseball trust. I have been a Cub fan since the old west side days and I'm for the team 100 per cent, but I'll be darned if I'll pay 28 cents an inning for organized league baseball. We have been taking it on the chin for years. We paid the tax in addition to the admission price and paid it smilingly. However, there's a limit even to the best of our good nature.

HARRY LEWIS.

SPLITTING THE DEMOCRATS.

Chicago, July 5.—When Mayor Cermak and Judge Henry Horner decided to cast their lot with the Roosevelt faction and vote the Illinois delegation in favor of the weakest candidate of the Democratic party they subscribed to an action which must inevitably result in political extinction for themselves in Cook county.

The steadfast love and admiration in the hearts of the majority of the Democratic constituency in this county for Alfred Emanuel Smith cannot be atrophied by a declaration of the party leadership. Rather, the seeming betrayal of the popular sentiment of the rank and file will incur an enmity which will crystallize into an openly militant spirit of antagonism before the next election.

DISCREDITED BY WHOM?

Grinnell, Ia., July 5.—THE TRIBUNE must have lost all sense of humor. A short time ago it was ridiculing the people of Tennessee for not allowing the teaching of evolution in the public schools. Now it is trying to shut off the funds from the great universities for not teaching the old English John Stuart Mill-William G. Sumner political economy, now thoroughly discredited, which THE TRIBUNE worships.

CHARLES A. MILLER.

BANK RECEIVERS.

Chicago, July 6.—I noticed from an article in your paper that fifteen receivers were appointed by the state auditor. Most of them were ex-bankers whose banks had been closed and whose former means of employment was as butchers, barbers, saloonkeepers, etc., and then they are given the receivership of banks when they couldn't run their own. How are they to give us poor people a fair chance to get at least some of our own money back?

A. J.

PROBABLY.

Chicago, July 4.—I want to vote the Democratic ticket. If I wrote the name of Mr. Alfred E. Smith on the ballot in November instead of Roosevelt, would my vote count as official?

GOVERNOR DENIES 'LIFE FOR A PINT' VICTIM A PARDON

Lansing, Mich., July 16.—[Special.]—Gov. Wilber M. Brucker has definitely refused to extend further executive clemency to Fred Palm, Lansing's erstwhile "life for a pint" law victim who is still in Jackson prison serving out a commuted 7½ to 15 year sentence.

Denied Full Pardon.

A. Stanley Copeland, Buffalo, N. Y., resident, who carried Palm's case to the United States Supreme court in an effort to free him before the expiration of his sentence, revealed today that he has received a letter from Gov. Brucker denying Copeland's application for a full pardon for Palm.

It recited the history of the case, declaring it to be evident if Palm had not been induced to plead guilty to possession of a pint of gin found in his home while he was absent from the city he could not have been convicted. It is pointed out that the Lansing man has already served over 4½ years.

"Reproach to People."

"We believe," the petition stated, "that the long imprisonment of this man for such a trivial cause is a reproach to the people of this state and earnestly desire that such continued injustice be ended."

The governor explains, in denying the request, that various courts have passed on the case without finding reason for releasing the man. He admits that he has not as yet granted a pardon during his term in office.

White Man Given Life for Burning Negroes to Death

Coffeeville, Miss., July 16.—(AP)—Arthur Cook, 31, a farmer, is under a life sentence today for the torch slayings of Lewis Bryant, a Negro, and his 15 year old son. Bryant and his son were saturated with oil and burned to death after two white men tortured them into revealing the hiding place of the family's life savings.

VENICE, Italy, July 16.—(AP)—Three ensigns in the Italian navy were killed and thirteen sailors wounded in the explosion today of a six inch gun aboard the 10,000 ton cruiser Triest. The accident occurred in the Adriatic during naval maneuvers as the gun was being loaded.

ORDERS INQUIRY INTO DRY RIOT IN NEW YORK TOWN

Woodcock Sends Special Investigator to Scene.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Amos W. W. Woodcock, federal director of prohibition enforcement, today ordered a special investigator from his office to proceed at once to the scene of recent dry raid riotings at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., and submit a complete report as soon as possible. The name of the investigator sent from Washington is German Ellsworth.

Five Injured So Far.

Mr. Ellsworth will coöperate at Alexandria Bay with Andrew McCampbell, administrator for New York state, in working up the Woodcock report. Thus far, according to Mr. Woodcock's office, no suspensions have followed in the wake of a situation at Alexandria Bay which thus far has resulted in injury to two dry agents and three residents of the village.

Woodcock acted after appeals for sane enforcement methods had been telegraphed to Secretary of the Treasury Mills, department of justice officials and New York members of congress.

Two Senators Denounce Action.

"Would request all possible efforts on your part," G. J. Savaga, secretary of the city's chamber of commerce, telegraphed Washington officials, "to secure enforcement of the nation's laws in a manner suitable to the dignity of the United States."

Senators Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], and Royal C. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], denounced the action of the federal agents today.

LIQUOR RACKETEER IS HELD IN IOWA FOR SLAYING 8 YEARS AGO

Davenport, Ia., July 16.—[Special.]—Norman O. Luce, liquor racketeer, occupied a cell in the Scott county jail here today, facing a charge of murder.

Luce was returned here early today from Los Angeles, Cal., to stand trial for the killing of Ethel Collicott, used car dealer, in Davenport eight years ago.

Sought since 1924 for the slaying of Colicott in an attempted robbery, Luce evaded arrest until ten days ago, when he was picked up in Los Angeles. Burglar tools were found in his possession.

U. S. Dry Agent Who Shot Fleeing Man Exonerated

Omaha, Neb., July 16.—(AP)—Wounded in the right leg when he attempted to flee from a trap set by federal prohibition agents, Adam Baudo of Omaha, was recuperating today. Harry Pound, the agent who shot Baudo, was exonerated by Deputy Phohibition Administrator Harold Wilson when he reported he shot Baudo accidentally after Baudo had tried to escape in an automobile. Two quarts of liquor were found in the car. Pound explained that his gun discharged as he jumped on the running board of the car to escape being run over.

CHEVROLET

SIX CYLINDERS

NO MORE — NO LESS

For GREATEST ECONOMY and BUILT-IN SMOOTHNESS

With more than six cylinders you sacrifice economy—With less than six cylinders you sacrifice smoothness.

When buying a low-priced car, do as America is doing: Count cylinders! And you'll say, as America is saying: "SIX! No more. No less!"

America is saying that in the most convincing way it could possibly be said! With SALES! More Chevrolet Sixes are being bought—far more—than any other make of car in the lowest price field. Since January 1st, the public has purchased more Chevrolets than the combined total of all four-cylinder cars and all eights priced under $1000.

And there's a reason for this overwhelming preference, too. America counted cylinders and came to this conclusion: six is the ideal number for a car of lowest price! No more, because an engine with extra cylinders is bound to cost more for gas, oil and upkeep. Everybody knows that. No less, because six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have in a car and avoid the undesirable effects of inherent vibration.

A six, as Chevrolet builds it, is the happy medium between two extremes. It gives unexcelled economy. No other motor car engine in America today costs so little for gas, oil and upkeep. It gives you built-in smoothness. From 6 miles an hour to 65 or 70, Chevrolet is quietly, comfortably, enjoyably smooth.

And because of this smoothness—plus the fact that the whole car is so solidly, ruggedly built—Chevrolet is a low-priced automobile that really stands up. It's a good, reliable, economical car the day you buy it . . . and it keeps on being good, reliable, economical, after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles of driving. Hundreds of thousands of owners have proved that!

In addition, Chevrolet is a modern car, with Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, Fisher bodies of wood and steel, four parallel-mounted springs—and many other features, without which no 1932 car can possibly be called complete. Be cylinder-wise! Follow America's lead and make your next low-priced car a six—a Chevrolet Six! Unless you do, you can't expect the smoothness, economy, and lasting satisfaction to which your money rightfully entitles you.

HUNT FOR LONG LOST BROTHER IS ORDERED IN WILL

Kin of Tea Company Official Missing 30 Years.

The late Walter Matthiesen of Milwaukee, an official of the National Tea company, left orders in his will that his executors should continue a 30 year search for his brother, Mathias Christian Matthiesen. This was revealed yesterday when the will was approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

"I have not heard of my brother for 30 years," the will stated, "but I authorize my executors to continue my search for him. If he is living and can prove his identity I direct that he be given an annuity of $3,600."

$25,000 to Danish Home.

In addition to this bequest, Matthiesen directed that $25,000 be given the Danish Old People's home of Chicago and $10,000 to the Danish Lutheran Orphan home. He directed that his sister, Katherine Marie Matthiesen of Skive, Denmark, be given an annuity of $6,000 from the remainder of his estate, which will be placed in trust. Any other income, the will directed, will be given to Mrs. Emma W. Rasmussen, 824 Castlewood terrace.

The estate totaled $170,000 when the will was made in 1927, but attorneys said it had shrunk considerably before Mr. Matthiesen's death on May 1, at Eagle River, Wis.

In addition to the Matthiesen will, three others were filed yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The following list shows the other wills, with the name of the deceased, the date of death, the amount of the estate, the executor and the beneficiaries:

Maria Lagerham, July 5, $12,000, the executor, Oscar Lagerham, 2716 Ewing avenue, a son, is the sole heir.

Edla L. Nord, May 2, $5,000, the executrix, Irene Nord, of the Stevens hotel, is the sole heir.

Aaron Strouss, June 21, $10,000, Charles L. Calisek, 5126 Greenwood avenue. Bequest of $500 to Jewish Charities of Chicago and the remainder divided between two brothers and two sisters.

Petitions for letters of administration showing the same facts but substituting the administrator for the executor, follow:

Elizabeth Bindig, June 18, $7,000; Michael Bindig, 6508 Greenwood avenue, husband, shares estate with son and two daughters.

Louis Cosco, July 3, $1,500; Joseph Cosco, 7615 Dobson street, a son, shares estate with brother and four sisters.

Noah G. Klove, June 13, $1,000; Mrs. Gertrude Klove, 839 Lake street, Oak Park, the widow, shares estate with two sons.

Charles F. Swanson, March 8, $17,000; Mrs. Emma Swanson, 5021 Drexel avenue, the widow, shares estate with daughter and two sons.

Sophie Woloshen, May 24, $400; Mrs. Sara Weindress, 5117 Kenmore avenue, daughter. Shares estate with brother and two sisters.

Mary V. Gorski, July 12, $2,850; Mrs. Anna Pavel, 1529 South Crawford avenue, a daughter, shares with three brothers and a sister.

Tilden Parks, July 31, 1918, $3,886; Cyrus Parks, 6335 Drexel boulevard, a brother. Shares with brother and three sisters.

ESCAPES PAROLE CHARGE; CAUGHT IN ROBBERY

Carl Stepina, 35 years old, whose war record saved him from being returned to prison as a parole violator last week, will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of robbery with a gun. A finding of guilty will send him back to Joliet under his former sentence of from one year to life for bank robbery.

Stepina was arrested Friday night after he and a second man had robbed Herbert Strope and Carl Berg, cheese merchants, of $150 in a garage in the rear of Strope's home at 4731 Harrison street. As the bandits turned to leave Stepina was seized by Berg when he pocketed his gun, but the second robber escaped.

Last Monday Stepina was arraigned before Judge Thomas A. Green. He had been arrested in company of another ex-convict and a guilty finding on the disorderly charge would have caused his return to Joliet prison. Judge Green learned that Stepina had been a member of his own division overseas and had been cited for bravery. Stepina pleaded that he was leading a decent life and was released.

HOLD SERVICES TOMORROW FOR MORRIS SABATH

Dr. R. A. Ward to Return to China as Missionary

It was announced yesterday that the Rev. Ralph A. Ward, 722 Simpson street, Evanston, executive secretary of the Methodist Episcopal world service commission for the last four years, has resigned that post to return to China as a missionary. Prior to accepting the secretaryship of the commission Dr. Ward spent twenty years in China, where for a period he had been president of the Anglo-Chinese college at Foochow.

BREEZES BRING RELIEF TO POOR WHO LACK ICE

But Help Is Needed for Other Hot Days.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Yesterday's cooling breezes brought relief to the Maxwell street area and beyond the stockyards, where the youngsters clustered thickly and hotly under the informal shower of a fire hydrant while the sun's onslaught was at its worst.

But there was also dread. Other hot days are coming and ice, their one great necessity, costs money.

Letters Tell Babies' Plight.

"It is impossible to keep food from spoiling."

"I cook the children's vegetable soup for two days, but it spoils overnight and is wasted."

"I'm raising an orphan child who needs milk, but what I get sours before it can be used."

"We try to save by cooking two days' food, but it won't keep without ice."

"My husband has had no work for eighteen months and it is impossible for us to buy ice."

"The baby just got over being sick from sour milk—I tried putting the food in the basement, but it soured just the same."

And so they read. Those who have ice and awnings, shade trees, and showers, electric fans, and plenty of cooling drinks at hand may enjoy the warmest days—but not those families of the unemployed, many of whom are finding out for the first time what it means not to have ice in the summertime.

Sends Birthday Money.

Donations to help purchase this tremendously needed protection for them were more numerous than usual yesterday. There were bigger contributions, but none more welcome than the $1 sent by Elizabeth Rosenheim of Hubbard Woods, who turned over that amount out of her birthday gifts. Here is the list:

Then there was the $2.10 raised by a juvenile group on the south side, with a circus held in the back yard by Jean, Miriam and John Holzheimer, Barbara, Morris and James Glatt and James McNaughton, to help keep needy mothers and children at Camp Algonquin. Their gift raised the grand total of that fund to $1,620.58.

Donations for either of the funds may be mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune Tower, and will be acknowledged as received.

PLUMER, BRITISH HERO IN BATTLE OF YPRES, DIES

Noted Commander Passes Away at 75.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—Field Marshal Viscount Plumer, a veteran of fifty years in the British army, whose position as one of the great commanders of the world war was established at the battle of Ypres, died suddenly at his London home today. He was 75 years old.

Viscount Plumer, who was first commander of the 5th army corps and then of the second British army in France, underwent an operation in February and was critically ill at that time for several days. He had experienced a succession of chills. He is succeeded in his title by his only son, Capt. Thomas Hall Rokeby Plumer. Burial of the field marshall will be Wednesday in Westminster Abbey.

Entered Army After Eton.

The man who was to become a leading figure of the war was born March 13, 1857. He attended Brighton school and Eton, then immediately entered the army, joining the York and Lancaster regiment in India.

He was married July 22, 1883, to Miss Annie Goss. To them were born a son and three daughters. He served in Egypt, then in South Africa in the latter part of the century.

His military career parallelled closely that of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement. They soldiered together in South Africa and both won fame at Mafeking. With Baden-Powell, Viscount Plumer was warmly commended by Cecil Rhodes, South African empire builder. Rhodesia presented him with a gold sword of honor.

Stopped German Rush.

After the Boer campaign he served in numerous empire military duties prior to the world war. Even before he took up the command in Flanders he was known as "Popular Plumer." His quick and decisive action in northwestern France and Belgium did much to stop the first rushes of the Germans.

Maj. Gen. Plumer's forces blew up the Messines-Wytschaete Ridge in June, 1916, credited as the hardest blow delivered to the Germans since their first rush was stopped at the Marne. At Messines Plumer's mixed forces wiped out a salient the Germans had held for two years.

The field marshal was not often in print, but was fully accorded the title, "Haig's silent partner." His success at the battle of Ypres was one of his outstanding achievements. In 1917 he was appointed to command the British forces in Italy, a position he held to the close of the war. He became the first Viscount Plumer on June 3, 1929.

"Funeral by Hursen" Of Course

Hursen Chapels are today recognized as the finest institution of the kind in this country. The North Side Chapel, particularly, is a masterpiece of beauty, massiveness, facilities and arrangements. It has recently been remodeled. The South Side and West Side Chapels are palaces, convenient for the smaller or the largest funerals.

All Hursen automobile equipment, the finest things on wheels, was built for Hursen along Hursen special designs. Yet the charge is no greater than for equipment far less desirable.

There is no charge for the use of any of the three Hursen Chapels, each equipped with organs of unmatchable tone and size. The charges for Hursen funerals are less than the charges usually made elsewhere. So, call Hursen, of course!

REAL FAIRYLAND MINUS A JOKER, THAT'S KOHLER

Here's Model Town Based on Practicality.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

As fairyland it is beautiful beyond words.

As a practicality it contains more instruction and more inspiration for the traveler than any other industrial experiment in the United States.

It is a model town without a joker in any of the clauses that brought it into being.

It is an industrial idyl that works. In his reading and his travels the student of the annals of labor and capital encounters so many of these industrial idyls which do everything but work that he approaches each new one with a doubting mind. From Robert Owen's New Harmony of more than a century ago in Indiana to the latest fantasy of soviet Russia or of socialistic Australia the story is mostly a somber one either of good intentions ending in chaos or of well meant paternalism sagging into deadening oppression.

Just Being Good Neighbors.

The Kohler idyl works because it is founded on and operated by clear-headed neighborliness, and so good a neighbor and so far seeing a statesman as Thomas Jefferson used to say that just being good neighbors was "almost the most important circumstance in life."

Neighborliness, then, is the fundamental practicality of the Kohler idyl.

As to Trustees and Hollyhocks.

Last evening I was riding with Walter Kohler past the hollyhocks that sentinel the dooryards of the village and past the rambler roses that hang like crimson banners upon the outer walls of its cottages. The founder of the Kohler idyl was speaking of the village's form of government. It was, he said, no factory owned or factory administered "model town," but was governed like any other American village, the board comprising a president and five trustees. "Wait," he exclaimed, "is it five or seven trustees? At the moment I can't remember. But at our next stop I'll ask one of the neighbors."

He did, and the neighbor said the number of trustees was six, a fact which for my purposes was not nearly so important as the hearty, unforced way in which the two neighbors—one a man of vast affairs and the other a wage earner in the Kohler plant—traded information on village matters, and, more especially on the condition of the hollyhocks and the rambler roses.

One of a Nation's Show Places.

For your purposes their condition is important if only for the reason that they make Kohler one of the show places of the United States, and as such it deserves first place in your itinerary of automobile tours for this summer. Such rambler roses you will not see this side of Cape Cod, nor such hollyhocks anywhere else in all Chicagoland.

Sheboygan, on the Wisconsin shore of Lake Michigan, is 57 miles north of Milwaukee, and Milwaukee is 90 miles north of Chicago. The village of Kohler lies amid unspoiled glades and woodlands four miles to the west of Sheboygan.

Four hours, therefore, of easy motoring from Chicago to this industrial fairyland where workmen's children go to school through parkways which a suburb of millionaires would envy, where the back yards of workingmen's cottages look, and are, like bits of gentlemen's estates, where the pestilent garbage can and the ash heap are no more tolerated than a pawnshop would be tolerated in a cathedral, and where there hangs in the principal neighbor's office a copy of Julia Bracken Wendt's medallion of John Ruskin lettered with these words of Ruskin's:

> LIFE WITHOUT LABOR > IS GUILT.
> LABOR WITHOUT ART
> IS BRUTALITY.

That motto has been before Walter Kohler's eyes for twenty years. It is not merely a motto. It is not dust covered. Like everything else connected with or expressive of the Kohler idyl, it works. The hollyhock, for example, is the town's official flower, but it has to work to retain its official status. It works in every dooryard.

A Rough Hewn Comparison.

I have said that the beauty of Kohler is beyond words. I mean those words of routine description which merely gurgle about velvet lawns and green vistas of glade and shimmering glimpses of stream and sequestered nooks of garden and long hedge rows that border every street and make it a veritable parkway.

No, those hints of description are not specific enough. This rough hewn comparison may be more to the purpose:

Take the 1,000 acres of lawns and waterways and groves and gardens and driveways in Jackson and Washington parks in Chicago, and, doubling their acreage, set down in that area 604 piquant cottages and handsome villas. Fill those structures with the families of intensely self-respecting and home loving artisans and industrial executives who either have paid for their homes or are paying for them on long term arrangements—homes built for them at cost by the company which employs them.

Result:

The village of Kohler.

Leaving Something to Nature.

The result is better, indeed, than any crude comparison would suggest. For, when the Kohler company began buying land for the future town, it did not destroy the natural contours of the terrain. When it bought a ravine it kept a ravine, not filling in depressions nor leveling slopes. Streets were not driven through lovely patches of woodland but, whenever practicable, around them. Consequently, the village of today combines sylvan charm with the graceful lines of the proficient landscape artist who must meet the requirements of traffic in a compactly built though not crowded settlement.

All the land the company bought it sold at cost to employes pledged to build on it. Hence there has been no speculation in vacant lots; hence, too, no straggling effects in the present aspect of the village.

One residential district is as desirable as another because the whole 2,000 acres have been made a harmoniously landscaped unit by the celebrated Olmsteds of Boston and because there is only one standard of building materials and that standard the best. A $2,000 cottage is as artistically designed and as well built as a $6,000 villa.

There is no grouping of houses according to the occupations or the salaries of the owners. Such restrictive clauses as govern the sale of a lot are drawn with an eye to the advantage of the purchaser rather than the advantage of the Kohler company. The purpose of the restrictions is to protect the owner from the intrusion of nuisances which might detract from his pleasure in his home. The village authorities permit, for example, but one filling station in the whole village area. Not a billboard is permitted anywhere. Not a shanty, not an unkempt structure, not a coal yard, not a dumping ground is visible.

A Masterpiece of Camouflage.

The company has been equally scrupulous in not permitting the requirements of a vast industrial plant to destroy the sylvan aspect of the village. That plant covers nearly one hundred acres and produces under a highly mechanized system 25,000 different parts which go into the construction of scores upon scores of articles of domestic and commercial equipment ranging from faucets to furnaces. Yet walk two minutes away from the plant, and you are hardly conscious of its existence. Walk four minutes, and you lose consciousness of it. It is screened from the residential area by noble alleys of trees and some of its walls are ivy clad. It does not dominate. It blends in.

Raw Materials from Afar.

This enormous plant receives raw materials from—to mention only a few of the points—Greenland, Iceland, Chile, the Malay archipelago, New Jersey, South Carolina, and England—buys, in fact, more clays from England than it sells finished product there—but, so far as you as a visitor in Kohler are concerned, those shiploads and trainloads of material unobtrusively vanish in an area that is pleasant pasture land on one side and charming villa property on the other. What I am driving at is that no heaps of sludge, no refuse pits, no slatternly no-man's land blemish the scene. In active times between four thousand and five thousand men and women are at work in the Kohler plant, and at quitting time twenty per cent of them walk across esplanades and through parkways to homes which for artistic charm and completeness of equipment are not to be duplicated save in those highly "exclusive"—and also highly expensive—"villa settlements" which groups of persons of considerable means have from time to time established in this country.

Throughout the decade and a half of the planning and building of the Kohler idyl there has been scrupulous avoidance of measures which could reduce the idyl to routine or engender suspicion that there was anything like coercion behind it. For upon mankind's hatred of being routinized and regulated into well-being, and upon the suspicion of coercion, many an ambitious employer who meant well by his people has wrecked his dream of founding a "model town."

Walter Kohler has avoided the pitfalls.

No employé of his is urged to build in Kohler. But if he wishes to build he is encouraged to go forward with his plan. A house and lot will cost him from $3,500 to $7,000. Having sold him the lot at cost, the company will build for him at cost. Or he can build for himself.

The Important Point.

"The main point is," said Mr. Kohler, "that a member of our organization wishing to own his home shall have a home that he can be proud of, whether he builds it himself on the basis of his own figures or the company builds it for him on the basis of no profit for itself."

Here I interrupt the head of the company for a moment to mark the fact that he never spoke of the Kohler workmen as "employés." It was always "the members of our organization" or "the neighbors."

"What I want to emphasize is that this is not a company owned town. It is a free, self-governing incorporated Wisconsin village, the board of which fixes the taxes of a company that pays about 70 per cent of the village taxes. The company is nobody's official benefactor and if there is one thing that it has tried to avoid that thing is paternalism. If this community is founded on any ism that ism is fraternalism.

"I always felt that a man couldn't have much affection for his home unless it were the kind of home he could take pride in. Hence the company, as pious believers in the American home as being the salvation of the country, wanted to build homes that the members of our organization could take pride in."

What it all has come to and what, in these difficult times, it means to the 2,000 neighbors of Kohler village will be told in tomorrow's article.

Revive Plays in Historic Theater of "Ghost" City

Lillian Gish was the featured player in "Camille." Central City was in its glory in the gold rush day, but has since become a "ghost" town. Its opera house was the finest between the Mississippi river and the Pacific coast.

SOUND BUILDINGS RAZED AT CAPITAL FOR ART'S SAKE

But It Costs Taxpayers Millions of Dollars.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—With the government prepared to spend one-sixth of its entire public building fund in Washington this year, congressional resentment today had reached a point which may bring steps in the December session to curtail the construction program for the national capital until better times return.

The Congressional Record discloses that twice within two weeks members of congress have expressed themselves publicly in the house against completing the "Washington beautiful" program while taxpayers are being burdened with heavy imposts and unemployment is more acute in most other sections of the country.

It was disclosed that out of a total of 137 million dollars for public construction throughout the country, approximately $29,000,000 has been apportioned to Washington alone. At the moment twelve new government buildings, involving a cost of about $63,000,000 are now in various stages of construction in this city.

Protest New Postoffice.

In the Record of July 5 Representative Ralph F. Lozier [Dem., Mo.] expressed himself vigorously against an announcement by the treasury that it had let contracts for four new buildings in Washington at an aggregate cost of $16,488,000. One is the new postoffice building, costing $7,642,000, which is to replace the present big structure on Pennsylvania avenue.

"The present postoffice building," Representative Lozier said, "is a perfectly good building, but is to be destroyed because it is not of the classic or Grecian order of architecture. Congress has by decisive votes informed the departments that the present building should not be destroyed, but the protests of congress fall on dull ears."

The three other buildings ordered constructed are to house the interstate commerce commission, department of labor and a new public auditorium, costing a total of $9,846,000.

No Money; Build More.

"Typical of the buildings constructed is the great commerce building, erected at a cost of $17,000,000, and the new internal revenue building that cost $9,000,000," Mr. Lozier said. "This prodigal building program is being stubbornly continued in spite of a bankrupt treasury and in the midst of an unprecedented depression that has paralyzed the economic forces of the nation. These wasteful building operations can only be consummated by increasing more and more the burden of taxation. By voice and vote I oppose this extravagant and wasteful public building program.

"The record shows that I spoke and voted against the $14,750,000 Arlington memorial bridge expenditure and the Mount Vernon highway project, costing the government $7,200,000. Fifteen miles long, this is the most costly road construction in all time, $480,000 per mile. These two projects were authorized under the so-called economical administration of President Coolidge and completed under the two-chickens-in-every-pot administration of President Hoover.

Land Costs $31,000,000.

"All the property between the capitol and Union station, an area one-fourth mile long and several blocks wide, has been acquired and transformed into a beautiful park at a cost of $5,000,000; also all the property between the treasury building and the capitol, fronting on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue for a distance of nearly a mile, at a cost of $26,000,000. These large areas were covered with brick buildings, many of them three and four stories high, all of which have been wrecked and are to be replaced with monumental department buildings, the ultimate cost of which will be several hundred million dollars."

Several days earlier Representative John J. McSwain [Dem., S. C.] entered a protest in the house against continuing the extensive building program in Washington which was mapped out during the years the nation was at the height of prosperity and the treasury was reporting tremendous annual surpluses.

Condemn Fine Buildings.

"Mr. Speaker," said Mr. McSwain, "the country generally is amazed at what has gone on and what is going on in Washington. Friends and constituents of mine, who visit the city, are shocked that good buildings along Pennsylvania avenue worth millions of dollars are being wrecked merely to gratify pride. I know that this started before the panic began and when we thought our income was exhaustless. But even then, I never supported the project. I have never voted for a seventeen million dollar department of commerce building, established upon land that costs the government many millions of dollars. And particularly was I shocked beyond expression when I learned that the fine arts commission of the District of Columbia had condemned the district building and the postoffice department building, because they do not fit into the scheme of architecture adopted for the new buildings.

"It is time to apply some common sense to business around Washington.

"Mr. Speaker, I am printing along with these remarks certain letters that I have addressed to the President of the United States and to his attorney general and his district attorney in Washington, asking that the condemnation proceedings for the useless expenditure of money at this time be stopped, and that the money be held in the treasury for the relief of the millions through the country at large who are not beneficiaries of the tax money that pours into Washington in an unbroken, even if now in a reduced, stream."

GOV. ROOSEVELT FACES PRUNING OF N. Y. BUDGET

Conference at Albany Will Open Tuesday.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—When Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt hitches his yawl Myth II. and returns to shore life at Albany he will find a number of problems concerning state matters to command his attention before he can actively begin his campaign as Democratic presidential nominee.

A conference on economy in state government directed toward cutting next year's budget to the bone will be held in Gov. Roosevelt's office Tuesday afternoon. Leading citizens representing civic, business, and farm organizations throughout the state will attend the budget meeting.

Conference Is Delayed.

Several weeks ago when pressed for budget reductions, Gov. Roosevelt sent out invitations to a group of citizens advising them that it was "necessary to know the will of the people in making plans for curtailment of state activities." The governor urged as large a representation as possible for a wide exchange of views. The date of the conference had been set for July 15, but as the Roosevelt cruise was under way at that time the meeting was postponed until next Tuesday.

"We are not hesitant to assume leadership in reducing the cost of state government," wrote Gov. Roosevelt, ". . . but we realize that any substantial reduction can be accomplished only if and when the people give new orders to the representatives. The more specific these directions are the more effective will be the remedy. We need to know what services the people desire curtailed and which they wish to have abandoned."

Leaders Will Attend.

Among those who will attend the conference are George W. Wickersham, officer of the state economic council, which is taking the leadership in the budget reduction; Peter Grimm, realty man; J. Irving Walsh, president of the State Association of Real Estate Boards; R. E. McGahen, secretary Citizens' union; H. E. Galvin, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce; Merwin K. Hart, official of the economic council and representatives from boards of trades and chambers of commerce throughout the state.

The amateur surgeons of the legislative economy committee worked throughout the spring to find means of reducing the state budget which amounted to 328 million dollars last year [less than half the amount of New York City's budget] and as summer came on a group of professional budget trimmers started work where the amateurs had left off.

Experts Compile Data.

Efficiency experts analyzed the cost of government, department by department, and their factual material will be available in concrete, concise form for the first time at the Tuesday conference.

Gov. Roosevelt already has announced that he has succeeded in saving approximately ten million dollars in actual expenditures, under existing appropriations. The governor said that more than six million dollars was saved up until April 1 and that department chiefs took another whack at expenses and brought the total up to ten million dollars recently.

On salaries, according to the governor, the state saved large sums by not filling positions which have been vacated, but there have been no wage cuts.

Point to Lower Prices.

Republican legislators, however, point out that the ten million dollar economy drive claimed by Mr. Roosevelt was in reality effected by market conditions instead of governmental thrift. Senator Charles J. Hewitt, chairman of the finance committee, belittles state economies as being likely to result in any lowering of taxes. The state senator explained that since the budget appropriations were authorized prices of commodities which the state buys, including food, clothing, building materials and goods of all sorts have fallen on an average of more than 20 per cent. Instead of a saving of ten million dollars, Senator Hewitt considers its surprising that twenty million dollars should not have been lopped off the year ago estimated expenditures for twelve months.

"The governor will have to go a lot further if he wants to convince the people that he is an economical executive," said the state senator.

Economy Program Drawn.

The heads of two of the civic groups —the state economic council and the Merchants Association of New York City—have an economy program already drawn up. They will urge a reduction of state bureaus and personnel and a cut in state salaries. Curtailment of public construction, particularly highway projects, also will be recommended.

The New York state budget has grown from $81,000,000 in 1918 when a Republican was governor to 328 million dollars in 1931, after a decade of Democratic rule. During the régime of Alfred E. Smith, appropriations mounted at a rate of $14,500,000 annually. During the Roosevelt régime, according to figures quoted by the state senate, the average annual increase has been approximately $29,000,000.

PRISONER DIES; ACCUSE POLICE OF THIRD DEGREE

Autopsy Bares Injury; Start Investigation.

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—Hyman Stark, 20 year old prisoner, who died in a hospital Friday night after eight hours of police questioning, strangled to death as a result of a fractured larynx, District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county announced tonight.

Stark was arrested with three other men Friday morning after Mrs. Valeria Hizenski, mother of County Detective Joseph Hizenski, had been beaten and robbed in her Roslyn, L. I., home. He also suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, as a result of a blow over the head and a black eye, the autopsy conducted by Dr. Otto H. Schultze revealed.

Blames Police for Death.

Edwards flew back from a vacation in Maine as soon as he was notified of Stark's death and immediately broke the veil of secrecy which had shrouded the death of the prisoner.

"An overenthusiastic police officer broke Stark's Adam's apple," was the way Mr. Edwards described the cause of death.

Edwards announced a public investigation into Stark's death would be opened at Mineola Monday. Edwards will examine the twelve detectives, who, he said, participated in the questioning of Stark.

Suspend Deputy Chief.

Pending the results of this investigation, Edwards suspended two police officers, Detective Hizenski, who, he said, was alone for a time with Stark, and Deputy Chief of Police Frank Tappan, Republican leader of the town of Oyster Boy. He announced Tappan was present during practically all of the questioning of Stark.

"There is at all times a duty on the man in charge to see that a prisoner is protected and there is no doubt in my opinion that the prisoner received the 'third degree'."

Chief of Police Skidmore, who was on vacation, indicated that "there will be more suspensions."

ROOSEVELT TO SPEAK TODAY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Gloucester, Mass., July 16.—(AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, approached the New Hampshire coast line tonight, the goal of his cruise in New England waters aboard the yawl Myth II.

Portsmouth, N. H., was the port to which Gov. Roosevelt hoped to bring his craft. A reception there in his honor tomorrow is planned by New Hampshire residents, and later in the day he will address an assembly at Hampton Beach.

Before the Myth sailed out of Marblehead harbor, where the Roosevelt party spent the night, the New York governor conferred with Col. Edward M. House, advisor to President Wilson during the latter's administration. No intimation of what was discussed was given by those aboard the Myth.

Beginning with the departure from Marblehead harbor, the Myth received the cheers and salutes of scores of craft, to which Gov. Roosevelt replied with smiles and a wave of the hand.

Drys Ask Movies to End 'Wet Political Propaganda'

The Illinois Conference of Associations Supporting the 18th Amendment sent a protest to every movie and newsreel producer in the country yesterday, demanding that "exaggeration and distortion of the use of intoxicants in motion pictures and political propaganda against the prohibition law must be eliminated." If prohibition is repealed much money now spent for movies would be spent for beer, declared Charles R. Jones, executive vice president of the American Business Men's Prohibition foundation.

New York State Body Warns of Realty Tax Exemption Menace

CALLED A CAUSE OF EVER RISING PROPERTY TAXES

"Everything which one man obliges another to do, without gaining his consent, whether he exact it in writing or not, seems to me to be force." —A saying of Pericles.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

In these days when America's tax menace at last is getting the serious and intelligent attention of the man who pays, it's strange that little or no notice has been paid to one of the contributing causes to ever mounting assessments, the tax exemption of property owned by religious, educational, charitable and similar institutions. In 1927 it was estimated that property valued at thirty billion dollars throughout the nation paid not one cent in taxes. This probably has increased to at least forty billions at the present time.

A warning against this situation was sounded by the state tax commission of the state of New York when that body predicted that unless something is done to stop the increase of these tax free real estate properties they'll be forced back in the ranks of the ordinary taxpayer and pay their proportionate share of the expense of government.

Commission Urges Action.

The New York commission not only stated definitely that the time for this action had come but took the advanced position of urging that all of the real property owned by the state be taxable for school and highway purposes. In other words, not only should religious, educational, and charitable bodies pay taxes but the commonwealth itself should be pushed out of the "tax exempt" class of loafers and put to work.

The commission points out that each state stands at a crossroads, one thoroughfare leading to the goal or ideal of absolutely no exemptions from tax paying and the other the route to more and more classes of exemptions.

After declaring that unless exemptions stop increasing they'll be done away with entirely, the state commission makes this significant prediction: "If they keep on increasing they will be so generally recognized as mistaken blessings that a majority of the people will demand their total abolition."

Doesn't Pay for Benefits.

One of the significant points in our widespread real estate tax exemption is that, although the property which is freed from assessments enjoys the same benefits that other property enjoys, it doesn't pay a penny toward the expense of such benefits.

Figures for national increase are not available, but basing calculations on what happened in New York, where tax exempt land increased in one year approximately $300,000,000, it's safe to estimate the total for the country now has advanced to the forty billion mark.

And if this figure leaves you unimpressed, perhaps this will startle you a bit. It refers to New York, but it can be applied to the nation on pretty much the same basis. In the Empire state the tax commission estimated that in 1926 the tax exempt property equaled 21 per cent of the taxable real property.

Advances New Argument.

A new argument against tax exemption is advanced by Robert Atkins, a member of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants, who, after quoting Pericles, as given at the top of this column, says: "For the laws of a state to force a taxpayer to contribute to the support of a religious institution toward which he entertains no feelings of friendliness, while the constitution of that state guarantees religious freedom to all its citizens, is a matter of grave concern.

"There cannot be any doubt of the unfairness of such a condition, nor can the sums which the unwilling taxpayers contributed to these institutions be considered very different in principle from the partial confiscation of their property for religious purposes.

"A disinterested solution of the problem would appear to be to let all real property pay its proportionate share of taxes, the burden to be borne by those who own it. The adherents of each religion would then contribute to the support of their own facilities and be freed from exactions respecting the property of other faiths. The benefits would therefore accrue to those who paid for them.

Opposition Grows.

"There is a growing reluctance to extend the lists of tax exempt property or persons, the tendency in real property being particularly noticeable as the amount of exempt real property has assumed tremendous proportions and keeps growing."

Mr. Atkins points out that thus far no consideration seems to have been paid to the amount of acreage which tax exempt institutions shall be permitted to acquire in a rural district. He refers to a community in New York state where two different religious institutions have combined properties of 1,500 acres.

"Holdings of this size bear no relation whatever to the needs of the institutions owning them," he said. "In addition to adding to the tax burden of the local taxpayers they restrict rural development and permit these institutions to engage in real estate speculation at the expense of the small rural land owners."

PLAN BIG FOOD MARKET AT 75TH AND KINGSTON

Construction is scheduled to start at once on a one story steel, glass and brick building at the northeast corner of East 75th street and Kingston avenue, to be known as the Kingston Union markets. The site has been leased for twenty years from the Parmly estate by the South Shore Investment company, developer of the project. Walter Drennan is president and Arthur Currey is secretary of the company.

The new market building will front 230 feet on 75th and ninety-seven feet on Kingston. In addition to the usual groceries and meats sold at outlying markets, this will feature hardware, notions and drugs.

"Our plans call for the development of several such markets in strategic locations throughout the city," said Mr. Drennan. "A survey has shown us that despite the depression neighborhood markets have been consistent money makers."

Charles B. Faulkner is architect of the market, which will represent an investment of approximately $60,000, exclusive of the value of the lease. Roy A. Wright will be manager of the Kingston Union markets and other future market developments of the South Shore Investment company.

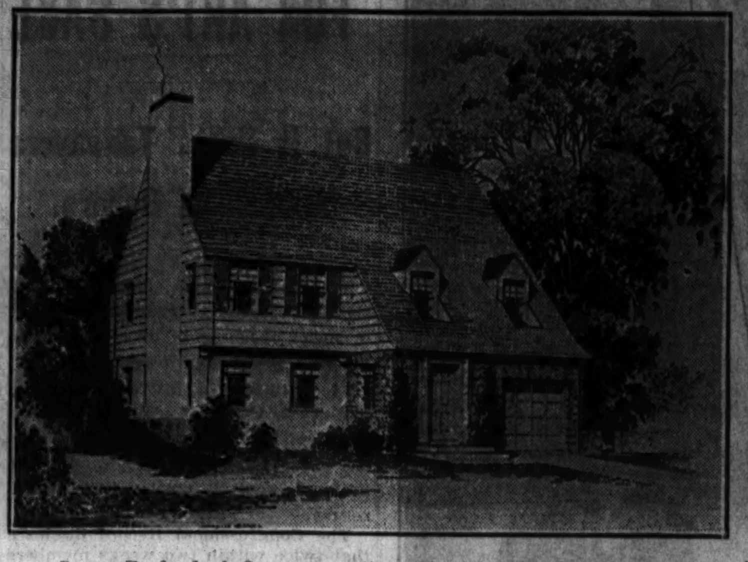
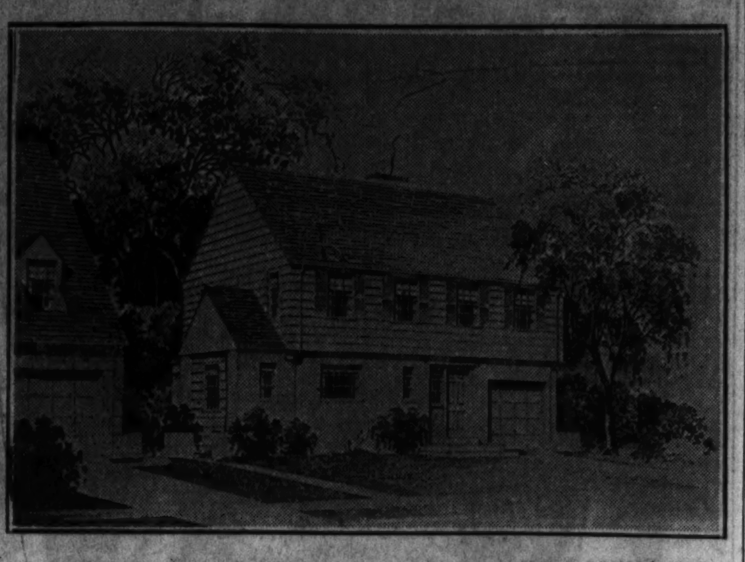
REMINISCENT OF EARLY COLONIAL DAYS

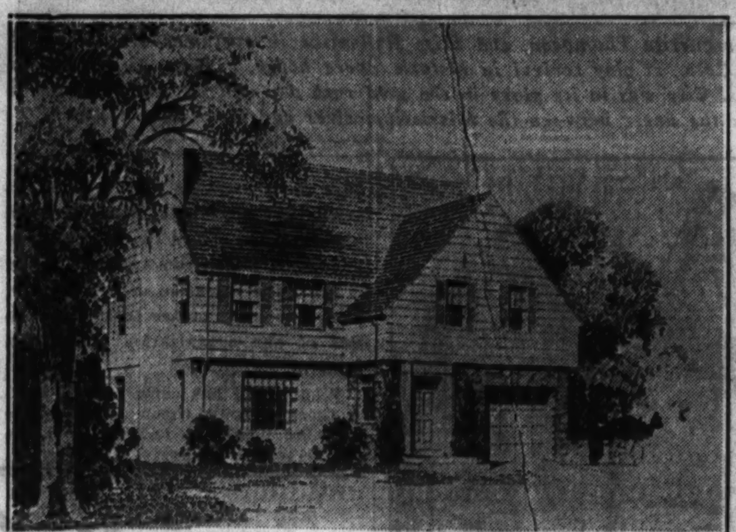


Sears, Roebuck & Co. are erecting this attractive brick, stone and frame residence on Linden avenue, in Oak Park. It is one of three which will be completed and ready for occupancy by the first of October.



This bit of New England is going up on Linden avenue, Oak Park, and is one of a trio of houses being erected by Sears, Roebuck & Co. Like the others, all the windows will be of polished plate glass.

SEVEN ROOM COLONIAL



This home is under construction on Linden avenue, in Oak Park, between Greenfield and Le Moyne, by Sears, Roebuck & Co. The first floor exterior will be of brick and stone, with second floor of cedar shingles.

Sears, Roebuck Build Trio of Modern Homes in Oak Park

Three homes designed in the early American colonial style are being built by the home construction division of Sears, Roebuck & Co. on Linden avenue in Oak Park, on the north side of the village between Greenfield and Le Moyne.

Construction work on the trio, whose first floor walls are to be of stone and painted brick and second story of painted cedar shingles, is in the framing stage. The largest of the three homes has already been roofed over and a temporary office opened for the accommodation of visitors, according to D. S. Betcone of Sears' home construction division. Building progress on the group is moving forward rapidly and all three houses are to be ready for occupancy Oct. 1.

One plan is 40.6 x 43.6 feet and the other two are 39 x 38.9 feet and are arranged on west front lots, 50 x 125. Each of the plans calls for vestibule, stair hall, living room, dining room, kitchen, dining alcove, lavatory, rear vestibule entrance, and one-car fireproof garage with overhead doors on the first floor and center hall four bedrooms, two tiled bathrooms, large wardrobe closets, and linen storage on the upper floor.

Basement Recreation Room.

Two of the homes are to have finished recreation rooms in the basement and one is to be built with an extra room connecting the right front bedroom suitable for study or second floor den.

Exterior specifications include a color scheme of white for brick and shingles and variegated brown and red for roofs, with black shutters and oxidized green for steel sash, gutters, and downspouts. First floor windows are to be steel casements and the regular colonial check rail type are to be used on the second floor. Polished plate glass and full length bronze wire screens are used on all window openings. Metal weather strips and copper flashings are also a part of the practical specifications.

The interior wood finish is to consist of birch doors, enamel trim and clear oak stained floors. Wall finishes are to be of paper in all rooms except the kitchens, bathrooms, and lavatories, which will be painted. Solid brass hardware is to be used throughout and lighting fixtures are to be of Flemish brass and pewter finish in colonial design.

Concealed Radiators.

Latest type oil burners with concealed radiation in the principal rooms will furnish the heating. One-half inch rigid type insulation and electric refrigeration are other features specified on the plans for these three Sears-built homes.

In commenting upon this Oak Park home building project, which from the standpoint of construction before sale departs from the regular business policy followed by Sears, Mr. Betcone of the company's home construction department stated that his firm was not entering the home construction field any more aggressively or upon any wider scale than in the past.

"All we're doing," said Mr. Betcone, "is attempting to bring about certain economies in construction costs and to build a superlative home for as reasonable a price as possible in an area where there seems to be a demand for such a type."

The sites for these three homes were purchased from Jacob Swanson. Mrs. Irene Hohmann of the Cusack Realty company of River Forest was broker.

Buy Building for Chase & Sanborn Use

One of the biggest industrial real estate deals in many months was closed yesterday in the Central Manufacturing district when Standard Brands, Inc., purchased the six story building at 2133 Pershing road for the sole use of its subsidiary, Chase & Sanborn, Inc. An interesting angle to the transaction is that the seller was the General Foods corporation, and prior to six months ago used the building for its subsidiary, also a coffee concern, roasters of the Maxwell House brand.

Although the price paid by Standard Brands, Inc., to General Foods corporation for the property was not disclosed, it is known that it had been held for sale at $275,000. The building is on a lot 131x200 and has Chicago Junction railroad service. It is directly opposite McKinley park. It was built in 1927 and is of reinforced concrete. It contains approximately 95,000 square feet of floor area.

Chase & Sanborn, Inc., one of the oldest coffee and tea firms in the country, has occupied the nine story building at Wells street and the north bank of the river, opposite the Merchandise Mart, for many years. They will move to their new location shortly. The building is owned by John Moir, senior member of Chase & Sanborn prior to their sale to Standard Brands. It was leased from him by Chase & Sanborn, the lease expiring next year.

Considerable new machinery will be installed when Chase & Sanborn move into their new quarters on the south side. The building will be used entirely for roasting and packing coffee and for the storage of tea, which is packed in Boston.

Belden Apartments.

Can you tell me something about the Belden apartment building bonds? Interest payment on last coupon due in January defaulted. The building is at the northwest corner of Woodlawn avenue and East 67th street. I bought the bond through the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank.—J. F. R.

C. Haedtler, manager of the real estate loan department of the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank, writes that the bank is operating the property under assignment of rents by the equity owner for the protection of the bondholders. The property is still in the hands of the equity owner. The gross receipts from May 1, 1931, to May 1, 1932, are reported to have been $6,573. Operating expenses for the same period were $3,700. The 1928 taxes were $1,579. On this $750 was paid and the balance protested. The 1929 taxes were $1,787. Nothing was paid. The 1930 taxes were $1,958. Of this $979 is to be paid and the balance protested.

The three story building contains fifteen apartments of three, four, and five rooms. It is seven years old and is reported to be in good physical condition. There are $43,500 bonds outstanding. None has been called for deposit.

Dearborn-Schiller Apartments.

Will you kindly give me information regarding the Dearborn-Schiller apartments sold through the Greenebaum Sons' Investment company? It is at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Schiller streets.—F. J. K.

The Chicago Title and Trust company has been named receiver. A decree of sale has been entered in this case, but a date has not yet been set for the foreclosure sale.

Following is a statement by the receiver of cash receipts and disbursements from March 27, 1931, to April 30, 1932:

FIELD'S SPENDS $120,000 IN NEW RETAIL UNITS

Millinery Section and Beauty Salon.

With the expenditure of $70,000 for new millinery sections, $50,000 for a modern beauty salon, and various other improvements contemplated, Marshall Field & Co.'s 1932 betterment program will run well over $250,000, it was announced yesterday. This, added to what was spent last year in remodeling and rearranging the first floor of the State street building, laying new carpet and other improvements, will bring the total expended in the last two years close to $750,000.

"We feel that the present lull in business offers us a more attractive opportunity for effecting the improvements we've planned than if business were brisk," said David M. Yates, vice president and general manager. "We're not retarding normal business activity for this period of the year by closing off the sections where work's in progress, and we're able to give work to carpenters, decorators, painters, electricians, and others who might otherwise be idle.

Planned in Good Times.

"The improvement program was planned in good times. In going ahead with it we're trying to look beyond the depression to the time when normal business activity is resumed. We intend to be ready, physically, to go ahead in harmony with modern ideas of store decoration and displays when that time comes."

The new millinery sections will be in the North State street building, on the fifth floor. There'll be a new French room, a large section for American models, and a "young modern's section" with hats for the younger woman. The sections will have an entire new architectural background with special furniture.

Metal Work of Silver.

Metal work will be of bright silver; the mirrors and lighting fixtures will be of special design and bright silver lattices will frame the open court the sections will surround.

"Field's has never before had a beauty salon offering a complete range of breauty services and the one now under construction on the fifth floor will be luxuriously appointed, decorated and furnished," said a store official. "It's be of avadura wood, a Central American satinwood, with composition floor of green and silver. The furniture and plumbing fixtures will be of silver and black lacquer.

CHICAGO PAINT FIRM GETS BIG EASTERN AWARD

A small Chicago paint manufacturer, the National Chemical and Manufacturing company, Inc., of 3617 South Wall street, has been awarded one of the largest paint orders in recent years by the New York hospital. It calls for 12,000 gallons of a non-yellowing paint, with 90 per cent light reflective qualities. The successful painting contractors for the job were the W. P. Nelson company, of Chicago and New York, and two local New York firms. The hospital is one of the most ambitious building programs of its kind in the world and is sponsored by J. Pierpont Morgan and other prominent New Yorkers. It'll be open about Sept. 1.

The Walgreen Drug company has leased the northeast corner of 79th street and Stony Island avenue, comprising two stores, for ten years at an estimated rental of $90,000 for the term. Bryar & Blish were brokers.

They also report leasing the northwest corner of 79th and Cornell to the Service Drug company; the southwest corner of 79th and Bennett to the Consumers Hat company, and 1626 East 79th to the Gertrude Beauty Shops.

Two other leases were made at 1618 East 79th for use as a food shop and the store at 1825 East 79th to be occupied by the Avalon Confectionery shop.

POLICEMEN KILL 3 KIDNAPERS, WIN HERO AWARD

Shoot Down Extortionists Caught Red Handed.

State's Attorney Swanson's gambling squad, consisting of Policemen Louis Capparelli, who is in charge, Michael D. Casey, David Levin and Michael A. Caracci, last month brought to fulfillment a prophecy made by a police lieutenant and was awarded THE TRIBUNE hero prize of $100 for June.

Early in that month three men, who were suspected by the police of being kidnapers and extortionists, were taken to the detective bureau. They were questioned at the showup by Lieut. Edward Birmingham, at the conclusion of which the lieutenant said to them:

"You fellows will wind up in the county morgue pretty soon if you don't quit your rackets."

Prophecy Comes True.

A week later the prophecy came true. The three desperadoes, Harold Partner, Sam Katz and Frank Rogers, were dead, killed in a gun fight with the state's attorney's squad. The squad had trapped them in the act of extorting money from a gambler within a few blocks of the city hall.

Preceding the events of June by ten months the three extortionists had attempted to kidnap Morris Schachter, the gambler. He had notified Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, but a premature arrest spoiled the plan. At the time Schachter said the same trio had kidnaped his brother, a St. Louis gambler known as "Brass McDonald."

When the extortionists came back last month and demanded money from Schachter, he again notified Roche and Lieut. John Leonard who planned the trap. Several hours before the gunmen were to come for their money Capparelli, Casey and Levin were stationed in a room adjacent to Schachter's office. Caracci was in another room nearby to cut off any attempt at escape.

Turns Over $100.

On the arrival of Partner and his two companions, Schachter turned over about $100 to them. It wasn't enough, and the spokesman snarled at the gambler, "Now, you —— ——, go out and get some real money and hurry back or your life won't be worth anything." Schachter started out of the room and the police stepped in.

Capparelli and Casey, in the lead, shouted, "We're police officers; stick up your hands." Katz with an oath dropped the money he had just taken from Schachter and drew his gun. Before he could fire a blast from Capparelli's shotgun felled him. Partner swung his gun to bear on Casey, but the policeman pulled his trigger first. Rogers was brought down by Levin as he ran for the door. All three died instantly.

"I hesitated a moment before shooting, thinking that Partner would drop his gun," said Casey. "He didn't and it was a question of his life or mine. I shot first." It was the first time in seven years that Casey had had to shoot although he had been in on the arrests of a number of "tough customers."

Commended by Coroner.

The policemen were given special commendation by the coroner, and Roche said: "By the death of these men three desperate characters are removed from the streets of Chicago and undoubtedly numerous extortions and kidnapings have been prevented." All three had police records, and Partner was known to the police as tough gangster.

Capparelli and Casey have been teamed together for five years at the detective bureau and at the state's attorney's office. At one time while raiding in Cicero with Lieut. William Blaul they assisted in the arrest of George "Red" Barker, "Three-fingered" Jack White and Claude Maddox, all notorious gangsters.

Both are young men, Casey being 34 years old, and Capparelli, 32. Casey has been on the police force seven years and Capparelli eight years. Levin, 33, has been on the force six years, and Caracci, 34, eight years.

Trude Dismisses Divorce Bills of the Kennedys

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday dismissed the divorce bill of Mrs. Bernice Kennedy, 540 Briar place, and the cross bill of her husband, David, when attorneys for both sides informed him that they had been unable to agree upon a compromise suit. Previously after hearing evidence by Mrs. Kennedy, who charged cruelty and her husband, an official of the Northwest Engineering company, who charged adultery, Judge Trude had indicated that he could not grant a decree to either. The hearings were bitterly contested.

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the death of Frederick Klapproth, 56 years old, head of the Chicago Lumber and Box company at 122 South Michigan avenue. His body was recovered from the lake at the foot of 62d street earlier in the day. Mr. Klapproth, who lived at 210 East Pearson, disappeared on Thursday from the Jackson Park beach, after swimming with Mrs. Gladys Anderson, a relative.

HITLER WARNS HE'LL SEIZE RULE EVEN IF HE LOSES

Opens Election Drive in East Prussia.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 16.—"If we do not win the parliamentary elections on July 31, we will launch a new fight to obtain absolute power in Germany on Aug. 1," Adolf Hitler, National Socialist [Fascist] leader, said today in east Prussian cities as he began his campaign. "We will not rest until we win control."

His lieutenants continued to make threats to arm the Nazi "brown army" and send it into the streets to fight communists and socialists. Capt. Hermann Goering, Hitler's right hand man, warned Chancellor Franz von Papen's government that Hitler's military organization will "assume a position of self-defense in a few days" unless political riots end immediately.

Two Women Killed in Riot.

Meanwhile, two women were killed at Hanau today when policemen fired into communist rioters. Five policemen were seriously injured.

Paul Loebe, Socialist president of the reichstag, speaking at Lauenburg, tonight warned that all the wheels of industry will be idle in Germany if Hitler seizes power.

"We will find opposition in every factory in the country, in every railroad, in waterworks, and electricity plants because the workers of Germany will not tolerate the oppression of Hitler's threatened 'third reich'," he said.

Cabinet Issues Decree.

Chancellor von Papen, who has been spending several days with Von Hindenburg, returned to Berlin this morning to preside over an all day cabinet session. Hugo Schaeffer, minister of labor, announced the details of a new emergency decree reorganizing the federal "voluntary labor service" for unemployed under 25 years of age. About $12,000,000 will be advanced by the government to further this service.

In the last year 130,000 young Germans have engaged in voluntary labor under the direction of the "Young German Order" and similar organizations. They built roads, reclaimed swamps, and started gardens. This work will be continued. The labor will be restricted so that it will not compete against ordinary employed labor.

New York, July 16.—(AP)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court today by Truly Warner Co., inc., dealer in hats and shoes and operating a chain of stores in New York and other cities. Liabilities were listed as $850,446 and assets at a book value of $1,068,860. The petition, signed by Morris Emanuel, secretary, said the company was unable to pay its debts and asked for the appointment of a receiver.

Harold Pillifant, supervisor of Waukegan township, Lake County, announced yesterday that twenty-nine Mexicans resident in Waukegan would be sent back to Mexico in a few days. The township will furnish them railroad fare. The Mexicans are nearly all unemployed and asserted their willingness to go back to their native land. The transpirtation cost will be about $375.

Chinese Hold Up Manchuria Train; Eight Persons Slain

TOKIO, July 16.—(AP)—Eight trainmen were killed and five passengers wounded by Chinese rebels who held up an international train on the Chinese Eastern railway between Harbin and Manchuli yesterday.

HERD OF ELEPHANTS CARRY OWN TRUNKS; FREED OF PAYING DUTY

BELFAST, July 16.—(AP)—Because they had their trunks with them, a herd of elephants got by the Ulster customs barrier today without paying the duty collectable on all animals entering British territory from the Irish Free State.

When the elephants, attached to a traveling circus, appeared at the border, customs officials went into a huddle and it was finally decided that although they should be taxed as animals, they might also be described as travelers carrying trunks.

Accordingly, they were permitted to pass.

Puts Pepper in Wife's Bed; Sent to Bridewell

Mrs. Martha Wierschowski, 2820 West 22d street, told Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey yesterday that her husband, Joseph, puts red pepper in her bed and throws chairs out of the window when he gets angry. Wierschowski was sent to the bridewell to work out a fine of $25.

BOAT BLOWS UP IN MISSISSIPPI; 5 FEARED DEAD

Memphis, Tenn., July 16.—(AP)—Five persons were believed to have lost their lives tonight when the 40-foot cruiser "Anne K. Kolen" blew up in the middle of the Mississippi river here.

Six men and three women were reported to be on the boat. Only four survivors had been located an hour after the tragedy.

Those who escaped were Eddie Traylor, Hamilton Karsch, Jimmy Linton and Mildred Zimmerman. Miss Zimmerman was taken to a hospital. J. H. Ruby, an ambulance driver, said her left leg was broken and she was cut in numerous places.

The first account of the explosion was given by Traylor.

"Miss Zimmerman and I were sitting in the cruiser's cabin," he said. "There was a terrific explosion and burning gasoline covered the entire ship.

"I was knocked into the river. Then I saw Miss Zimmerman. I swam with her for nearly two miles before Ammanuel Wolf rescued us."

Traylor said he was not a member of the party on the cruiser so did not know the names of the other persons.

BOMB KILLS 3 IN RUMANIA ON EVE OF ELECTION

Clerical Candidate's Wife, Two Children Victims.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 16.—[U.P.]—Violence in the campaign for tomorrow's parliamentary election reached a climax today in a bomb outrage which killed three persons.

In the town of Backau, unidentified persons handed a parcel to the Rev. Mr. Magirescu, leading local candidate of the National Peasant party. The parcel exploded, killing the pastor's wife and two children and gravely injuring Magirescu and a servant.

Expect Peasant Party Victory.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, July 16.—Twenty-two parties will go to the polls tomorrow in Rumania's parliamentary elections. Out of the large field the National Peasant party tonight was regarded as a certain winner.

It is the Peasant party which is making the elections, and in Rumania's history never has the party which "made" the elections lost them.

For the Balkans the elections will be quite free, however. It was the Peasant party which held the first free elections in 1928 when the country lawyer, Julius Maniu, swept the allegedly corrupt Liberals under George Bratianu out of power.

Last year King Carol, holding his first elections, permitted the restoration of the old fashioned methods and the Peasants suddenly found themselves reduced from 330 to 30 seats in parliament.

Gains in Popularity.

Tomorrow with the Peasant premier, Alexander Vaida-Voevod, insisting on free elections, they are expected to poll a clear majority over all the other parties.

Already powerful because they represent the farmers, who form 85 per cent of Rumania's population, the Peasant party has gained in popularity since Carol installed them in office last month, chiefly because they paid the army and government employés, who had not received their salaries for four months.

The Liberal party, which has ruled Rumania for most of its history, is expected to run second to the Peasants, with a few parliamentary seats going to the other twenty parties.

NURSE BURNS TO DEATH.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 16.—[Special.]—Miss Mame Burgess, 27, nurse, is dead as a result of burns received when kerosene with which she was starting a fire exploded.

AWAITS STORK

PRINCESS ILEANA.

VIENNA, July 16.—(AP)—Princess Ileana of Rumania, who was married in July, last year, to Anton Hapsburg, the "flying archduke," is awaiting a child at a private sanitarium in nearby Moeldling. Her mother, the Dowager Queen Marie, is expected tomorrow evening. The Archduchess Blanca Hapsburg, Anton's mother, already is with Ileana.

MEDICAL SCHOOL RESUMES FIGHT FOR STATE O. K.

A hearing on the petition of the Illinois College of Physicians, 20 North Ashland avenue, for an accredited rating as a medical school was resumed yesterday before the medical advisory board of the state department of registration.

Dr. William D. Cutter, secretary of the council on medical education for the American Medical association, testified that an inspection of the school premises last week convinced him the equipment is inadequate.

R. W. Marrow, attorney for the school, brought out that Dr. Cutter's inspection took less than an hour. The lawyer asserted J. E. Edwards, chief inspector for the department, had telephoned the school the day before Dr. Cutter's call, saying the physician would inspect the school "and testify against the school." The hearing was adjourned until Inspector Edwards, now out of the city, returns to testify.

BARON'S 'SYSTEM' AT CARDS NETS HIM YEAR IN JAIL

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

VIENNA, July 16.—Baron Otto Guttmann was sentenced to a year's imprisonment at hard labor without privileges tonight on charges of having cheated at cards. His term is to be followed by deportation to Hungary, his native country. Two club servants were sentenced to six months imprisonment on the same charges.

Before the verdict was handed down two experts played eighteen rounds of baccarat with the judge and a lawyer with cards prepared according to the baron's system to demonstrate that it was impossible for "innocent" players to detect the fraud.

The system, adapted to the playing of baccarat and chemin de fer, was said to have been originated by Baron George von Berzeviczy, who is now in Italy attempting to evade Austrian extradition. Kuehberger, one of the servants, was said to have set out marked decks of cards in the holders of the chemin de fer tables and each of those accused was said to have won frequently as much as $2,000 at a sitting.

U. S. Minister Arrives in Iceland for Ericson Rites

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 16.—Frederick W. B. Coleman, American minister to Denmark, arrived here yesterday from Copenhagen to take part Sunday in the unveiling of the statue of Leif Ericson, Norse adventurer, who landed in what is now Labrador about 1,000 A. D., according to Danish sagas. The statue is a gift of the United States to Iceland.

ART INSTITUTE MADE OFFICIAL EXHIBITION FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Announcement was made yesterday that the Art Institute of Chicago has been designated as the official exhibition of fine arts next year by the Century of Progress. There will be no official fine arts building within the World's Fair grounds.

According to preliminary plans the Art institute will show the progress of fine arts in the last 100 years, thus offering a parallel to the general exhibits of science and industry at the exposition. There will be an exhibit of contemporary painting and sculpture, a retrospective American section starting with the precolonial painters, and retrospective foreign sections, with special emphasis on the impressionists.

World's Fair officials were notified that legislation extending special patent and copyright protection to foreign exhibitors has been passed by the house of representatives in Washington. The protection will last during the fair and six months afterward.

The first of the exposition music festivals was held at the Hall of Science yesterday, with 250 persons in the chorus and 300 in the orchestra, the personnel coming from the west parks. Today the first regatta of outboard runabouts will be held in the World's Fair lagoon.

HANGS SELF NEAR CEMETERY.

Coldwater, Mich., July 16.—[Special.]—A man said to be J. D. Johnson, 50, South Whitley, Ind., farmer, was found in an empty building near a cemetery at West Ovid township here where he had hanged himself two days ago.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime, no matter the size of the rupture, and in all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex (Patent No. 747,247, No. 1,237,709, and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case by stimulation. Infinitely superior to any instrument method of operation, and produces results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against any further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specifically solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injection, medical treatment or prescriptions with distinguished personal patrons of all nations. Get booklet on "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure."

LAST TO FIRST! GUSTO'S RUSH WINS CLASSIC

Gusto, grandson of Man o' War and owned by Morton Schwartz of New York, conquers the best three year olds in training as he takes down the first prize of $76,600 in the fourth running of the Classic, which drew a crowd of 30,000 to Arlington Park yesterday. Stepenfetchit gets second money and Evergold third in the mile and a quarter race, which had a gross value of $88,100, the richest turf special in the world for three year olds. Top Flight, the filly champion and favorite, is finishing fifth, while Faireno, another highly regarded speedster, winds up in eighth position. The race, run in 2:03 3-5, attracted a field of 12.

MISPLAYS UPSET TINNING'S FIRST START; LOSE GROUND TO PIRATES

Quinn Staves Off Bruins' Final Effort.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Manager Hornsby yesterday acceded to popular demand in the final against the Brooklyn Dodgers and gave Pitcher Bud Tinning a chance to make his first major league start. All of which would have been a mighty fine act on the part of Boss Rogers if he had gone a little farther in Bud's behalf and had done some third basing in support of the young man. But Rogers had a very, very sad day and this was one of the reasons the Dodgers defeated the Cubs in the baseball game, 6 to 4.

The Cub skipper made two errors and a generous scorer covered up two more plays by putting the hit label on bouncers that should have been consumed with great ease and abandon. Mr. Hornsby's shortcomings accounted, more or less directly, for four of the Dodgers' runs, which is a pretty heavy load in a 6 to 4 ball game.

Eight Wins, No Gain.

And this wasn't all the woe. The Pittsburgh Pirates took both ends of a double header from Boston. This wicked conduct on the part of the Pittsburghers put our boys 3½ games out of first place, which is exactly where they were when they started their impressive stand against the eastern invaders. It is apparent that the Cubs, in the laudable enterprise of winning eight out of their last 11 home games have stood still, in so far as the league leadership is concerned. It doesn't seem reasonable, but just look at the percentage table.

In the carryings on here and in Pittsburgh yesterday, the Cubs lost a game and a half to the leaders. This afternoon the Cubs will have a chance to catch up one game. But to do it they will have to take both games of a double header against the New York Giants, who seem to have come out of their coma during the St. Louis stand just concluded. The Pirates won't play today.

Brooklyn's victory split the series at two-all and brought the season's play between the two clubs to a temporary impasse, each team having won six games from the other. The feud will be resumed in Brooklyn in a four game series opening July 30.

Bud Starts Bad.

But on to the recording of yesterday's tragic events: The Brooklyns made two runs in the first inning through no one's fault except Mr. Tinning's. Dan Taylor singled with one out and got to second when Tinning made a bad throw to catch him off first. Stripp then tripled to the wall in left center, scoring Taylor, and scored himself on Wilson's fly to Barton. O'Doul beat out a bunt to Tinning, but was forced by Cuccinello.

The Cubs made a run in the second inning before a double play smothered an opportunity for further progress. Stephenson singled and Hornsby drew his first walk from Lefty Clark. The runners moved up on Barton's sacrifice. Grimm bounced to Wright, who dropped the ball, Stevie scoring, Hornsby reaching third and Grimm reaching first. Hartnett then hit into an unbelievably slow double play, started by Slade after he had plunged around a while trying to tag Hornsby off third.

There was no more scoring till the fifth, which was started by Wright bouncing a grounder under Hornsby's glove. Sukeforth beat out a grounder to Herman, Wright stopping at second. Clark forced Sukeforth and Wright went to third. Slade was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases and Taylor walked, forcing Wright to score. Hornsby got Stripp's grounder, but threw to second too late to get Taylor, Clark scoring. Wilson flied to Barton and the runners held their bases, then English threw out O'Doul.

Rogers Makes Another.

The Dodgers got another run after two were out in the sixth. With Cuccinello and Wright out of the way, Sukeforth bunted to Hornsby, who threw the ball away, Sukeforth pulling up at second, whence he scored on Clark's single to left. Slade forced Clark.

Stevie, who made three of the Cubs' four runs, got the second one in the sixth. He doubled with one out and went to third on Hornsby's infield single. Barton fanned, but Cuccinello fumbled Grimm's grounder, Stevie scoring and Capt. Charley reaching first. Hartnett flied to Taylor.

In the first of the eighth the Dodgers nicked Reliefer May for a run. O'Doul singled and went to second on Cuccinello's sacrifice bunt to Hornsby. Wright grounded to Hornsby, who made a bad throw to first, O'Doul reaching third. Sukeforth flied to Barton and O'Doul scored after the catch. Clark forced Wright.

Grimm Goes Umpire.

In their end of the eighth, the Cubs made two runs and got Clark so angry that he had to retire in favor of Quinn. Manager Carey also became

White Sox Get Only Two Hits; Beaten, 3 to 0

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Bob Kline, a mere youth of 21 years and some 220 pounds, awed the White Sox today as a circus elephant awes school kids. It may have been the youth's phenomenal size that made the Chicagoans forget to hit. Then again it may have been a back breaking curve ball that Kline insisted on serving his guests. At any rate he bowled over Fonseca's men on a portion of two hits, this feat enabling the Red Sox to record their only victory in the three game series at the expense of Pete Daglia, the Coast league rookie, who himself pitched pretty well. The score was 3 to 0.

With only two hits to their credit, the White Sox naturally didn't have much opportunity to clutter up the base lines. Four walks, along with the hits, enabled six of them to reach first base. Exactly two of the six traveled as far as second but nobody went beyond that point.

Hit Only Two Balls Hard.

Kline found further satisfaction in the fact that one of the hits off him was a mere scratch. The second was a legitimate extra base wallop and was half of all the balls the Chicagoans actually thumped hard. The other was a drive by Hayes, after Funk had walked to open the sixth. It sailed straight into Alexander's hands for an easy double play.

With the aid of an enemy skuller, Daglia got out of a bad situation with no more than one run scoring in the first inning. He began by passing Olson. Oliver singled into Fothergill's precinct. A tall fly disposed of Johnson, and Jolley followed with a line single to right center, scoring Olson and putting Oliver on third. A wild pitch let Jolley get to second. Then Alexander tapped to Daglia, who ran over to the line and chased Oliver

GERMANS ARRIVE IN NEW YORK! READY TO THRASH CHICAGOANS

But First They Must See Gotham from Bus.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Dressed in a uniform of gray slacks, blue jackets, white naval caps and neckties of a nose-bleed red, the eight amateur champion fighters of Germany came into New York today aboard the huge Europa, the proudest barge of the German marine, and bounced around the city with the speed of so much bad news trying to see it all in 24 hours.

The German champions arrived with the general squad of German Olympic athletes, a formidable crew, predominantly blonde and pink-complexioned, and the added presence of the Austrian Olympic team made this perhaps the largest single importation of good health ever unloaded in this port. You could hear their corpuscles snapping at one another when the ship was still out in the stream.

Ah, Weber and Fields!

The fighters were met at the pier by representatives of the Golden Gloves of Chicago who attempted to converse with them in Weber and Fields German and had no luck until one of the boxers stepped up who had a fairly fluent command of Weber and Fields English. After that, discussions were carried on in easy familiarity in such expressions as "vunce already," "ach Louie" and "Otto tie the dog loose."

The officials dealings, of course, were conducted on better terms, the head man of the team, Dr. Burger, being at home in several languages, including a smattering of American slang acquired from American boxers who visited Berlin last year. Dr. Burger knows the meanings of "Oh yeah?" and "Sez you?"

The ship tied up in Bay Ridge, which is in furthermost Brooklyn, separated from the more familiar regions of Manhattan by a wide expanse of the frowsiest streets and buildings on the eastern seaboard and the boxers did not reach their hotel until almost 4 o'clock. They were allowed a short time to tinker with the thermostats and puzzle over the familiar American notices requesting all guests not to order any ginger ale with unconstitutional intent before they were summoned to the lobby to fall in for a sight seeing tour.

They Look Real Good.

In the evening they were the guests of the German-American Athletic association at dinner at the New York A. C., and there was to be another

Gaw, Singers and Bands in Parade for German Boxers

Germany's amateur boxing champions will be received in Chicago tomorrow with all the acclaim a municipality noted for its hospitality reserves for distinguished visitors. The German squad will arrive at 1 o'clock [daylight saving time] on the Golden Arrow of the Pennsylvania railroad at Union station.

Two bands and hundreds of the official reception committee will assemble at Union station at 12:30 prepared to give the boys from across the sea a greeting which will surpass the heartiness of the welcome extended a year ago to the boxing champions of France.

"Sei gregrüsst in unserer Mitte," the German song of welcome, will be sung by the German United Male chorus, directed by Reinhold Walder, as the boys leave the train. The singers, one hundred strong, will meet in the train shed and, following their greeting, will accompany the German boxers to the rotunda of the station, where the reception committee and bands will add their cheers of welcome.

Greeter Gaw will represent the city. He also will lead the parade through the loop to the city hall, where city officials, in the absence of Mayor Cermak, will extend Chicago's welcome. Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, will represent that body and will accompany Mr. Gaw.

The order of march following the official car will be: Color bearers from the Medill post of the American Legion with the American flag; Board of Trade American Legion Post band, Arman Hand, conductor; American soldiers, German soldiers, Kiltie band, automobiles of members of reception committee, German boxers in open cars.

Hundreds of others, many of them of German origin, are expected to join in the festivities at the Union station. Although an official reception committee has been designated, that does not mean that any person will be prevented from joining in Chicago's welcome to the German boys. The parade following the festivities inside the station will form on Canal street, cross the south branch of the river on Jackson boulevard, and proceed north on La Salle street through the financial district to the city hall.

Following the visit to Mayor Cermak's office the boxers will be taken to the Ambassador hotel. Arrangements have been completed for the boys to train at the Germania club, 108 Germania place.

Metcalfe Wins Both Olympic Sprint Finals

Palo Alto, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—Topped off by a record breaking pole vault of 14 feet 4⅝ inches by Bill Graber of Southern California, the final American Olympic track and field tryouts, combined with the National A. A. U. championships, closed today.

On the way to this spectacular climax of the two day battle for places on the American Olympic team, four world records were surpassed, a fifth equalled, and Olympic records bettered in 10 of the 18 events. These features stood out:

1.—A sensational double victory in the sprints by the rangy Marquette university Negro, Ralph Metcalfe, a Chicago high school product, who led his dusky rival, Eddie Tolan of Detroit, and George Simpson, former Ohio State star, to the tape in 10.6 for the 100 meters, equalling the Olympic record, and in 21.5 for the 200, bettering the Olympic standard.

Venzke Fails.

2.—The failure of Gene Venzke, eastern ace and holder of the world indoor one mile record, to make the team as he finished fourth, in a 1,500 meter final, won by Norwood Penrose Hallowell of Harvard, in 3 minutes, 52.7 seconds, surpassing the American and Olympic records.

3.—Other upsets in which Frank Wykoff of Southern California, and Emmett Toppino of New Orleans, failed to make the 100 meter lineup and were forced to be content with being picked for the 400 meter relay team; and such national champions as Herman Brix of Los Angeles, in the shotput; Ed Flanigan of Los Angeles, in the hammer throw, and James De Mers of Los Angeles, in the javelin throw, all failing to make the team.

4.—A series of form reversals, aided by extension of the first day's qualifying list, in which Kenneth Churchill of the Olympic club, San Francisco, came back from sixth place to win the javelin throw with 222.31 feet, surpassing the Olympic record, and Dick Barber of Southern California, emerged from seventh position to lead the broad jumpers at 25 feet, 4⅝ inches.

Eastman Beaten.

5.—A comeback by Big Ben Eastman, Stanford's storm center, as he finished second in the 400 meter run, two yards behind Bill Carr of Pennsylvania, who raced to victory and a new world's record of 46.9 seconds.

Two of the four world record per-

Man o' War has sent a new champion to the American turf to carry on for him. It's Gusto, a grandson of the superhorse. And he's the new 3 year old champion of the year.

They crowned him at Arlington park yesterday afternoon in the presence of 30,000 spectators when he raced up from behind and won the Classic, worth $88,100, the world's richest 3 year old race.

He streaked around the mile and a quarter Arlington course in 2:03 3-5, and came up from the rear in time to beat Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchit by three lengths. Evergold, a field horse, was third, and Sazerac, another field horse, was fourth.

Top Flight Fifth.

Staggering home in fifth place after making a dazzling early pace, came Top Flight, the champion racing mare of the world. And in eighth place was Faireno, the Belmont stakes winner, dropping back and badly beaten. Eleventh in the field of 12 was Osculator.

Gusto raced in the white and brown jacket of Morton L. Schwartz, New York financier. He was ridden by the sensational young jockey, Silvio Coucci. And he was the best horse, for he was away last, he carried top weight of 126 pounds, and still won. He ran far back in the early stages, then circled his field to come up on the outside with a spectacular stretch run and win going away.

In that last desperate run down the stretch which brought Gusto his victory it wasn't the favorite, Top Flight, nor the second choice, Faireno, which caused Gusto to turn on full speed ahead to get the decision. It was the fast finishing Stepenfetchit, which had clung dangerously near Top Flight and Faireno while they were running each other into exhaustion.

Gusto's Second Great Victory.

It was Gusto's second great stake victory of the year. Only a month ago he captured the American Derby at Washington Park. He won that race over a heavy track. Folks thought he might be strictly a mudder. They thought it all the more when he traveled back east and was beaten by Faireno in the Belmont Stakes.

So it was natural that the thousands in the big crowd at Arlington had little respect for his chances to beat either Faireno or Top Flight over a lightning fast track. Wise handicappers figured the best he could do a mile and a quarter in was 2:06.

They didn't figure the old Man o' War determination to win. They didn't think Gusto could carry on over a fast track and even if he could they didn't think he could beat such stars as were sent against him.

Pays $20.54 to Win.

The result was that Gusto once more was a long shot. He was at $20.54 to win, $9.18 to place, and $5.36 to show. Stepenfetchit paid $8.62 to place and $5.96 to show. Evergold, the fielder, was at $5.42 to show.

As he raced from last place to victory, Gusto earned for his owner $76,600. Stepenfetchit added $7,000 to Mrs. Jack Whitney's bank roll when he landed in second place, and Evergold earned $3,000 for Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago by finishing third.

It's Dollar Day for Arlington Crowd Tuesday

In an effort to popularize racing with persons of greater Chicago who are unable to enjoy the sport under ordinary circumstances, Arlington Park will offer a "dollar day" on Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by President Otto W. Lehmann.

The regular scale of admissions will be suspended on Tuesday and entrance to the track, which includes grand stand and paddock, will be only a dollar. Admission to the enclosure section will be $2 more. State and government tax will be extra.

The feature attraction will be the Ravinia Claiming Sweepstakes, which, at one mile and three furlongs, will be one of the longest races offered during the meeting. The Ravinia is expected to have a value of $4,500.

PIRATES CAPTURE 2 FROM BRAVES; INCREASE LEAD

Win 1st, 2-1; Capture 2d, 9-8, in 10th.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 16.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Pirates cut down the Boston Braves in a double header today, 2 to 1 and 9 to 8. The second game, a thriller in which Boston called upon five pitchers, was won in the 10th inning.

The double victory increased the Pirates' hold on first place to three and one-half games over the Chicago Cubs, who lost to Brooklyn. Heinie Meine outpitched Huck Betts in the first game.

Pittsburgh got away to a four run lead in the early innings of the second contest, but Boston tied the game in the ninth.

REDS WHIP PHILS, 4-1.

Cincinnati, O., July 16.—(AP)—Doubles in the fourth and singles in the seventh gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4 to 1 victory over the Phillies today, their first win the four game series. Of the doubles, Estil Crabtree tried hardest for his. Statisticians counted a dozen even fouls before he connected for the first Red hit of the day. Hurst's triple in the seventh enabled him to score the Phillies only tally. Score:

St. Louis, Mo., July 16.—(AP)—The New York Giants made it three out of four from the Cardinals by taking the series final today, 4 to 1, behind the five hit pitching of Carl Hubbell.

The southpaw yielded only three hits for the first eight innings, striking out nine batters and missing a shutout because Eddie Marshall erred after two were out in the ninth.

MILAN, July 16.—[U.P.]—Germany won the final European zone Davis cup match today when the doubles team of Daniel Prenn and Gottfried von Cramm defeated Giorgio Destefani and A. Del Bono of Italy, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

The Germans won each of the first three matches, reducing tomorrow's final singles contests to an exhibition. Germany will meet the United States team in the interzone final. That winner will meet France in the challenge round.

Joe Kirkwood, trick shot golfer, and Jock Hutchison, Glen View professional, will meet George Smith and Dexter Cummings, Chicago pro-amateur team, at the Onwentsia club at 2 p. m. today. The match is for the benefit of the caddy fund.

Indians Beat Yankees, 8-1; Take Series

New York, July 16.—(AP)—Cleveland became the first visiting club to win a series at Yankee Stadium this season when they captured today's final, 8 to 1, to make it two out of three.

Led by Joe Vosmik and Willie Kamm, each with three hits, the Indians pounded MacFayden and Walt Brown for 13 hits. Harder yielded only six hits. Three of them came in the fourth inning when the Yanks scored their lone run.

The game was decided in the sixth, when a walk and three consecutive hits sent MacFayden to showers and gave the Indians all the lead they needed. Score:

FLORALS PLAY HOUSE OF DAVID 2 GAMES TODAY

Two nonleague double headers will be played in Chicago this afternoon by members of the Wisconsin-Illinois Semipro Baseball league. The House of David will meet the Duffy Florals at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets, and the Bills will face the Kansas City Monarchs in the last two games of a three game series at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street.

The Florals' hopes of defeating the House of David will depend on Johnny Brice and Joe Maley. Brice will pitch the first game and Maley the second. The House of David, in its last appearance in Chicago, dropped a double header to the Mills.

The Mills, who are leading the league by two games, will use Lefty Sullivan in the first game against the Monarchs, champions of the National Negro league. Either Doug McWeeney or Forest Paddock will hurl for the Mills in the second contest.

Sullivan will seek to add another victory to his long list when he faces the Monarchs. The spitball pitcher, the only one in the Wisconsin-Illinois league, has not tasted defeat since he rejoined the Mills a year ago this month.

There is only one league game scheduled today. The Logan Squares will travel to Sheboygan to meet the Sheboygan Chairs. The schedule follows:

Logan Squares at Sheboygan.

POLO GAME FOR OLYMPIC FUND AT OAKBROOK TODAY

Oak Brook will face Onwentsia this afternoon in a polo match for the benefit of the American Olympic fund. The game, starting at 4 o'clock, will be played on the No. 3 Oak Brook field, 22d street and York road, between Hinsdale and Elmhurst, and will mark the dedication of a new 2,500 seat stadium.

The Olympia Fields Country club polo team will meet Fort Sheridan at the fort this afternoon. Fort Sheridan won over the North Shore American Legion team in a charity game last week.

North Shore Polo club's quartet will meet the 122d field artillery squad this afternoon in the first game of a series for the Gen. Thomas S. Hammond trophy on the North Shore Polo field in Glen View road, one mile east of the Waukegan road.

YACHTS START LONG RACE TO MACKINAC ISLE

oratorical and was bounced out of the park by Umpire Barr. Stevie led off with his third hit. Hornsby lined to Slade and Barton walked. Grimm called a balk on Clark with lavish gyrations, a matter not exactly in his province but all right, because Umpire Barr agreed with him, waving Stevie to third and Barton to second.

It was after this that Carey was bounced. Grimm's exuberance at his coup was somewhat chilled when he fanned, but Hartnett came up with a swell single, scoring Stevie and Barton. This was the point where Clark gave way to Quinn. Hemsley had been called to bat for May, but when Clark went away Moore batted for Hemsley. Johnny couldn't keep the fun moving. He forced Hartnett for the third out. The Cubs couldn't get the ball out of the infield against Quinn in the ninth.

MALONE IN FIRST GAME

Pat Malone, who was to have pitched yesterday, was saved to pitch the first game of this afternoon's doubleheader with the Giants. He will be after No. 9. Root may return to service in the second game. Or it may be Bush.

Hack Wilson had an unhappy series while the Brooklyns were here, though he had been going great guns for several weeks prior to his arrival. In the four games the extent of Hack's slugging was one infield scratch single.

OUTBOARDS TO RACE TODAY AT FAIR LAGOON

A feature of the regatta will be the staging of several "bang and go back" races, in which the boats reverse their course and speed back to the starting line at the crack of a pistol. In this way the slowest boats have an equal chance to win. Boats found traveling slower on the outward course than on the return course will be disqualified.

Among the pilots to appear will be W. S. [Red] Woodworth and Mrs. Woodworth. Woodworth is a football coach at the University of Cincinnati and formerly played guard on the Northwestern university football team. He is one of the nation's outstanding outboard racers. Last year he won the Albany to New York marathon back to third. Meanwhile Jolley had arrived there, making two men on one base. This isn't permitted. So Daglia tagged Jolley. Oliver, not knowing that the man in front is entitled to the base, then stepped off and Daglia promptly tagged him for a double play.

Sponsoring today's event are the National Outboard association, the North Shore Outboard club, and the Jackson Park Motor club. Commodores J. W. Sackrider, Arthur Specht, Fred Ludolph, and Ray Platt are in charge of the program.

Seeds Is No Sun Flower.

The visiting Sox didn't get a bit of enjoyment out of Kline until the third inning and this wasn't anything worth whooping about. After two were out, Funk bounced a high one in front of the plate and reached first before any one could grab it. Nothing came of it. Seeds endeavored to start something by doubling against the left field fence to open the fourth, but Fothergill bounced out. Seeds was nailed going to third on Kress' tap to short, and Blue was tossed out by Olson.

Seeds is a one hundred per cent sundodger and his effort to prove this in the fifth gave Boston its second run. With one out Olson hoisted a tall, lazy fly to right. Seeds wanted to catch it all right, but in the excitement he put on his own interpretation of Pavlowa's Dance of the Dying Swan. Meanwhile the ball fell about six feet away, giving Olson a double. Oliver was tossed out easily by Hayes, but Johnson drove a single to center and Olson scored. Seeds did another sun dodging act in the sixth to give Warstler a cheap double, but two were out when this happened. Seeds then caught Connolly's fly.

Boston Earns One.

No alibis can be offered for the run scored off Daglia in the seventh. It was a case of hits and nothing else. Kline started this himself by singling to right. He was forced on Olson's bunt to Blue. Oliver lined a single to center, putting Olson on third.

Johnson singled in the same direction for his third offense against the Chicagoans, and Olson scored. Jolley let go with one of his terrifying drives, but Funk scooted back to the picket fence in center and pulled it down. Both runners advanced after the catch. Daglia then walked Alexander and ended the inning, also his day's labors, on McManus' grounder to Appling.

BABE DIDRIKSON, ONE GIRL TEAM, CAPTURES MEET

Texas Star Wins 5 Firsts in Olympic Trials.

Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, super-athlete of Dallas, Tex., was a one girl track team at Dyche stadium yesterday in the tryouts for the United States Olympic team. She won five first places, tied for another and took fourth in still another event.

The 19 year old miss accumulated a total of 30 points, sufficient to win the national women's A. A. U. team championship. The Illinois Women's Athletic club of Chicago was second with 22 points. Third place went to the Western Women's club of San Francisco with 13 points, while the Meadowbrook club of Philadelphia was fourth with 9.

Miss Didrikson won two of the five Olympic events on the program, the 80 meter hurdles and the javelin throw. In still another Olympic event, the running high jump, she tied for first place with Jean Shiley of Philadelphia at the new world's record height of 5 feet 3 3-16 inches.

Breaks Javelin Record.

Her effort of 139 feet 3 inches in the javelin likewise set a new record, surpassing her own former mark of 133 feet 5¼ inches. In her preliminary heat of the 80 meter hurdles she set a new world mark of :11.9 seconds, which was broken later in the day by Evelyn Hall of the I. W. A. C. of Chicago, who was clocked in 11.8 seconds in winning her preliminary heat.

In addition to her victories in the three Olympic events, the Dallas girl annexed first place in the shot put, the broad jump and the baseball throw. She followed up these performances by taking a fourth in the discus.

Five Chicagoans Qualify.

The Chicago girls and the events in which they won a place on the team were:

Ruth Osborn, high school girl of Shelbyville, Mo., was the only other to participate in the record breaking, along with Miss Didrikson. She tossed the discus 133 feet ¾ inches, which added nearly a foot to the former mark of 132 feet 1 inch, set by Hilina Konopacka of Poland in 1929.

Ethel Harrington, sprint star of the Illinois Women's A. C., nearly ruined her chances for a place on the Olympic team when she stopped running 10 yards from the finish in her preliminary heat of the 100 meter dash. She was leading at the time, and apparently thought she had crossed the finish line.

The officials went into a huddle and decided to permit the Chicagoan to enter the finals, but stipulated that she was not to receive an A. A. U. medal but merely run for a place on the Olympic team.

50 YARD DASH—Won by Dorothy Nussbaum, St Bernard, O.; Mary Ladewig, Meadowbrook club, Philadelphia, second; Alice Monk, Newark, N. J., third; Mary Hawkins, Pasadena, Cal., fourth. Time—:06 3-10.

80 METER HURDLES [finals]—Won by Mildred Didrikson, Dallas, Tex.; Evelyn Hall, I. W. A. C., Chicago, second; Simone Schaller, Pasadena, Cal., third; Lois Collor, I. W. A. C., Chicago, fourth. Time, :12.1.

SHOT PUT—Won by Mildred Didrikson, Dallas, Tex.; Rena MacDonald, Quincy, Mass., second; Carolyn Yetter, Meadowbrook club, Philadelphia, third. Distance, 39 feet 6¼ inches.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Ruth Osborn, Shelbyville, Mo.; Margaret Jenkins, San Francisco, second; Lillian Copeland, Los Angeles, third; Mildred Didrikson, Dallas, Tex., fourth. Distance, 133 feet ¾ inches. [New world's record. Former mark of 132 feet 1 inch held by Hilinaa Konopacka of Poland.]

220 YARD DASH [FINALS]—Won by Olive Hasenfus, Boston; Marie De May, Rankin, Pa., second; Olive Kruger, Chattanooga, Tenn., third; Lillian Janet, Lake Shore playground, Chicago, fourth. Time, :26.5.

100 METER DASH [FINALS]—Won by Ethel Harrington, I. W. A. C., Chicago; Wilhelmina von Bremen, San Francisco, second; Elizabeth Wide, Kansas City, third; Louise Stokes, Malden, Mass., and Mary Carew, Medford, Mass., tied for fifth; Tidye Pickett, Chicago, sixth. Time, :12.3.

BASEBALL THROW—Won by Mildred Didrikson, Dallas; Gloria Russell, San Francisco, second; Nan Gindele, I. W. A. C., Chicago, third; Frances Kanzius, Burgettstown, Pa., fourth. Distance, 272 feet 2 inches.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Mildred Didrikson, Dallas; Nellie Todd, I. W. A. C., second; Margaret Jordan, Carter playground, Chicago, third; Ruth Jaques, South Parks, Chicago, fourth. Distance, 17 feet 6½ inches.

RUNNING HIGH JUMP—Tied for first, Mildred Didrikson, Dallas, Tex., and Jean Shiley, Meadowbrook club, Philadelphia; Annette Rogers, I. W. A. C., Chicago, third. Height, 5 feet 3 3-16 inches. [New world's record; former mark of 5 feet 3 2-16 inches held by M. Gisolf, Holland.]

440 YARD RELAY—Won by I. W. A. C. team No. 1 [E. Hall, E. Harrington, M. Terwilliger, and A. Rogers]; I. W. A. C. team No. 2, second; Tower Grover Quarry A. C., St. Louis, third; South Parks, Chicago, fourth.

Fort Wayne Boy, 16, Wins Olympic Swim Team Place

Cincinnati, O., July 16.—(AP)—Sixteen year old Danny Zehr of Fort Wayne, Ind., flashed out in Coney Island pool today as the most sensational recruit among those chosen for the United States Olympic swimming team.

Nineteen in all, two short of the possible maximum because Clarence [Buster] Crabbe of Los Angeles and James R. Gilhula of Detroit qualified in two events, the team chosen in trials completed today will be mobilized as soon as planes and trains can take them to Los Angeles.

The closing day was one of alternating emotional highs and lows. The manager-coach of the Olympic swimmers, Robert J. H. Kiphuth, greeted the morning in apparent gloom as the surprising absence of the king of back strokers—George Kojac of New York—and ended it in glee at the unexpected uncovering of the youngster from Fort Wayne.

Kiphuth was just as enthusiastic over the work of Crabbe, who bettered the Olympic record a fifth of a second in a 400 meter free style preliminary, and in the final, lopped off four seconds more, to post 4:56 2-5.

Young Zehr led the field in the 100 meter backstroke with a time of 1:10 2-5—hearteningly close to Kojac's record of 1:09 3-5. Close behind was Robert Kerbert of Northwestern, timed at 1:11 1-5.

BREAK SWIM RECORDS

Jones Beach, N. Y., July 16.—[Special.]—America's Olympic stock in the women's swimming events soared to a new high today as two world records were broken on the final day's trials for positions on the United States swimming and diving team.

With a crowd of 35,000 assembled around the course, Helene Madison of Seattle, Wash. and Eleanor Holm of New York, sent the existing world records into the discard in the 400 meter free style, and the 100 meter back stroke finals, respectively.

Miss Madison's time for the 400 meters was 5:32 2-5, lowering the old record of 5:39 3-5.

Miss Holm took more than two seconds off the world mark for the back stroke in winning the final in 1:18 1-5. The old record was 1:20 3-5, made by Bonnie Mealing of Australia last year.

At the conclusion of the final event today, the spectacular high platform diving, in which Dorothy Poynton of Hollywood took first place over Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles and in which Helen Meany of New York, member of the last three Olympic teams, yielded third place to Marion Dale Roper of Los Angeles by three one-hundredths of a point, the United States women's Olympic committee made its official selections for the women's Olympic swimming and diving team.

Foot Itch—Athlete's Foot
Here's How to Treat It

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-24 at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

There are many other names given to this disease, but you can easily tell if you have it.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form and the skin cracks and peels. After a while the itching becomes intense and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

It has been said that this disease originated in the trenches, so some people call it Trench Foot. Whatever name you give it, however, the thing to do is to get rid of it as quickly as possible, because it is very contagious and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Most people who have Athlete's Foot have tried all kinds of remedies to cure it without success. Ordinary germicides, antiseptics, salves or ointments seldom do any good.

The germ that causes the disease is known as Tinea Trichophyton. It buries itself deep in the tissues of the skin and is very hard to kill. A test made shows that it takes 90 minutes of boiling to kill the germ, so you can see why the ordinary remedies are unsuccessful.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of treating Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. It peels off the infected skin and works its way deep into the tissue of the skin where the germ breeds.

As soon as you apply H. F. you will find that the itching is immediately relieved. You should paint the infected parts with H. F. night and morning until your feet are well. Usually this takes from three to ten days, although in severe cases it may take longer or in mild cases less time.

H. F. will leave the skin soft and smooth. You will marvel at the quick way it brings you relief; especially if you are one of those who have tried for years to get rid of Athlete's Foot without success.

Texas Girl's 30 Points Win National A. A. U. Women's Track Title—30,000 See Gusto Take Classic

WHEN COUNTRY'S BEST GIRL ATHLETES VIED FOR NATIONAL A. A. U. TITLES AND PLACES ON THE UNITED STATES OLYMPIC TRACK TEAM. Ethel Harrington of the Illinois Women's A. C. wins the 100 meter Olympic trial at Dyche stadium, with Wilhelmina von Bremen of San Francisco second and Elizabeth Wilde of Kansas City third. Miss Harrington nearly was deprived of a chance to make the Olympic team when she stopped ten yards from the finish line of a 100 meter preliminary, but the officials permitted her to enter the championship event because she was leading. (Story on page 2, Sports.)

MEET THE COUNTRY'S BEST GIRL TRACK TEAM. Mildred Didrikson of Dallas, Tex., who won five events, tied for first in another, and landed a fourth place in national meet at Dyche stadium. She scored 30 points for the team title and qualified for the Olympic games.

ARLINGTON CLASSIC TROPHY GOES TO NEW YORK FINANCIER. Morton L. Schwartz, owner of Gusto, receives from Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling gold cup which his 3 year old won in mile and quarter duel yesterday. The others are Jockey S. Coucci and Trainer Max Hirsch. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

TOP FLIGHT IS IN FRONT, BUT IT'S STILL A MILE BEFORE PAYOFF NUMBERS ARE HUNG UP IN THE CLASSIC. Jockey R. Workman rushes the champion filly to the front at the quarter pole, with Springsteel in closest pursuit. Most of the crowd which made Top Flight the favorite wished this was the mile and a quarter pole, for she was outrun in the stretch and came in fifth, seven lengths behind the flying Gusto. At this stage Gusto, No. 5, was back in the third flight, letting the horses with early speed burn up their energy. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

WHEN IT DID NOT PAY TO BALK AT A BALK. Max Carey, Brooklyn manager, tells Umpire Barr he doesn't know a balk and is ordered out of Cubs' park in the eighth inning. The umpire's decision put two Cubs in position to score. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

LARGEST CROWD OF SEASON LURED BY DUEL OF 3 YEAR OLDS. Railbirds, part of the 30,000 Classic throng, watch Jockey Coucci report at the judges' stand following his victory on Gusto in $86,000 race. Most of them probably are wondering why they did not wager on the little New York Italian youngster. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

ONLY TIME HORNSBY FAILED TO GET ON BASE IN FOUR ATTEMPTS. Cubs' manager smashes a line drive over third, but Slade plucks it out of the air in the eighth inning. Rogers walked twice and singled to shortstop, but his work at the plate was offset by loose fielding at third base, the Cubs losing to Brooklyn, 6 to 4.

POST TIME IS JITTER TIME TO RACE OWNERS

They're More Nervous than Horses in Classic.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

While the big crowd was watching the dozen starters in the Arlington Classic during the brief delay at the post yesterday, one heard occasional impatient expressions because Evergold, Osculator, and to a lesser extent, Faireno, were nervous at the barrier. These highly bred youngsters probably didn't know exactly what was happening, but they knew it was something unusual because of the large crowd before whom they had paraded down the length of the stretch to the quarter mile post.

If this dozen aristocratic horses, best 3 year olds of the year still in training, had really known they were about to run for the richest purse of the year for the age, $76,600 net to the winner, to be exact, probably more than the three named would have been nervous.

Owners? They're All Nervous!

Three out of twelve is a low average in nervousness compared to that displayed by eleven owners present. W. S. Kilmer was the only absentee among those having a starter in the race. This tension, both before and after the race, showed in various ways. Mort and Charley Schwartz, as they are known to their intimates, New York financiers and owners of Gusto, appeared calm on the surface until Gusto began that same kind of a stretch run that carried him to victory in the American Derby at Washington Park a month ago. Then they stood up in their box and whether or not they made the noise, there was plenty of noise emanating from their party after the finish line was crossed.

Yet Mr. M. L. Schwartz made no secret of the nervousness an owner feels before a big race. He had a morning engagement to play golf at Lake Forest. When Maj. Frederic McLaughlin phoned to remind him of the time he replied, "I might as well confess. There's no use of my trying to play golf; I'm so nervous I couldn't come within three or four inches of even hitting a ball off the tee."

This writer could not see Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Whitney, owners of the favorite Top Flight, during the running of the race because of the crowd around. I asked Mrs. John Hertz, whose house guests the Whitneys are during their Chicago stay, what they said after their pride had finished outside the money for the second time in her career. "I was afraid even to talk to them," she replied.

Woodward Masks Feelings.

While I was standing in the aisle, crowding among the notables, the owners of the defeated filly came along. It was a few minutes after the Classic. "What would you like to do now?" we overheard their host ask. And what do you think Mr. Whitney replied? It was: "Let's go swimming." Mrs. Whitney nodded assent. They left immediately thereafter for Leona Farm without waiting to see the card completed. Both appeared tired and worn.

William Woodward, chairman of the Jockey Club of New York, who became accustomed to triumphs when Gallant Fox carried his colors, sat in the more or less stolid calm befitting a big banker during the race in which his Faireno, second choice in the speculation, raced out in front with Top Flight during the early stages.

Since French Lane is telling about the horses and this writer is trying to tell of the people, take a stroll with us, if you will, and see what we can see. First let's crash the Post and Paddock club.

There is Stanley Field, evidently not wondering about the affairs of the Marshall Field estate; Potter Palmer Jr. and Maj. Frederic McLaughlin sitting at a table with their ladies. Alfred Cowles walks by with W. R. Odell and shakes hands with the gentlemen at the Field table. John D. Cady, once of Rock Island but now of Chicago, also passes and nods.

Backers for Faireno.

Gen. Abel Davis is with Ben Stein and a large party and express a preference for Faireno in the Classic. Tom Wilson nods with his familiar smile, and it is evident he is thinking of horses and not cattle and hogs, as during the week. Ben Marshall, who is just as proud of his Post and Paddock architectural work as of the Drake and Edgewater Beach hotels, chats with his two daughters, and says, "They're making me a $2 better."

Robert Shaffner, an old schoolmate, displays the conservatism of his investment house as he seeks counsel from Herman Waldeck and Jack Craddock, vice presidents of the Continental Illinois bank. John R. Thompson Jr. approaches and is declared in on the conversation. Then along comes John A. Stevenson and he chats with Charley Glore.

McCulloch, Hurley Chat.

Charley McCulloch and Edward N. Hurley, co-receivers of the Middle West Utilities company, one of these unfortunate Insull concerns, engage in earnest conversation. We eavesdrop to learn it is about Top Flight and Farieno rather than their efforts to balk New York bankers. Albert D. Lasker joins them.

Passing along, I shake hands with Ort Wells, who appears lonesome without his old time crony, George Ade, who is summering at his farm at Brook, Ind. Warren Wright, who conceives it a civic duty to reform a former political Lincoln park board, is chatting with John Ritchie, who regrets that the Omnibus corporation does not have a route to Arlington park to carry the crowds.

Passing into the enclosure, one shakes hands with Nate Lewis, who makes those pugilistic matches for the Stadium, Tom Hogan, whom every one in Chicago calls up when they want a yellow cab on a rainy night; Jess Frazier, who finds it more profitable to close his Lake street restaurant, popular with the sporting clan, during the summer than to operate it; Hoyt Smith, whom perhaps you have met at Col. Bradley's beach club at Palm Beach; Charles Levy and Louis Rose talking newspaper circulations; Benny Yanger, who was once under the management of John Hertz; Jack Keene of the Keeneland stable; Jack Lenfesty, who liked Minton for about $96 for $5; Ken Rodgers, golf, bridge, and turf expert, with Phoe[illegible] of the sprightly New York

Sazerac's share for being fourth was $1,500.

Few races have ever been run that provided more thrills. There was a delay of seven minutes at the post while the greatest jockeys in the country sparred for an advantage. Woolf on Evergold and Malley on Faireno caused most of the delay. Workman would not bring Top Flight into her stall until he thought the others were all in line. He kept the great mare as far away from her male rivals as possible in the parade to the post and while they were at the gate.

They're Off! Springsteel First.

It was a perfect start when Dickerson finally gave them the word. Springsteel, which started from a position next to the rail, was the first to poke his nose in front. Prince Hotspur was away second, Top Flight was third into motion, Faireno fourth, and Gusto was running last.

They were only at the judges' stand when Workman shot Top Flight into the lead and she rounded the Post and Paddock club turn in the lead next to the rail and Faireno second on the outside. Stepenfetchit's head was between the two leaders, but he was third.

Then came a desperate battle down the back stretch. It was the kind of a battle the crowd had come to see. Top Flight and Faireno were fighting desperately for the lead. Stepenfetchit wasn't far behind them, but was content to lay back and let the two speed horses run it out.

Top Flight Rallies.

Heading into the lower turn Faireno was passing Top Flight. A mighty shout went up for the Belmont stakes winner. But when Workman came again an instant later on Top Flight it appeared as if he had been giving the filly a breathing spell.

As they headed into the homestretch Top Flight and Faireno were only heads apart. Stepenfetchit was third and Gusto had pulled up from last place into fourth position.

Faireno was the first to crack under the desperate pace, and when he dropped back Top Flight seemed to think her day's work was over. Her strides began to shorten. It was then that Stepenfechit moved out into the lead and a great cheer went out for him.

Ride 'Im, Coucci!

Now Gusto was just beginning to run. The sensational but tiny Coucci was riding him with whip and heel. He was urging the grandson of Man o' War on to greater strides. And Gusto responded. One hundred strides from the finish he was going along nose and nose with Stepenfechit. Then he shot forward under Coucci's strong ride and was going away when he passed the finish line.

While Top Flight and Faireno seemed to be scorching the track in the early part of it, they were not going as fast as most people supposed. The first quarter was run in 1:23 3-5, the half in :47, and the three-quarters in 1:11. They were at the mile in 1:37, when both of them gave up the struggle.

Gusto's daddy is American Flag, regarded by many as the best son Man o' War ever produced. Gusto's mother was Daylight Saving, a daughter of Star Shoot. She came from Hamburg Place, one of the most noted thoroughbred nurseries in the world. Gusto is bred to run far and fast and represents the most successful cross of Man o' War blood.

"Outrun" Says Workman.

Despite Gusto's long price, which indicated that not many people backed him, there was great cheering for him when he came back to salute the judges and be unsaddled. No excuses were offered for either Top Flight or Faireno.

"We were outrun," was the only comment Workman, who rode Top Flight, and Malley, who was atop Faireno, would make. Poor old Osculator's defeat was the most pitiful of all. He had come to be noted as a "second" horse.

The Classic was a thrilling horse race. Gusto was a great horse yesterday. If Classic tradition holds true Gusto will go on to gain more fame for his granddaddy, Man o'War, the superhorse.

GAY CROWD OF SOCIETY FOLK CHEERS CLASSIC

Post and Paddock Club Scene of Luncheons.

BY ROBERTA NANGLE.

Chicago society, augmented by scores of visiting notables from all parts of the United States, formed a large and colorful part of the excited crowd which saw Gusto win the Classic at Arlington yesterday afternoon. In the clubhouse boxes and in the adjoining Post and Paddock club fashionable turf followers cheered with as much abandon as their grandstand neighbors when the Schwartz horse raced across the finish line to victory.

Excitement ran highest immediately after the big race when everybody rushed to congratulate Morton L. Schwartz and his brother, Charles. The two Schwartzes performed a sort of Indian war dance around Mrs. John Hertz, Mrs. Albert D. Lasker, and a few more persons standing close by.

Are They Downcast? No!

Not far away the John Hay Whitneys, whose Stepenfetchit came in second in the big race, gave no evidence of disappointment at not making first place. Young Mrs. Whitney, who wept quietly last year when her mother-in-law's Twenty Grand failed to win the Classic, smiled calmly and flipped over a page of her program for the next race. She was wearing a smart printed silk in dark tones and a black straw hat.

The Cornelius V. Whitneys, whose Top Flight had been the mistaken choice of so many followers, also took their loss with apparent nonchalance. Mrs. Whitney's frock was a printed silk on a white background. She wore a wide brimmed white straw hat. The four Whitneys and the Austin H. Niblacks were box guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hertz, but they spent most of the afternoon circulating among other boxes.

Other out-of-town owners of Classic entries were William Woodward of New York, who went up to the roof of the clubhouse to watch his Faireno run, and Col. E. R. Bradley of Kentucky, who focused glasses on his Bubble Up from the terrace of the Post and Paddock. Young Tommy Leiter, with his sister, Nancy, and his cousin, Audrey Campbell, headed a group of young Chicagoans who cheered for the Leiter horse, Prince Hotspur.

Luncheon Parties Numerous.

The Post and Paddock club was crowded with luncheon parties before the first race and during the rest of the afternoon the outdor tables were sought by members looking for lighter refreshments. Robert F. Carr had one of the largest parties, his guests including his son and daughter, Robert F. Jr., and Miss Florence Carr; his older daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins; Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Iglehart of Evansville, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, Herman Waldeck, and Pierre L. Barbey of Tuxedo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Voorhees, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cathcart, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon were guests of the Silas H. Strawns. Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Lehmann, who gave their annual classic party last night at the Post and Paddock club, had Mrs. Edward B. McLean and Mrs. Blaine Beale of Washington as their guests at the races. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCartney of Washington were with the Arthur W. Cuttens.

Wear Simple Sports Attire.

Mrs. Howard Linn was another outstanding figure in her pink cotton dress with a skirt draped in apron fashion over a white cotton underskirt, and a large pink hat of loosely woven straw. Miss Polly Perry, who was escorted by her father, I. Newton Perry, looked cool and pretty in her simple, sleeveless dress of very thin white silk jersey, cut with a low back and untrimmed save for a narrow brown belt of the same shade as her wide brimmed straw hat.

Among the other smartly dressed young women present were Miss Louise Brewer, in a pale green printed frock and hat; Miss Geraldine Swift, in a chartreuse green silk dress and black straw hat; Miss Constance Hasler, in a beige crêpe ensemble and brown hat; Miss Anne Schuttler, whose thin wool lace dress over a pink slip was attractively set off by her hat, gloves, and slippers of brown; and Miss Narcissa Swift, who wore a pale blue crêpe dress and hat—Miss Edith Behr, in a beige frock and natural straw hat trimmed with blue flowers, and Miss Marjorie Horton, in an aquamarine blue dress with a matching three-quarter length jacket and white toque. Miss Beatrice Kirk wore an unusual dress of pale blue crêpe with sleeves cut out to reveal the shoulders, giving the effect of long blue gloves.

Among the numerous box hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall, who had with them Miss Dorothy Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Fleming; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carruthers, who were accompanied by Mrs. Carruthers' sister, Miss Jessie Bond of Kentucky; Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Keehn, who were hosts to Admiral and Mrs. W. S. Crosley; Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field, Mr. and Mrs. Britton I. Budd, and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr.

Bordens Are Armour Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurance Armour's guests included the John Bordens, who are here from Whitehall, Mich., for the week-end; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Healy, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas. Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., home for a few weeks from Washington, was with her parents, [illegible]

Tribune Auto Spends Sunday Near Chicago

BY HAL FOUST.

Motorists unable to take a trip this summer to the Pacific coast, to Yellowstone National park, to Quebec or to Maine, might try a drive in Chicagoland. As Lowell's Sir Launfel sought the Holy Grail "in many climes without avail," so Chicago automobile owners might find the recreation they are seeking on streets of the city and roads of the metropolitan area untraveled in their daily routines.

THE TRIBUNE roadster took a homeland tour last Sunday afternoon. The trip started at the destination of many excursionists from distant states, The Tribune Tower. The Gothic cathedral of journalism—"a banner in stone, flinging skyward a soaring sweep of gray lines and mass"—is visited each year by thousands of travelers from all parts of America and Europe.

West on Wacker Drive.

The roadster filed between ornamental bridge houses to cross the river that flows in two directions, thence turning west on the upper deck of the broad waterside pavements of Wacker drive. It's a familiar locale to most Chicagoans but it's generally visited while minds are occupied by business. On a pleasure drive, the eye is receptive to the grace of the steel and concrete spans across the river, and to the bulk, lines and coloring of skyscrapers.

Turning south in La Salle street, the reporter rode in the broad thoroughfare between tall buildings erected since a vigorous young city a few years ago cut a wide path for motor cars into the very center of its business district. After passing the old city hall and county building, the automobile cruised into the narrow section of La Salle street, between rows of bank buildings, the financial heart of interests spreading throughout the world. At the head of the street, facing northward down this Wall street of Chicago, is the new skyscraper home of the Chicago Board of Trade wherein demand is weighed against supply in evaluating in gold the products of the soil and of labor.

Past Union Station.

Turning west in front of the Chicago Board of Trade building, the roadster crossed the Chicago river on the Jackson boulevard bridge, passing the Union station of this world's railroad center and with a view to the south of the new postoffice under construction.

Thence south on Canal street, the car bumped over the broad but rough pavement of granite blocks damaged by heavy trucks. On the east side of the street, are railroad freight terminals and parked nearby was a fleet of intercity trucks, the carriers riding through the depression better than the older form of transportation.

On the west side of Canal, are old dilapidated buildings, many of smoke stained wood, housing cheap hotels, unemployment offices and miscellaneous shops. Looking westward down side streets could be seen frame houses, some erected soon after the Chicago fire. It is a neighborhood depreciated for residence by the encroachment of factories that have not yet taken over the entire area.

A little farther south, where there is greater accessibility to trackage, is an established factory district producing shoes, tin ware, catalogs, machinery and other articles of almost as wide variety as the merchandise displayed in a 5 and 10 cent store.

At about 1600 south an unusual structure carries Canal street traffic on a viaduct over a set of railroad tracks at the same place where other tracks on a higher viaduct are carried over the vehicular traffic. It's a three level railroad-highway grade separation.

The roadster turned southwest in Archer avenue, the historic route of one of the first plank roads in the Chicago area. There are factories on one side of the street and on the other side are small shops of a character typical of semi-industrial neighborhoods.

A Closed Brewery.

At Throop street and Archer avenue is a six story brick building with boards nailed over some of its windows. It's a brewery, one of the monuments to prohibition.

South on the wide pavements of Ashland avenue the roadster passed through one community business center after another. The names on store windows include Brykczynski, real estate; McGowan, coal; Schroeder, undertaker, and Swanson, signs.

In some of the business districts automobiles were parked vertical or diagonal from the curb, destroying the utility of pavement widening that cost millions of dollars.

An east bound 63d street car was jammed with families en route to the lake front—a heavy set woman with a cloth covered basket in one arm and three small children standing beside her in the aisle, a plump young woman in white sailor pants, two schoolboys wearing nothing but knickers, shoes, and bathing suits.

The roadster headed west in Marquette road, also known in places as 67th street. The narrow boulevard has individuality. Trees and shrubs flourish on both sides of the street. East of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania railroad viaduct are small and neat cottages, mostly of frame, with stairs leading from sidewalks to porches. West of the tracks two and three story brick apartment houses predominate.

The south park board a few years ago had funds allotted for the widening of Marquette road. The home owners objected and had their way. They didn't want their trees and shrubs disturbed, nor did they want the fumes, noise, and hazards of heavy traffic. As THE TRIBUNE car passed a smiling mother was photographing a freshly washed son and daughter sitting on tricycles. It's that kind of a neighborhood.

From 20 to 40 Feet.

West of Kedzie avenue the pavement is virtually impassable, as the street borders Marquette park with its green acres, including a golf links, a lagoon, baseball diamonds, and quiet, shady walks and benches.

The roadster was jogged back to Western avenue to pick up the Southwest highway at about 74th street. A 20 foot pavement carried traffic through undeveloped real estate subdivisions between railroad tracks to the city limits at 87th street. There the concrete widened to 40 feet, following the general rule that traffic accommodations [illegible] in the country than in the cities, where they are needed most.

The broad pavement, starting and ending without a termination of importance, ran into Ridgeland avenue. After four more jogs, followed by the aid of THE TRIBUNE Chicagoland map and not with the assistance of any road markers, another section of the Southwest highway was picked up in Palos Park.

An Engineering Atrocity.

Lost in an area of wooded hills, small streams, and valleys grown with wild grasses and flowers is a grade separation at the intersection of 123d street and Southwest highway, an engineering atrocity completed by the Cook county highway department two years ago at a cost of $150,000. There are only two ramps between the intersecting pavements and these are narrow, with sharp bends in an arrangement that would be convenient for bicycles but not automobiles.

Continuing southwest on the Southwest highway, thence on 143d street, the Wolf road, and the Southwest highway again, the roadster idled through landscapes of rolling farms, woods, pasture meadows, and growing crops to Joliet. There were few billboards to mar the scenery. This is a new road and little traveled. If the scenery should attract traffic the commercial placards will probably be erected to destroy the attraction.

Into Joliet.

In Joliet, industrial city of 43,000, thirty-nine miles from the loop, the route 4A markers were picked up to reach route 7 for a visit to the Illinois waterway development just southwest of the city. In the city itself, named after Louis XIV.'s explorer of the inland waterway, new and higher bridges are under construction and retaining walls of concrete are going up so the waters of the Des Plaines river can be raised sixteen feet to accommodate a commerce that was a seventeenth century dream of Louis Joliet.

Below the city is the masonry of dam, locks, and spillways, Brandon pool. A rough macadam side road over an old narrow bridge gives a close-up of the structure and of the present dredging work. From a hill on the south side of the river one gets a good view of the work.

Back through the bumpy and narrow streets of Joliet, the roadster trailed the Ill. 4 markers to pick up a forty foot pavement that is the fast route to Chicago. It passed the giant funnels, coils, and stacks of Joliet's steel plants, passed the new state prison and ran northward through a rich farm area.

A Real Estate Development.

About ten miles north of Joliet, where Ill. 4 follows a new forty foot concrete cut-off, THE TRIBUNE car turned left on the old two lane slab formerly part of the Joliet route. This led to a new and virtually idle pavement on the incomplete Ill. 53, a circumferential route designed to promote some real estate subdivisions.

Since it's the motorists' tax money being used for the special benefit of real estate interests, the driving public can use the completed sections of Ill. 53 and find a pavement gracefully swinging through woods and farm land in the gentle hills near the east branch of the Du Page river. The detours are rough.

At the intersection of Ogden avenue and Ill. 53 the state is building an elaborate grade separation that will cost $143,962 and at Roosevelt road and 53 is another grade separation that will cost $80,588. Either Roosevelt road or Ogden avenue can be used for a trip over four lane pavements into Chicago—and motorists might note that nothing has been done at congested and dangerous intersections, such as those with Mannheim road, toward [illegible] two level crossings.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

BAD DRIVING.

Chicago, July 13.—Much has been said and many books have been printed about traffic rules, but there is still much danger caused by those drivers who still insist on passing another car at an intersection or crossroads after blowing their horns, regardless of the hand signal for a turn from the leading car. Many crackups can be seen on corners because the following cars were in a big hurry going nowhere.

Another bad trick of drivers is to turn on their bright lights during a rain, when the pavement is wet and slippery. It causes a very bad glare to oncoming motorists by reflecting from the wet pavement, and no amount of light thrown ahead on wet streets or highways will do the driver any good. Prove it to yourselves. F. A. NORDIC.

SLOW ON JACKSON.

Flossmoor, Ill., July 13.—I am calling attention to a bit of nonsensical traffic arrangement which is now in effect in the loop in Chicago and which has been commented upon by several people. Perhaps, through your good column, the police department might take notice and relieve the condition.

The "stop" and "go" lights on Jackson boulevard from Michigan avenue west to Market street are so arranged that no matter when one starts from either end and no matter how slowly one travels, he finds the next light set against him with the resultant condition that cars are jammed up at each intersection on Jackson boulevard waiting for the east and west signal.

It takes about twice as long to travel on Jackson boulevard as it does on any other street. Perhaps these lights are set for the slow moving buses with the necessity of their waiting for passengers at each corner. If this is the case, it is certainly unfair to the thousands of cars which use this boulevard daily.

It seems to me that these lights should be stepped up to at least a speed of 15 to 20 miles per hour through the loop. H. ROY GORDON.

AUTO TAX DODGERS.

Chicago, July 6.—Draw your own conclusions: In one block, between Glenlake and Granville, on Winthrop, tonight at 6 o'clock I counted eleven cars without city vehicle license tags and four without state plates. E. J. ZAHORIK.

TEN YEARS AGO.

Hammond, Ind., July 14.—I notice in the "Ten Years Ago" column of the Lake County Times, Hammond, Ind., that construction was to be started on the "ideal section" of the Lincoln highway just ten years ago this month.

This was the beginning of the movement for forty foot pavements, which has been so ably advanced by you and your newspaper. Today hundreds of miles of such pavement exists as a result of this first experiment on the Lincoln highway in Lake county, Ind.

The world does move! ROSCOE E. WOODS.

HEAVY TRUCKS BREAKING UP ROADS, STREETS

Concrete Crumbles Under Legal Loads.

Heavy trucks are breaking pavements of city streets and of rural roads. The damage from these highway freighters is particularly bad during excessive temperatures, such as the hot spell of last week, when the concrete is expanded by the sunshine of the day and the slabs curl with the cool of evening.

Roosevelt road, one of the heaviest traveled farm-to-market routes in the world, has cracks even in the new pavement laid two years ago in widening. Through Wheaton, on older concrete paid by special assessments on abutting property, the surface is bumpy and crumbling from the haul of live stock to the stockyards and from the freighting of merchandise from Chicago's wholesale houses. On North avenue, east of 25th avenue, the edges of the four year old slabs have been crushed.

Dig Holes in Streets.

In Chicago there is scarcely a pavement that does not show damage from the heavier carriers. The big trucks are digging holes in the streets today just as the coal wagons were the pavement wreckers in the horse age.

The 1931 Illinois legislature raised the taxes against trucks, but there is still some doubt whether they pay enough to compensate for their use and their abuse of streets and highways. The advance in excise rates varied with different classifications, but a typical example of the increase was a boost from $22.50 to $35 a year on a vehicle weighing five tons loaded. By comparison passenger car licenses range from $8 to $25. The truck fees range from $10 to $250.

Wheel Load of Four Tons.

Thomas McDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, in testifying recently before the interstate commerce commission, said: "Heavier trucks and buses by the higher tax which they are paying, and particularly through the collection of gasoline taxes, are fully meeting all excess costs of construction due to the increased pavement thickness that that is made necessary by these heavier loads."

The Illinois law specifies that the maximum load on any one axle of a vehicle shall not exceed 16,000 pounds, a wheel load of 8,000 pounds. A wheel load of 9,000 pounds, according to the bureau of public roads, requires a concrete pavement with a seven and a half inch edge and a center thickness of six and a half inches. The standard pavement design in Illinois is a seven inch center and a nine inch edge.

Other Considerations.

"These figures would indicate that properly loaded trucks can not damage the pavements in Illinois," said George Barton, Chicago Motor club engineer, "but figures are sometimes deceptive. In the first place, the slabs are able to withstand their maximum load only when all conditions are favorable. With an edge of the concrete or the edge of a crack unsupported from below, due to a soil washout or to the curving influence of irregular changes of temperature, the slab will break with much less weight.

"Also, a small bump in a road will multiply the impact of a wheel. A pneumatic tire with a load of 6,000 pounds going over a one inch bump at thirty miles an hour will hit the pavement a blow equal to 28,000 pounds."

Trucks Sometimes Overloaded.

Many of the commercial carriers operating out of Chicago carry close to their maximum load. Occasionally one is overloaded, notwithstanding the vigilance of the state highway police, and the highway department estimates that one overloaded truck will cause as much pavement damage as fifteen or twenty loaded to the legal limit.

"Not only do the trucks damage pavements," said Mr. Barton, "but they are also a hazard to passenger travel familiar to every driver. They pay a higher annual license and a greater gas tax per mile, but the lumbering freighters hog the narrower pavements and are slow moving barricades to passenger traffic."

NEWS AND VIEWS

A De Soto custom built town car was introduced last week. Furnishings are de luxe. The wheel base is 121⅜ inches, leaving room for comfort together with a chauffeur compartment. Plymouth, another branch of Chrysler Motors, announced a new taxicab.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has opened a concrete paved and well lighted parking lot for the use of customers visiting its west side retail store by automobile.

Hudson is expected to announce a low priced Essex this week.

THE GERMANS ARE COMING! THEY'LL FIND GOLDEN GLOVERS READY

No, this isn't a marathon, just the Chicago Golden Gloves squad out for a morning jog at Lake Wawasee, Ind., where the boxers are preparing to meet the champions of Germany at Soldiers' field on July 26.

HOW DO GERMANS BOX? IT PUZZLES GOLDEN GLOVERS

Are They Like Tunney or Dempsey?

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 16.—Now that the half way mark in training has been reached, what are the chances of Chicagoland's Golden Gloves team against the champions of Germany at Soldiers' field July 26? Will the German boys, veterans of the stiffest national tournament ever held, and of a series of international competitions triumph? Or will the Golden Gloves team whip the invaders? This is the question.

It is difficult to offer a satisfactory answer. For one thing the strength of the German squad is unknown. It will remain a riddle even when the Germans start training Monday afternoon at the Germania club. To a certain extent the Chicago boys are shooting in the dark.

Reports on Germans Conflict.

Those of the national A. A. U. who took a team of New York and Boston boxers to Germany a year ago, where they were defeated 10 bouts to 6, have reported that the Germans are aggressive. They have said they are rugged, tough and willing to take a punch to land one. The knockout records, almost incredible, of the Germans bear out this statement. On the other side of the ledger, Heinz Reichmann, the Berlin writer, who has visited the Golden Gloves camp at Wawasee, and who has written his impressions for THE TRIBUNE, avers that the Germans are excellent boxers. They stress defense, Reichmann says.

We have seen Max Schmeling, and certainly his style of fighting is methodical, well planned in advance and adhered to with a bulldog tenacity. Perhaps Reichmann is correct. It is impossible that the German boys can be both aggressive and expert exponents of defense.

Reichmann, who knows personally several of the German boxers, has told us in our conversational visits of the training methods for amateurs in vogue in the Fatherland.

Stress Mastery in Boxing.

In Germany boxing clubs are formed which have as sole purpose the study of the technique of the game. For as small a sum as 25 cents a month, a boy may receive instruction. He is not permitted to compete for several months, or until his teacher is certain he has mastered boxing to the point that he should test his skill in public combat.

Here the practice is different. For one thing, boxing is not taught save by professionals. Boxing clubs are run for profit and we know of none in which the monthly fee is less than $5. As soon as the amateur knows a left jab from a right cross, he is sent into the ring to try his skill. Only the best survive. They gain experience as they go along. From this sink or swim process of instruction, however, have come such boys as Johnny Phagan and Leo Rodak, probably the outstanding members of the Golden Gloves team of 1932. Phagan has boxed four years, Rodak two years.

Cut Down on Ring Work.

The Chicago squad arrived at Lake Wawasee a week ago today. Actual boxing commenced Tuesday. In addition to morning exercises, all, except those excused because of illness, put in two rounds daily in the ring. Yesterday they tapered to one round with accompanying work on the bags and with the skipping ropes. The same process was followed today. Tomorrow all will be permitted to rest from actual combat. Then will come the final drive for condition.

It is apparent that the eight lads selected from this squad will be aggressive. Several excel in boxing, but all are willing to stand up and exchange wallops. Action, speed and determination, form the basis on which coaches Johnny Behr and Jabber Young believe success will be built.

The international fights July 26 will surpass the intercity combats with New York in Madison Square Garden just as a prima donna of opera surpasses the best effort of a jazz singer crooner. Team spirit is here. Our boys want to win from Germany. And this applies equally as well to the lads of German extraction as it does to the Belgian boy, Rothier, the Italian, Tonelli, the Jew, Cohen, the Lithuanian, Smith, and the Negro, Phagan.

"America, we're here!" That was the shout of Germany's amateur boxing champions when they docked in New York yesterday. Today they will entrain for Chicago and the Golden Gloves fights at Soldiers' field.

In the Wake of the News

GOLDEN GLOVE BOUTS.

ONE cannot have been in camp for a whole week with sixteen earnest young fellows training for international amateur boxing bouts without assimilating some of their enthusiasm, without sympathizing with their ambitions, or without becoming intensely interested in the future of the boys under observation.

Understand, these Chicagoland boxers who will meet the strong German team at Soldiers' field July 26 in the second international Golden Gloves tourney do not receive any pay for their services. Their training expenses and necessary equipment are furnished. That is all. Yet to them these coming bouts seem just as important as if they were Schmeling or Sharkey preparing for a world heavyweight title bout with the rich earnings which usually follow with the name of "champion." If any proof were needed, their strict adherence to training discipline supplies it.

Now then, let's go behind the scenes at the Lake Wawasee, Ind., camp and try to get the viewpoint of these boys and how they feel about this contest which promises to be the greatest amateur boxing contest ever held anywhere. First, is there any animosity toward the invading Germans because of the world war?

Emphatically "No!" Most of these chaps were too young to know anything much about the world war, and anyway, even with others, feeling has pretty generally subsided in the fourteen years since the armistice. The visiting Germans will be treated by Chicagoland boxers as one sportsman would treat another—a team to be beaten, if possible, but foes of whom no unfair advantage will be taken.

Again, is the national spirit strong; that is, are the boys aroused to the idea that American boxers must beat German boxers? Frankly, we would say the nationalistic spirit is subordinate to the Chicagoland spirit. Our team is not an all-American team. No effort has been made to instill that idea. Instead it is a Chicagoland team, a team which with different personnel has battled New York five times with two victories, two defeats and one draw. That Chicagoland spirit is strong.

Well, then, is that Chicagoland spirit as strong as that of a college football eleven where the will to "do or die for dear old Siwash" is supposed to epitomize the greatest self-sacrifice of an individual to the good of the eleven as a whole? Frankly again it is not. That is not the fault of the boys but the difference between the two sports. Football is coördinated team play. Boxing is one individual against his opponent, with the result counting for the team as a whole.

So to each boy chosen as one of eight to oppose Germany's best—picked in a long series of elimination tourneys—the one big thing is for him individually to win his bout. To most of them it is the greatest ambition they have had in life thus far. So in this ambition they are of necessity somewhat self-centered and individualistic. Yet there is not one chap on the squad who would not do anything within his power, if there was anything he could do, to help a teammate on the night of July 26.

There is evidence of this team spirit, which we have explained is different from football spirit, in their training and in the inevitable discussions of the coming bouts. Our Chicagoland boys offer suggestions to one another in their tests. They are sometimes almost brutally frank in pointing out weaknesses. They are generous in praise. They have read avidly cables from Berlin of the strength and prowess of the Teutons.

Therefore it is a healthy team spirit. Still each boy feels that he, if chosen to represent Chicagoland, must jump into that arena on his own resources with none other than himself and his seconds responsible, no matter how many good wishes he may carry.

* * *

There is another feature, too. Few of these boys originally intended to become professionals when they took up boxing as a healthful exercise. Several now have that intention. Change of plans is due as much to the times as to success in the amateur ring. Jobs are not as plentiful as they once were. Some of these boys in training who once held good positions have been laid off in this depression. What more natural than to look to the ring for temporary employment? We see nothing discreditable in that. Victory over a German opponent is the first stepping stone. A majority of those considering pro offers admit it looks like the only way "out" at the present time. Several really think they have futures in the precarious realm of fistiana.

GERMANS ARRIVE! READY TO THRASH GOLDEN GLOVERS

But First They Must See Gotham from Bus.

sight seeing expedition Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon the fighting team will pull out for Chicago in a special car attached to the 5 o'clock Pennsylvania train to resume training for their bouts with the Golden Gloves squad ten days hence.

In their clothes the visiting fist fighters looked very athletic, but more like yachtsmen than fist fighters, there being only one rumpled nose and one dried apple ear in the entire group.

The first glimpse ashore of New York was a disappointment to the Germans, although they had seen the Empire State building and the gleaming ice pick of the Chrysler spire from down the bay as the ship came up the harbor. The skyline had seemed unreal then and when the buses growled through the mean streets of the Brooklyn waterfront mile after mile on the way to Manhattan bridge, the young men began to suspect that the skyline had really been nothing but a backdrop after all.

Then the buses mounted the bridge and the amazing reality of the city spread before them. They were still confused and babbling to one another about the marvels of New York when the sightseeing party was mustered for a tour that was to take them over the Washington bridge which makes Manhattan bridge resemble a plank walk spanning a creek.

Campe Seeks Gangster.

Of particular interest to Erich Campe, the welterweight champion, who seems to be the comedy relief of the boxing expedition, were the New York policemen of various branches encountered on the way over from Brooklyn. Erich, at the age of 20, has just been graduated from a police school in Berlin after a year of training and study. He said that most of all in America he wishes to see an authentic gangster and was assured that efforts would be made to find at least one for him in Chicago.

Hans Bernloehr, a fair haired young man with a large chin that looks as though it might be very inviting to an opponent, was less specific. He said he would just look around and see anything he happened to see. Bernloehr's chin seems slightly overdeveloped. It is almost as prominent as Fred Fulton's chin or young Jack McAuliffe's, and it may be remembered that they suffered much because their chins were too large. Any one who can hit Bernloehr at all can hardly miss his chin.

Mal de Mer Nil.

The German fighters did not lose an hour from their training because of seasickness on the way across, there being no sea at any time. They boxed daily and the final workout was a series of exhibitions with the boxing club of the Europa's ship's company, which includes a few periodical professionals. There was no seasickness in the athletic personnel and the time between their arrival in Chicago and their fights with the Golden Gloves team will be sufficient for all of them to settle down.

Hans Mendlahr, the coach, permits his fighters to smoke two or three cigarettes a day if they come to him and ask special permission each time. This complicates his duties which also compel him to train the athletes, supervise their diet and check them into bed. He also had charge of about a peck of railroad and steamship tickets and passports when he arrived which he was very glad to get rid of when the Golden Glove committee offered to take them off his hands.

The reception in Chicago, including music, marching, a greeting from the mayor's representative and a general interchange of oratorical posies probably will throw the team out of its temperamental stride for one day. After that, however, the purpose of the visit will be impressed on the Germans again. They are here to fight. They are the best team in Europe and are said to be the best national amateur team ever organized in a European country.

With just enough good will toward their opponents to meet the requirements of diplomacy, they have a serious desire to smack the Chicago Golden Gloves team very severely and go on from there with this much to their credit that they licked the most famous team of amateur fighters in the world.

NO OLYMPICS FOR VENZKE; HE'S 4TH IN 1,500 METERS

formances were registered on Friday and these stood throughout the finals as John Anderson of the New York A. C., clinched his triumph in the discus with a throw of 165.54 feet and his giant club mate, Leo Sexton, maintained his big margin in the shotput with 52 feet, 8 inches.

Venzke, to the astonishment of a crowd of nearly 30,000 spectators, faded badly in the stretch after having taken the lead on the back stretch of the bell lap.

Hallowell overhauled Venzke rounding the last turn and carried with him Frank Crowley of the New York Athletic club and Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, who took second and third places, respectively. Hallowell broke the tape four yards ahead of Crowley.

Brocksmith Is Beaten.

Another favorite lost out when Henry Brocksmith of Indiana, who set a burning pace for the first 2½ laps, ran himself out and finished fifth, a few yards behind Venzke. The latter, whether all in or under some misapprehension as to how many places were available on the team, appeared to pull up within sight of the tape as Hallowell, then Crowley and Cunningham rushed past him.

Metcalfe's closing burst of speed gave him a decisive victory over Tolan, the favorite. Toppino and Tolan were both off in good style and looked to have good chances to win at the 50 meter mark. Metcalfe, with gathering speed, broke away from the closely bunched pack in the last 20 meters to break the tape a yard in front of Tolan.

Tolan, in turn, had about a foot advantage over Simpson, who was only inches in front of Wykoff and Toppino as he won the battle for third place.

Keller Ties Record.

Jack Keller, Ohio State star, equaled the world record of 14.4 seconds in winning the 110 meter high hurdles final. The Buckeye took command midway in the race, beat his Iowa rival, George Saling, by four feet, with the national champion, Percy Beard, picking off the third qualifying spot by a slim margin over Byron Grant of Utah.

LONDON STOCKS STEADIER WITH ACTIVE BUYING

Large Blocks Sold to Big Investors.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, July 16.—Normalcy gradually is returning to the stock exchange. The excitement following disclosure of the government's war loan 5's conversion plans has subsided. Boom conditions are fading into the background, with brokers, professionals and dealers now finding time to count up the spoils of the last couple of weeks.

The main feature of the market still is the strength of the gilt-edged stocks. Selling of war loan 5's was fairly heavy in the early part of this week. That gave place to strong investment demand for some stocks, big financial houses and insurance companies buying great blocks of the loan for conversion.

Count on Cheap Money.

Evidently these institutions take the view that money will remain cheap for some time ahead and that the rise of gilt-edged securities has not reached the exhaustion point. Circumstances certainly are moving in favor of the British treasury much more rapidly than events indicated earlier in the year.

The current outlook also suggests that many knotty problems still to be settled will continue to drive idle funds into "safety first" stocks. There is a possibility that British government credit may attain for a period a 3¼ or even a 3 per cent basis owing to the impossibility of employing funds in the usual trade channels.

As far as the stock exchange is concerned the Lausanne agreements had little result in market sentiment. The effect was limited, especially in the industrial sections and more speculative markets, until the attitude of the United States toward war debts is known. It is expected here that stand will not be made known until some time after the presidential election.

Censure Gentlemen's Pact.

The financial district was not exactly pleased with what it regards as the grievous tactical mistake, the "gentlemen's agreement." To make ratification of the Lausanne treaty by the creditor powers conditional upon a satisfactory agreement with America on war debts merely has aroused the worst alarms and suspicions of America, it is asserted.

"Surely our statesmen forgot," one critic pertinently remarks, "that a 'gentlemen's agreement' is bound to be suspected in a land where gentleman is synonymous with spats, snobbery, and slipperiness."

It is generally conceded that if America refuses to take part in the world economic conference this fall the chances are small for any marked recovery of international trade at an early date. London experts agree that without the help of America, which holds nearly half of the world's stock of gold, discussion among European and South American powers concerning a new currency policy would be futile. They fear consequent irrevocable damage to international trade through continuance of exchange restrictions.

Watch American Stocks.

Increasing attention is being directed here towards speculative and investment possibilities of American stocks. Many brokers are circularizing clients concerning American industries whose early outlook is most promising and in most direct contact with the buying public.

Wide lists of stocks and shares in American industries such as chain drug stores, flour and seeds, food and cigarets are being issued with suggestions of their investment possibilities, especially as many of the British industrials recently were lifted with unusual rapidity from their earlier lowest levels, making dividend yields infinitesimal.

PARIS STOCKS ERRATIC

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 16.—Broken by Bastille day, July 14, and by midmonth liquidation, the Paris bourse had little to say for itself this week. The conclusion of the Lausanne conference failed to give the expected stimulus to the market, and quietness was the prevailing note.

Rentes showed great firmness all week, apparently from the show of strength made by the Herriot government and conviction that balancing of the budget eventually will be achieved despite amputation of the government's original economy bill.

The price average of common stocks, which has been dropping steadily since the first of the year, turned upward during the month of June. Preferred stocks, however, continued to drop.

In the money market improvement of the dollar and relapse of the pound, which was heavily sold here, were the main features. Belgas fell off, but transfer of the proceeds of the Belgian loan floated in France is expected to facilitate a consolidation of the exchange rate at the gold point.

SEEK $638,964 FROM CHAIN OF 5C TO $1 STORES

Three Attack Schulte and Tobacco Group.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Charging false representations in the sale of stock of the Schulte-United Five Cent to One Dollar stores, Inc., Charles H. Morris, Ralph B. Van Wormer, and Clinton W. Gray filed suit today in Supreme court. They seek to collect $638,964 on 477 claims assigned to them. David A. Schulte and other directors of the company, the United Cigar Stores Company of America, Tobacco Products corporation, Park and Tilford, Inc., Union Tobacco company, and Schulte Retail Stores corporation were named as defendants.

The plaintiffs alleged that the defendants had concealed from prospective purchasers of the stock the fact that various individual defendants received a bonus of 60,000 shares of common stock on a "fictitious" underwriting agrement and later sold this stock to the public for $1,260,000. They also concealed, it was charged, later distributions.

Out of the total issue of common stock, the complaints charge the Schulte-United Five Cent to One Dollar stores was to receive the benefit of only 40,000 shares sold at $21 a share, the rest being converted to the uses of defendants.

In the stock prospectus, the plaintiffs charged, it was falsely said that "the net proceeds to be received by the company in cash upon payment in full for all stock to be presently outstanding would be slightly in excess of $11,250,000."

The false representations also included, according to the allegations of the complaints the concealment of the fact that the stores company was organized and conducted purely as a holding company.

Neither Mr. Schulte nor his attorney, Jerome Eisner, was reached today for comment on the suit.

Protective Committees.

With business mortality abnormally high in recent months, attended with bond defaults and receiverships, the formation of protective committees has often bewildered many bondholders and stockholders. Sometimes they have been urged to deposit their securities with rival committees. Hence, numerous inquiries have come from anxious holders: "Shall I deposit?" and "Which committee shall I deposit with?"

Therefore, investors should understand the functions of a protective committee. Then they should judge how nearly the committee proposes to fulfill these functions.

In the case of mortgage bond issues the mortgage by which the bonds are secured is assigned to a trustee, who thereby becomes the representative of the bondholders. This trustee, usually a bank or trust company appointed by the corporation issuing the bonds, acts for the bondholders in seeing to it that the provisions of the mortgage, such as payment of interest and principal, are fulfilled.

When a corporation fails to make payments of interest or principal provided for in the mortgage, it is the duty of the trustee to begin legal proceedings against the company. But before such proceedings may be instituted it usually is necessary for a percentage of the total number of bondholders to request the trustee to take action.

In order to secure this percentage it is customary for large bondholders, probably aided by the investment concern which marketed the bonds, to form a protective committee. While any bondholder could legally bring action against the corporation, this would be expensive and also might result in a multiplicity of suits. The protective committee seeks to unite the bondholders in a common cause and spread the expense.

The committee sets forth its plan, asks the bondholders to agree to it and deposit their bonds with a designated depositary, which issues certificates of deposit. If the bonds are listed on an exchange, arrangements are made for listing the certificates of deposit so that they may be traded in just as the bonds are.

In the case of junior securities, such as debentures, preferred and common stocks, the situation is somewhat different. With senior issues in default, protective committees are formed in an endeavor to preserve as much of the equities of the holders of the junior securities as may be possible.

All protective committees require the support of a considerable percentage of the security holders in order to represent them to advantage. However, before deciding to support a protective committee, the security holder should assure himself that it is headed by reputable and responsible men, that the proposed pro rata charges are reasonable, and that he has a right to withdraw from the deposit agreement if the purposes of the committee do not appear likely to be accomplished in reasonable time.

BIG CORN CROP BEING PRODUCED AT LOWER COST

Farmers' Expenses Less than in Other Years.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Present indications are that farmers will market the largest corn crop they have produced in a decade or more this fall. The fact that most of the crop is ahead of normal development at this time, and that the bumper yields are being made on an acreage practically no greater than last year, leaves much room for commenting upon the actual returns farmers may expect for it.

More than 85 per cent of the normal corn crop is consumed by farm animals and marketed as beef, pork, mutton, or as dairy and poultry products. If present consumption trends may be taken as indicators of corn demand in commerce for another year and a half, the extra production this year above average corn crops will be consumed on farms or held there for another season.

There are individual farmers operating largely on a cash crop basis who always wish to see mounting corn prices. However, considering the corn belt and its market outlets as a whole, a bumper corn crop and low prices means that farm feed costs will be lowered.

Labor Is Cheap, Plentiful.

The only costs which the farmer finds have not come down in his production expenses are the items of taxes, interest on investments, and possibly some of the prices on equipment. Since labor is the largest item of expense in producing farm products, it is distinctly favorable to the farmer this year that labor costs are the lowest that farmers of the present generation have ever known.

The next largest item in the cost of corn production is that for horse or tractor power. While the market for farm horses has picked up steadily during the last three years, feed costs have been reduced in favor of the farmer. Man labor, power and equipment together account for 40 to 70 per cent of the total operating cost in growing farm crops.

The development of cultivators which handle two rows at a time, the cornhusker machine and other implements aid in reducing costs.

Farmers Reducing Costs.

Among the factors influencing the reducing of costs in producing corn, listed by corn belt farmers interviewed recently, were these: Soil fertility, testing of seed, rotation of crops, an even "stand" or uniform number of corn plants per hill, freedom from weeds, favorable growing season, choice of high yielding and disease resistant varieties, thoroughness of soilbed preparation, well planned field layout and judgment in performing operations just when needed.

Thus it is seen that the returns farmers will secure on the 1932 corn crop will depend upon two sets of factors, one set within his control largely, and the other subject to exercise of some judgment.

Hog Production Changing.

This week the government reported an exceptionally small hog crop on hand in the country. Early indications are that farmers are now planning to increase the fall pig crop, as well as to increase production of beef animals and sheep.

The fact that more farmers are perfecting a system of producing two litters of pigs each year, and push their feeding to modern market size at about 200 pounds is seen by live stock growers as indicating that there will be no great surplus of corn next winter and spring. Low priced wheat is not expected to compete against corn as a fattening feed this year as it did last summer.

PUBLIC PRINTING ADDS MORE TO TAX BURDENS

"Indians Use Coal?" Illinois Puzzle.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Taxes continue to be the one big topic of conversation throughout the land. Drop into the offices of a big corporation and you hear executives assert that taxes are a formidable millstone weighing on them in their efforts to combat the effects of the depression. Talk to a young woman and she is resentful of the additional charge she must pay for her cosmetics.

The farmer wonders how he will get enough out of his crops to enable him to retain the farm he has spent years in developing, for if he can't pay his taxes his farm is taken away from him by the tax eaters. The flat dweller looks at his personal property schedule and kicks himself for having purchased such fancy furniture. He says he'll go easy on his house furnishings in the future, and he thereby raises a new threat of decreased business for furniture dealers.

Tax Hits Soda Fountains.

Listen to drug store owners down in Ville Platte, La. They announce that they are going to discontinue their soda fountain service because taxes imposed by their state government make it impossible for them to dispense sodas and make anything.

Then observe the doings at the government printing office at Washington. Last year that office is reported to have produced 88,000,000 copies of publications. Counting all printed matter it has been stated that almost 3 billion 500 million items of printing were turned out. Doubtless many of the publications served a useful purpose and in more pleasing times possibly many of the books and pamphlets sent out may have contributed some charm and education to the citizens. But in these days of financial storm the taxpayers are beginning to doubt the wisdom of documents run off at public expense discussing "Educational Progress in the Free City of Danzig" or "A Taxonomic Review of American Long Tailed Shrews." The printing bill alone last year was $14,546,440.

Income Tax Queries.

Last week a number of Chicagoans who had paid income taxes in 1930 received blanks from the treasury department asking them how much they paid and a number of other questions. Needless to say very few taxpayers who had sent in small amounts could remember the exact amount. But bureaucracy must keep its tax eaters busy no matter at what cost or inconvenience to the taxpayers.

The state of Illinois gets out an annual blue book printed on the best of paper. In 1909 it contained 471 pages This year it has 1,035 pages. It contains a great deal of information necessary to any one interested in the state government. But in these times of stress, in the opinion of taxpayers, possibly a discussion on the Illinois Indians might have been hold up for better days. A chapter entitled "Possibility that Indians Used Coal" might possess some grim humor for a Chicago taxpayer cleaned of his earthly possessions who may be wondering where he will get his own coal supply for the coming winter. The blue book is distributed gratis, whereas a number of states charge for their annuals.

Over in Detroit eleven inspectors ar employed to ferret out broken sidewalks at an annual cost to the taxpayers of $28,140.

Also Jobs for Police.

This service is being given despite the fact that the reporting of broken sidewalks is one of the duties imposed on the city's police. It may be supposed the city fathers haven't confidence that a patrolman would recognize a broken sidewalk, if he were to see one. However, the taxpayer's guess is that the bureaucrats found a likely spot for some jobs.

In Decatur, Ill., the Herald and Review made a survey of persons on the public pay roll. It found only family in ten represented, and remarked, "If in the 1928 presidential election each person in Macon county receiving his salary from public funds had voted for one candidate and secured the votes of eight friends or neighbors for his man, the favored man would have had more than half the votes cast in the county.

The director of the Ohio institute recently pointed out that members of the boards of election last year received $257,889 in pay, although they spent only a few hours at their duties except at election times. He suggested that members of the boards serve without pay as one place to save the taxpayers some money.

Plenty of Bulletins.

In Waukegan the owner of a small business told the other day of getting copies of department of commerce bulletins mailed to him to each of three addresses which he has occupied in the last few years. Letters to Washington asking for discontinuance have met with no response.

The above are but a few straws in the great haystack of governmental extravagance and waste, but they are indicative of the reason why the American taxpayer is now being forced to hand over one-fifth of his income to the tax eaters. As has been frequently pointed out, the taxpayer is paying the penalty for his past indifference. But the day of indifference is gone—at least during the present day of thin family pocketbooks.

For instance, in Little Rock, Ark., the State Federation of Community Taxpayers' Clubs has called a statewide meeting for July 28-29 to be held at Kavanaugh field. M. F. Dickinson, president of the organization, says he expects 25,000 to attend.

It's Nonpartisan Fight.

"This is to be a nonpartisan gathering for lower taxes and economy in government," Mr. Dickinson explained. The meeting will not be of a political

Vast Progress for 50 Years Cheering Note

BY SCRUTATOR.

Just how badly off are we Americans today? Some of the statisticians tell us the present depression is the worst in our history, while others compare it with the panic period that began in 1873. They offer reams of data, charts, and graphs to support their contentions.

But why not consider the ways in which we are better off now than our parents and grandparents were? And not to go too far back, let us review the vast improvements in our mode of living since that former great depression that followed the civil war.

In this vein, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company has sent out a little booklet to its thousands of stockholders. That booklet is both entertaining and instructive. The history of the company almost coincides with the period between that past and the present depressions. While it was organized in 1886, starting with a small plant employing 200 men in Pittsburgh, in 1889 it acquired a broad charter granted in 1872 to the Chartiers Improvement company.

World's Busiest 50 Years.

"Consider the changes that have taken place in the fifty years since George Westinghouse began his research and experiments," the booklet invites. "The effects of the financial cataclysm of 1873 were still being felt by business in the '80s Home utilities, which have lifted heavy burdens from weary shoulders, did not exist. Food was cooked on stoves burning wood and coal. There were ice boxes, but little was known of the science of the preservation of foodstuffs by refrigeration.

"Few homes had running water, bathrooms, furnaces, or central heating plants. Gas was used for street lighting, but kerosene lamps illuminated homes. There were no electric washing machines, electric dishwashers, electric cooking ranges, and water heaters, electric irons, electric refrigerators, percolators, waffle irons, toasters, carpet sweepers, vacuum cleaners, and the many electrically operated household appliances now commonplace in the home.

"At the centennial exhibition in Philadelphia the telephone was shown as an interesting curiosity with potentialities, but its utility was not recognized until some years later. No one had even dreamed of radio or X-ray. Thomas A. Edison in September, 1882, opened his electric generating station in New York City.

Some Other Developments.

"People rode on horses or in carriages. Wagons delivered city freight and hauled farm produce to town. Sleeping cars were 'Pullman palace cars.' Smoke stacks of locomotives were gigantic funnels. The first practical electric overhead trolley came in 1888. Safety bicycles were exhibited at the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. Modern trans-Atlantic liners—now floating palaces—were developed about the same time.

"Arc lights and the carbon filament incandescent lights that revolutionized lighting were well under way by 1894. In 1907 the tungsten lamp was introduced and gas filled bulbs about 1914.

"Automobiles made in volume appeared around 1903 and in the same year the Wright brothers of Dayton, O., made their first flight in their heavier than air machine. The first major railroad electrification in America was the Long Island railroad, in 1907.

All in a Lifetime.

"All this mechanical progress in the art of living made during the last fifty years—and more, too detailed to enumerate—has been experienced by a generation of men and women still in their prime of life. The progress typified by the advance in household appliances has been paralleled and exceeded in all industry and in all modes of transportation. These achievements of the last fifty years could not have been accomplished without the contribution of the electrical industry.

"Progress is essential to the growth of business for every industry and research has been the constant source of inspiration for exploration into the realm of the unknown. It is a significant fact that three of the five greatest industrial research laboratories of the world are identified with the electric industry. From these 'Houses of Light' there has come a steady procession of electrical developments that make this world a better place in which to live and in doing so business has been created that before did not exist.

"In the laboratories research engineers are working on the frontiers of knowledge, blazing trails needed in the manufacture of old and new products that will help create the markets of tomorrow. It is a matter of history that financial adversity has always been a hard task master and that the deeper the industrial depression the greater the strides made by engineering and research during that period.

Gains in Last Two Years.

"In the last two years the electrical industry has made outstanding advances. Old products have been made to render greater utility and to sell at lower prices. New products have been developed that will obsolete old methods of doing everyday jobs, which is the assurance that past contributions of the electric industry will be excelled in the future."

What family, whether urban or rural, has not benefited by this progress? Who is not living better than his forebears of a half century ago?

TRUSTEE SUES FOR $50,000,000 KREUGER BONDS

Would Regain German Issues He Held.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Suit was filed today to recover $50,000,000 worth of German reich bonds, which the late Ivar Kreuger is alleged to have stolen from the International Match corporation in 1931 when he was president of that concern. The action was taken in the federal court by the Irving Trust company, as trustee in bankruptcy for the match corporation.

The defendants are Lee, Higginson & Co., who were Kreuger's American bankers, the Chase National bank, which is the fiduciary agent for the German government, and five Swedish banks. The Swedish banks, according to the complaint, are holding the bonds against debits in Kreuger's accounts with them.

Interest Collection Halted.

Pending the outcome of the suit, the Swedish banks are enjoined by an order signed Friday by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack from collecting $1,500,000 in dividends now due under the bond issue, and all of the defendants are enjoined from paying the interest to any one other than the Irving Trust company.

The bonds in question are said to have been issued in line with Kreuger's efforts to establish match monopolies through the Kreuger & Toll company and the International Match in various European countries by offering large loans to foreign countries in return for concessions.

The suit, filed by Rosenberg, Goldmark & Colin, attorneys for the trustee, asserts that the International Match corporation purchased $30,000,000 of negotiable bonds known as the German reich 6 per cent external loan of 1930, due on July 15, 1980.

Deposited in Berlin.

Each certificate represented $500,000 and they were numbered from one to sixty, inclusive. The corporation, it is set forth in the complaint, deposited these bonds in the Deutsche-Union Bank A. G. in Berlin.

On May 29, 1931, the complaint continues the International Match corporation invested $20,000,000 more in the bonds, receiving certificates numbered from 101 to 140 inclusive. The plaintiff charges on information and belief that "on or about September, 1931, Ivar Kreuger, then president of the corporation, and now deceased, wrongfully and unlawfully did abstract, remove, and take away and cause to be deposited and credited $42,000,000 in the Skandinaviska Kreditaktiebolaget in Stockholm solely for the uses, purposes and directions of himself."

Bonds Pledged to Banks?

The deposit, according to the complaint, was made on Sept. 17, 1931, and thereafter $6,000,000 was turned over to another Swedish bank on Oct. 8; $1,000,000 to another on Oct. 13 and Nov. 3; $500,000 to another on Nov. 5, and $500,000 to still another on Feb. 29, 1932.

In addition to the banks already named the other banks which are alleged to be holding the bonds are Atkiebolaget Svenska Handelsbanken, Enskilda Banken I Venersborg, Sveriges Riksbank, and Stockholms Inteckninings Garanti Aktiebolaget.

The complaint alleges on information and belief that each of the Swedish defendants purports to hold "for and on account of the personal debts, debits, and purposes of Ivar Kreuger, but with the knowledge and under the conditions aforesaid."

PREDICTS REVIVAL OF BUSINESS IN NEXT SIXTY DAYS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 16.—(AP)—A statement that "there will be an upturn to business within 60 days, brought about by normal extensions of credit and renewed confidence by producers and consumers," was made today by E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel corporation.

Weir and A. W. Robertson, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, conferred this week with President Hoover in Washington on the business situation. Neither Weir nor Robertson would discuss their conversation with Mr. Hoover.

"Business is subnormal, and if the people can see a rise of only a small per cent at the start it will provide an impetus of confidence toward normal conditions," Weir said.

BANK STOCKS HERE STRONGER FOR WEEK; MARKET MORE ACTIVE

Chicago bank stocks, in an extremely active trade, were very much stronger, selling from 5@18 points higher for the week. Continental Illinois, after low sales of 66, sold at 74½, closing 73 bid, 75 asked, up $7.00. Central Republic, with low sales at 6, closed 12½ bid, 13½ asked, after having sold as high as 14½. First National Bank of Chicago showed real strength, selling up 15 points to high sales of 158, closing 156 bid, 160 asked. Northern Trust, after low sales at 225, evidenced real strength, selling at 242, closing 238 bid, 242 asked. Harris Trust was 2 points better, closing 180 bid, 185 asked.

In connection with the sharp advance in Central Republic stock it was reported that the bank negotiating for a reduction in its rental on its quarters at 208 South La Salle street. According to reports the rental is to be cut from $750,000 to $400,000 yearly. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the Central Republic, said he could not comment on the report.

Final prices in the miscellaneous group were higher. Chicago Title and Trust, after low sales at 89, closed 90½ bid, 91½ asked. Northwestern Yeast remained steady, closing 1 point higher at 86@88. Hammermill Paper preferred was stronger at 61@63. St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance, with low sales at 71, closed 74½ bid without attracting sellers. Chicago Daily News common continued better, closing 8⅞@9⅜. The preferred was 2 points easier, at 46@48.

UTILITY OPINION DIVIDED ON ACTS OF WISCONSIN

New York, July 16.—Public utility circles were divided in opinion today over the action by the Wisconsin public utility commission in ordering seven companies to cease payments of dividends on the common stock and in requesting the Wisconsin Telephone company to supply lists of salaries not only of the company but also of American Telephone and Telegraph, Western Electric and other Bell system headquarters companies.

Some persons regretted such action on the eve of the general adoption of a policy of coöperation with regulatory authorities. Others expressed the view that if any one of the seven companies has impaired its capital by declaring dividends, the utility industry itself will back the action of the Wisconsin commission. The grievance expressed today, however, was that the commission's orders allege only indirectly that there may have been actual or threatened impairment of capital. The Wisconsin commission's "propensity for publicity" was bitterly cited as having induced it to "exceed its authority in order to engage in dramatized fishing expedition."

Avery Finds Mail Order Business Still Sound

Sewell L. Avery, in issuing the first mail order catalog since he became president of Montgomery Ward & Co., said the economic principles of selling by mail "are as sound and acceptable today as when this business was started 60 years ago. The potential market is greater than ever, but in many ways selling by mail has not kept pace with the times." The winter catalog was grouped in 11 departments, a new method. Mr. Avery said the prices as compared with a year ago average 18 to 25 per cent lower, with some reductions as great as 35 per cent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—An injunction to restrain the New York Stock exchange from enforcing its recent ruling limiting so-called unit or "package" sales of stocks was asked in the Supreme court today by the investing firm of Pirnie Simons & Co., Inc., one of the firms sponsoring unit sales.

The firm declared in its petition that the extent and purpose of the ruling constituted "restraint of trade, conspiracy, and unfair competition."

The suit was directed specifically against Richard Whitney as president of the exchange, and asked for an order enjoining the exchange, pending trial of the suit, from enforcing a resolution adopted by the governing committee on June 22 and from enforcing a "boycott and blacklist" of the plaintiff firm. Argument on the temporary injunction is scheduled for Monday.

BETTER PRICES OF COMMODITIES STIR UP HOPES

Several Concerns Gain Through Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—As a result of a month's steady improvement in wholesale commodity prices, representing the sharpest gain since July 1929, confidence of consumers in quotations is being restored so rapidly that the stocking up of goods soon may begin, according to the officers of several large industrial corporations.

Moderate additional improvement in the commodity markets, or the maintenance of a steady tone for several weeks more, is all that is needed to stimulate generous purchases of all types of goods for future needs, the executives believe.

Some Already Benefited.

Already, business leaders declare, many corporations have benefited through appreciation in the value of their inventories and through the greater price stability. One large meat packing company, for example, which has been operating at a deficit for a year and a half, is again showing a profit, as a result of the sharp advance in live stock prices. Similarly, shoe companies are expected soon to report better earnings, as a result of sweeping advances which have been reported in hides. The upturn in sugar, rubber and several other commodities has also aided many companies, and has contributed to the development of a new feeling of confidence throughout the financial community.

From June 14 to July 12, the weekly index of wholesale commodity prices of the Annalist advanced from 87.3 to 93.1, a gain of 4.2 points, or 4.7 per cent. In this index, 100 represents the level of 1913 prices. A year ago the index stood at 102.5.

Better Than Last October.

The current upswing in commodities is much more spectacular than that of last October and early November, which amounted to less than 3 points in the Annalist's index. It is a coincidence that the commodities which led last fall's upturn—wheat and silver—are now stagnant. The present general advance was initiated by a rise in sugar and hogs, which quickly spread to other commodities as speculative interest was aroused.

CAR LOADINGS SHOW DECLINE IN HOLIDAY WEEK

Washington, D. C., July 16.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on July 9 totaled 416,950 cars, the railroads reported to the American Railway association today.

Due to the observance of the Fourth of July holiday, this was a decrease of 72,323 cars below the preceding week this year. It also was a reduction of 345,494 cars below the corresponding week in 1931 and 499,035 cars under the same period two years ago.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week totaled 150,716 cars, a decrease of 32,389 cars, but 139,104 cars under the corresponding week in 1931; loading of merchandise less-than-carload lot freight, 143,496 cars, a decrease of 27,817 cars, but 73,323 cars below the corresponding week last year; grain and grain products totaled 30,310 cars, a decrease of 28 cars, but 30,062 cars below the corresponding week last year.

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed by Koremlu, Inc., depilatories, of 11 West 42d street, today, listing liabilities at $2,448,745 and assets at $2.93. Liabilities in large part consisted of damage suits pending in the courts. The largest amounts asked, $150,000 in each case, are demanded by Virginia Leonard and Ernest E. Leonard, whose addresses were not given. Another claimant, Irene Freidberg, is suing for $100,000. Other amounts demanded range down to a few hundred dollars.

FEAR LOSS IN HIGHER RATES ON AIR MAIL

Lines' Income Based on That Work.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Officials of the large air transport companies anxiously are waiting to see what the new air mail rates will do. The postage for air mail was increased on July 6 from 5 cents for the first ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce or fraction to 8 cents for the first ounce and 13 cents for each additional ounce or fraction.

If the volume of air mail drops off to the extent that some of the officials anticipate, the industry is likely to suffer. Mail remains the most lucrative and in many ways the most desirable cargo carried by the air transport companies. Increasing passenger traffic and express volume, despite the depression, have placed a few of the companies in the black, with the mail revenue as a source of basic income. But neither passenger or express volume is sufficient, nor is that combination, to keep the transport companies out of the red, if the air mail revenue is sharply reduced at this time.

Rates Raised in 1925-'26.

The only analogous raise in rates of air mail occurred in 1925 and 1926, when air mail was placed on a zone basis. Volume dropped from 1,500,035 pounds carried throughout the nation in 1924 to 232,514 pounds carried in 1925, and increased slightly to 386,841 pounds carried in 1926. With the removal of the zone rates the poundage carried in 1927 jumped up to 1,032,727, which still was some 500,000 pounds less than the total for 1924, the last year of the original straight postage rate of 10 cents an ounce.

The yearly increase in air mail poundage since 1927 has been remarkable. In 1928 the total jumped about 90,000 pounds to 1,945,252, and the following year, 1929, nearly trebled, amounting to 5,635,680 pounds. In 1930 the upward swing continued, with the end of the year showing a total of 7,719,698 pounds of mail carried, and even 1931, the second year of the depression, had a large gain, with its total of 9,097,411 pounds carried.

Only Domestic Mail Included.

These figures were taken from post-office reports and include only domestic air mail carried by contractors and not connections with foreign routes. One of the causes for large increases in 1930 and 1931 was the new method of accounting adopted in the fall of 1930.

The volume of air mail dropped about 80 per cent when the zone rates went into effect. The percentage of decrease due to the rates just established probably will be from 20 to 50 per cent, in the opinion of air transport officials, who are hoping for the best, but fear that unless business improves a considerable proportion of the mail that now flies will be sent by train, in the interest of economy. Dependable figures are not expected until the fall, because of the usual business apathy in July and August.

New Rates to West.

Nine Pacific coast cities yesterday were made common passenger fare points for travel over United Air Lines from New York, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago. Common fares of $160 from New York, $130 from Cleveland and $115 from Chicago will apply to San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane.

Two Illinois Banks Closed During Saturday

The Glen Ellyn State bank, with listed resources of $290,000, was closed yesterday morning by order of State Auditor Oscar Nelson. The institution had approximately $130,000 in deposits. Capital was $35,000 and surplus was carried at $35,000 also. M. J. Milmoe was president.

Action at Madison, Ill.

Madison, Ill., July 16.—[U. P.]—The Union Trust Company of Madison did not open for business today and officials of the organization announced that the company would be placed in the hands of a bank examiner. Decision to close the bank was reached last night at a meeting of directors who adopted a resolution stating that withdrawal of 60 per cent of the deposits in the last year had left the company unable to meet obligations to other banks. The total amount of deposits in the bank at present was listed at $199,800.

Trade Board, Stock Mart Renew Dispute

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

All evidence yesterday indicated that the Chicago Stock exchange and the Board of Trade would settle down to a long struggle over the question of the dual listing of securities on the two markets.

Officials of the grain board announced that they would go ahead with their plans to trade in the stock of Swift International which formerly was listed on the stock exchange Friday. The announcement followed hurried meetings of the stock list committee and the board of governors of the board.

Say Pact Is Ended.

In explaining the action representatives of the Board of Trade pointed out that the organization was no longer bound by the "gentlemen's agreement" which formerly existed between it and the Stock exchange. Under the truce which was scrapped several months ago each organization agreed not to raid the list of the other.

As matters now stand members of the Stock exchange under the rules of the constitution will be unable to trade in any securities listed on the Board of Trade.

Because nearly all the large commission houses are members of both exchanges the situation is likely to lead to serious complications.

What settlement will eventually be arrived at will depend to a great extent on the attitude of the big commission house whose partners are influential in the affairs of both organizations.

Opposes Dual Listings.

The clause in the exchange's constitution pertaining to dual listings is as follows: "A member who shall be connected either through a partner or otherwise, with another exchange or similar organization in the state of Illinois which permits dealings in any of the securities dealt in on the exchange, or who directly or indirectly deals upon such exchange or organization, or who deals publicly outside the exchange, in securities listed or quoted on the exchange, shall be fined $500 and suspended by the governing committee for a period of sixty days, and in case he shall not cease such connection and pay his fine within sixty days from the date of his suspension, he shall be expelled from the exchange; provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent a member of this exchange from being a member of a commodity exchange which permits trading in securities listed or quoting on this exchange, so long as such member deals solely in commodities on such commodity exchanges."

According to the interpretation of exchange officials members will be barred from trading in any securities listed on the board of trade.

Follows Swift Listing.

The formal listing of Swift International by the stock exchange followed the admission of the stock to unlisted trading privileges by the grain board last Thursday. Heretofore the stock has been traded on the exchange as an unlisted issue. The listing was made on formal application by the company.

A market has been maintained in the stock on the Chicago exchange for several years.

EASTERN UTILITY BOND ISSUES SET NEW MARK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—New bond financing this week, aggregating $81,977,750, was the heaviest since the week ended Jan. 22. Then a total of $107,901,000 was placed on the market. Preponderance of new financing this week occurred on Thursday and Friday when new issues of public utility bonds and notes in the amount of $70,709,000 were offered, following a general improvement in corporation bond prices on the stock exchange.

The new public utility financing, consisting of $30,000,000 Consolidated Gas Company of New York 5 per cent debentures, $25,000,000 Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston 5 per cent notes, $18,000,000 Brooklyn Union Gas company 6½ per cent mortgage bonds, and $5,709,000 Boston Elevated Railway company 6½ per cent sinking fund bonds, was well received, in some instances being substantially oversubscribed.

This new utility financing represented uniformly high grade issues which had been held up for some weeks awaiting a favorable market. The fact that this week's total of new financing was eclipsed by the amount of the third week in January was due to the fact that at that time the $100,000,000 New York City 6 per cent special corporate stock notes, due 1935 to 1937, were marketed.

New York, July 16.—The close of today's abbreviated trading session on the stock exchange found leading shares selling irregularly below their closing levels of last night.

Losses were small as a rule due almost entirely to professional profit taking rather than to any adverse news development or change in sentiment. With congress still rating as a market uncertainty and the business picture no brighter—by agreement of the accepted trade reviews—speculators were cagey about holding their positions over the week-end. The market is too wabbly just now to withstand much of a shock they said and most of them feel they have no money to lose these days.

Opening Prices Higher.

Initial prices were generally higher and the list manifested a steady tone throughout the leisurely session. There was no pronounced activity on the upside but on the other hand there was little evidence of liquidation and no group was under pressure at any time. All of which was right encouraging to the boys who have been rubbing their palms together and assuring their little worlds that things were looking better.

Oil stocks again were conspicuous in the day's dealings. Some of the favorites of the group appeared on the tape at frequent intervals throughout the two hour session. Figures on crude oil deliveries for June were more encouraging and this development coupled with a growing belief that the petroleum industry is gradually coming out of the woods and that the fact is going to become generally apparent in the forthcoming second quarter earnings statements of some of the companies supplied the necessary "pull" for these lately despised issues.

New High for Two Oils.

Leaders like United States Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and General Electric seesawed back and forth in a narrow range, but the final gong found most of them behind minus signs.

Auburn was a weak spot, slipping off nearly 2 points. American Can was another soft spot.

The rails were generally firm. Atchison, Rock Island, Illinois Central, Baltimore and Ohio registered small gains. Things have been going better for the carrier shares for quite some time now. The open market appreciation for the late June lows to the current high levels has averaged anywhere from 25 to 75 per cent for some of the more active speculative issues like Pennsylvania, New York Central, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Atchison and Southern Pacific.

In the utilities division, Peoples Gas took another dive of 2⅝ points to close at 47½ against its bear market low of 39. A few months ago it took $121 of Uncle Sam's good currency to get a share of this Chicago utility corporation.

Turnover was announced at 350,180 shares which compares with a total of 235,060 last Saturday.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—(AP)—The commerce department today said preliminary figures for June showed an unfavorable trade balance of approximately $6,000,000 and that imports and exports each were below one billion dollars during the six months from January through June.

Records of the department disclosed that not since June, 1911, when exports were $987,900,000, and May, 1915, when imports were $865,800,000, has either branch of foreign trade fallen below the billion dollar mark.

Exports during June of this year were $115,000,000 and imports $121,000,000. For the first six months of the calendar year exports were $8[illegible] 803,000 and imports $757,554,000.

A larger part of the unfavorable June balance was due to falling off of cotton exports. Cotton throughout the entire 1931-'32 season has held well above that of the previous season, with good gains shown each month, but during June, an off month every year, cotton exports showed a sharp decline from May, $13,275,000 from $17,577,000.

WAVE OF SELLING SWEEPS WHEAT TO NEW DEPTHS

July Falls Below Its Record for October.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New history was made in the Chicago wheat market as well as in most of the other markets in the country, the last thirty minutes of trading yesterday.

A rush of hedging, rumored to have been farm board sales, and liquidating deals came on the market that had practically no support. Prices dropped readily, July selling to new low level of 44¼c, or ⅜c under the low of October last year, which up to this time has stood as the lowest on record.

At the same time, September broke to 46⅞c and December to 49⅞c. All futures were carried under the 50c level for the first time known, with the exception of July. Minneapolis and all futures at Winnipeg were the only markets in which wheat was above the 50c level.

The close was practically at the inside of all markets, with July 44⅜c to 44½c, September 46⅞c to 47c, and December 50⅛c to 50⅜c, net losses for the day being 1c to 1¼c.

Selling Comes as Shock.

All wheat markets have shown steadiness, indicating a desire to do better, prices holding well at around the previous day's close to a little better. The sudden appearance of the selling orders in the hands of a half dozen houses, that are estimated to have sold more than 1,000,000 bu swamped the pit traders. The only support at the last came from covering by shorts and buying against daily weekly bids, which brought a rally of ¼c.

All outside markets were 1@1⅛c lower, with the exception of Winnipeg which was ⅛c lower on July and December and unchanged for October. There has been purchases estimated at more than 3,000,000 bu of October in that market the last few days, around 55⅞@56c. The market on Saturday held steady at 56⅛c up to the finish. This support is understood to come from the government and is said to be based on expectations of the economic conference to be held in Ottawa next week, taking some action in regard to the government's position in supporting the market and helping the Canadian farmers.

Views Generally Favorable.

The news of the day on the whole was more favorable to holders. Liverpool was firm and closed ⅜@¾d higher. Strength there was attributed to prospective small world's shipments. Russia was reported as having bought a cargo of wheat and flour in Australia. Export sales of American and Canadian wheat were 750,000 bu the best business of the week. Buenos Aires was stronger.

All indications are that Liverpool is working steadily towards a world's export basis and that more export business is to be expected.

Mills were reported as good buyers of wheat in the southwest, but prices are so low they are not supposed to be hedged, although the big interests are credited with hedging a large part of their purchases. The spring wheat crop is at the critical filling stage, and it is said that any reports of decided deterioration, might result in a pronounced change in the speculative temper.

Corn Makes Gains.

Despite the weakness in wheat, corn acted independently strong, closing ⅜@¾c higher with July at 30¾c and September at 32¾@32⅝c.

Absence of pressure was the basis for the strength. Crop reports on the whole were favorable although there were some complaints of injury to the Kansas crop by the extreme heat. Country sales of corn to arrive were 78,000 bu.

Oats dropped to a new season's low for all time, July being 18⅝c, September, 19c; December, 21⅛c. The close is unchanged to ⅛c lower, the latter on July. Rye participated in the late weakness with a little hedging and changing sales, the close with net losses of ⅜@⅞c, July being the weakness at 28¼c.

FIRMNESS IN PROVISIONS

Light offerings of lard and bellies, which were picked up readily by a good class of buyers, held the provision market firm, despite the weakness in wheat, making the close 2½ to 7½ cents higher, July lard leading. Bellies were 5 cents higher, with offerings readily picked up by warehousemen. Hogs were weak and 10 to 20 cents lower, with the top at the close $4.95, or 20 cents under the opening figures. The decrease in lard and meat stocks the last two weeks had a strengthening influence on the market.

Packing in Chicago since March 1 aggregates 2,135,000 hogs, compared with 2,205,000. Liverpool lard was 3 to 9 pence higher. Export clearances were 87,640 pounds of lard. Prices follow:

nature so far as furthering the cause of any specific candidate is concerned. We know from long years of experience that election of apparently well meaning candidates will not help us out of the trouble in which we find our state. The only thing that will do this is a definite program which our legislature will not dare disregard."

Then the West Virginia Taxpayers' association will ask all county, district and municipal levying bodies when they meet on Aug. 2 to make their annual budgets to pare their expenditures to cut the cost of government. Edwin M. Keatley, secretary of the association, has mailed letters to the entire membership requesting the appointment of committees to appear before the various groups when budgets are taken up.

"Over 90 per cent of all taxes in West Virginia are local and there should be a reduction of at least 15 per cent through elimination of expenditures without impairment of the efficient conduct of our schools and local government," Mr. Keatley said.

Oppose New Taxes.

The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce recently held a meeting at Harrisburg at which it went on record in favor of economy in government and relief for the unemployed without recourse to new taxes. Alba B. Johnson, president of the organization, said he foresaw a rebellion against the rising cost of state and local government. He pointed out that in 1922 state and local governments took $328,589,424, or 5.24 per cent, of the state's income, whereas for this year they took $544,404,264, or 13.7 per cent.

"Business concerns and individuals generally have been forced to retrench," Mr. Johnson said. "Governments will have to follow suit. Nonessential services must be curtailed and budgets must be balanced by lowering expenditures rather than by continually seeking new methods of taxation."

In New York the National Association of Manufacturers made this announcement last week:

"The board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers is setting up a campaign which will, no doubt, continue over several years for the reduction in cost of federal government, including the issues of federal taxation and other legislation allied thereto. In this plan it has the aid of its coöperating organizations and other industrial interests."

Out west the Natrona County Taxpayers' League of Wyoming has elected officers and announced a plan of employing a man on full time to study the possibilities of reducing taxes.

COTTON UNSETTLED

Chicago's cotton market held steady until nearly the close. Then the break in wheat brought a selling movement and the close was at the inside with losses of 4 to 9 points. Other markets that closed an hour earlier than Chicago were strong and closed 1 to 5 points higher. Spots were 5 points higher with New York, 5.90c; New Orleans, 5.75c; Galveston, 5.70c, and Houston, 5.65c. Liverpool closed 3 to 4 points net higher. Weather reports were in the main favorable with temperatures well above normal. Local interests were sellers early, their offerings being absorbed by trade buyers. The market has shown many excellent trading opportunities with price movements 20 to 30 points a day.

Trade news was fairly favorable with reports of one eastern mill increasing its operations. Prices follow:

NO HAY RECEIVED

No hay of any kind on track on Saturday and the week ended the way it started; there have been only 10 or 12 cars here since the 4th of July and for the last two or three days, buyers have been showing the first signs of anxiety over the dwindling arrivals of old crop tame hay. Nothing changed insofar as the new crop situation is concerned: buyers appear to be wary about the scattered new crop arrivals for the reason that they are afraid of finding it out of condition after they get inside.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

It was said by those who have no confidence in the maintenance of wheat prices, despite the fact that they are at the lowest prices known, that unless there is better support an erratic market is to be expected. Liquidation is said to have been thorough and while the cash wheat is passing into good hands and there is a possibility of export business, it is not wise to press the short side on breaks.

One of the largest local traders who has been bearish on wheat for a long time expressed the belief that December wheat around 50 cents was not an advisable short sale.

Corn prices are down to levels that restrict short selling and the market has acted for several days as though it wanted to do better. Trade sentiment, however, is divided.

Reports from Winnipeg indicate a better tone in the wheat market there. The selling pressure has been restricted by the steady absorption of the October at 56 cents.

World's shipments of wheat this week are expected to be very small, being estimated at 8,875,000 bu, against 10,734,000 bu last year.

MEN

WE WILL START A LIMITED FEW ADDITIONAL MEN IN OUR SOUTH SIDE BRANCH AT ONCE. IF YOU WANT FULL TIME WORK IN A PERMANENT POSITION AND HAVE GOOD CHARACTER REFERENCES, COME IN MONDAY MORNING FOR AN INTERVIEW.

If you are adaptable to this work, if you have the disposition to study and strive to acquire skill in what you do, and if you have good reputation and the will to succeed, we will employ you and back you in permanent work that is regularly paying qualified men in all parts of this country and throughout the world $5,000, $6,000, $7,000, $8,000, $10,000 per year and higher. These incomes are cash—and just as stable and permanent as any business or professional positions possibly could be. Such earnings represent success, and they are available to men who can think and work successfully.

This company is now in the greatest success of its history. This has been its most progressive year and its men throughout the nation have consistently grown stronger, happier, and more and more prosperous. 1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work, must take the necessary time to learn and to acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125 to $200 per month if necessary. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements to secure a position with us, you can, with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence—with these things you can be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the higher incomes.

We are not interested in men satisfied to get along on part time earnings. A minimum schedule of 48 hours' work per week is required, with several hours additional for instruction.

If you feel you can qualify, and if you really would like to learn how to do this work and to make the kind of money successful men in this company are making, call for personal interview at our branch general offices, Monday morning, 9 to 12, at Suite 430 Hyde Park-Kenwood Bank Bldg., 53d and Lake Park-av.

The men to be hired will help introduce the new Electrolux mechanical specialty [not refrigeration].

MEN.

Several men between 28 and 45 years of age, who formerly made $2,000.00 to $6,000.00 a year regularly, are permanently settled in the West Side, and have good character references. We will select several such men after a presentation of our product and of a most successful merchandising plan that is enabling other men to equal and exceed all former earnings. Must be ready to start work at once, with modest earnings to start, and with honest desire to prove worth.

Positions to be filled are permanent, with good pay, commissions advanced, bonus, unusual opportunity for self-advancement, as this company is strong and growing rapidly throughout U. S. as well as locally. In fact, the sales of our product, an electrical specialty with an unlimited market, are larger than ever this year, throughout the world, due to the unique values offered solely by this invention. No investment of any kind. For preliminary interview, apply to Manager L. J. Thibodeau, Monday morning, 9 to 12, at 327-333 Madison-Kedzie bldg., 9 South Kedzie-av.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday: Cattle, 14,000; hogs, 30,000; sheep, 15,000.

The week-end session for hogs was an unsatisfactory affair that closed mostly 10@15c lower on good grades and weak to 10c lower on packing sows. The peak for the day at $5.00 showed 20c loss, while the general average came down 10c to $4.55.

These compare with a top of $5.40 and average of $4.95 the previous Saturday. Several carloads of good grades were carried over for Monday's trade on the strength of indications pointing to light supplies for the fore part of next week.

A break in prices at eastern points curbed buying on shipping account at the close. Smaller local houses were inactive at the close, pending further developments in the wholesale market, which has experienced a sharp setback. Practically all cattle and sheep at Chicago Saturday were billed direct to packers from other points.

Weather Market.

Weather played a prominent part in the live stock markets during the week when it turned suddenly hot and curbed buying of meats to such an extent that it affected the value of live animals. In other words, it was mainly a weather market. For this reason traders are inclined to be bullish and regard the break as a temporary setback, particularly in hogs. Pork was the most seriously affected by the abrupt rise in temperatures, but considering the advance made previous to last Tuesday, which marked the first break in more than a month, the setback was comparatively mild. The reaction of the market scared a few more hogs in and sellers were unable to tilt prices upward again except for a short time Friday. The end of the record rise in hog values early in the week also marked the opening of the season for packing sows. This movement swelled hog receipts to 113,600, largest since May 28. The run was 22 per cent above the average for the last five weeks, but 20 per cent under the average for this time of year. Weights became heavier with the appearance of "packers." The estimate for the week at 260 pounds stands heaviest since September, 1926, and 10 pounds above the average of five corresponding weeks. The general average price for the week receded only 10c to $4.80 and compares with a ten week average of $3.65. It stands 50 per cent above the low week.

Cattle Average $8.25.

Cattle prices soared to the highest levels of the season during the first half of the week and later suffered a mild reaction that erased about 25c of the sensational gain. The general average price for the whole week at $8.25 stood highest in eight months and compared with an average of $6.50 for the last 10 weeks. The average shows a gain of 41 per cent compared with the low week in May. Considering the fact that receipts for the week were equal to the largest since May prices held up well. However, available supplies are much below normal for this season of the year and steers in the country are reported in strong hands. An average load of steers is bringing $600 to $650 more than at the low time nine weeks ago.

Some of the biggest margins of profit in recent years have been made in cattle during the last three weeks, according to the feeders' own testimonies. Wallman & Brown, Des Moines county, Iowa, obtained $108 per head for steers that cost them $36 as feeders last October. Their margin was $3.00 per cwt and their corn cost them only 20c per bu last fall, making some of the cheapest gains on record. They also fed 5,000 bu of corn to hogs that sold at $5.00. The hog price returned 50c for the corn consumer, they stated.

Lamb prices dropped abruptly following the previous week's sharp rise and at the close sales showed losses of $1.00@1.50. The break in the wholesale market for dressed lamb carcasses contributed to the weakness and made packers all the more bearish. Daily top prices fell from $7.50 early in the week to $6.00 at the close, this figure being within 25c of the season's bottom for new crop lambs. Arrivals at 74,800 were largest since April and a much larger proportion of them were fat lambs from the range.

DICK TRACY
SPYING AN ACETYLENE TORCH AMONG THE EQUIPMENT OF THE COUNTERFEITERS' SHOP, TRACY CHOPS A HOLE IN THE DOOR AND, FORCING A HOT FLAME THROUGH THE OPENING, STAVES OFF THE ANIMALS' ATTACK - TEMPORARILY
IF THE WORST COMES TO THE WORST, WE CAN TRY OUR GUNS ON THE BEASTS - BUT A REVOLVER BULLET WOULD HAVE TO BE MIGHTY WELL AIMED TO STOP ONE OF THOSE FELLOWS.
THE HISSING FLAME, WHILE HOLDING THE LIONS AT BAY, ONLY WHETS THEIR ANGER.
TRACY - LOOK!
THE PRESSURE VALVE ON THE GAS DRUM INDICATES ALMOST ZERO.
THE FLAME - IT'S GONE OUT!
WE'LL HAVE TO USE OUR GUNS!
INSTANTLY AND WITH RENEWED FURY, THE BLOOD-HUNGRY LIONS LUNGE AT THE DOOR.
WHEN SUDDENLY, FROM THE BUSHES, A HAND FLASHES OUT AND TWO SHOTS GO STRAIGHT TO THEIR MARK.........
TRACY!
IT'S MR. WALDORF, THE MAN WHO OWNED THE COUNTERFEIT BONDS THAT WE WERE TRACING.
MILLIGAN AND I TRAILED YOU HERE, AND HEARING THE GROWLS OF THE LIONS - FIGURED OUT WHAT WAS UP - YOU SEE, I USED TO BE A CRACK SHOT IN THE ARMY - SO - TRACY INSTRUCTS THEM HOW TO PUSH THE MOVABLE SIDE OF THE LIONS' CAGE OVER TO PERMIT HIMSELF AND PAT TO GET OUT.

OOP!
GEE!
SPLASHING RIGHT INTO THAT PUDDLE!!! NOW JUST LOOK AT YOUR SHOES- HUMPH!
AW, THAT WILL ALL RUB OFF- A GOOD SHINE AND THOSE SHOES WILL BE O.K.-
OH! DELIVER ME FROM A CHILD WHO KNOWS IT ALL- IF YOU'D PAY A LITTLE ATTENTION TO WHERE YOU'RE WALKING- BUT NO- I WAS NEVER LIKE THAT WHEN I WAS A CHILD, I ASSURE YOU-
YIPE!

The Swiss Food Drink

MOTHERS

Ovaltine is the world's leading health-drink. A scientific combination of more than 18 vital food elements, Ovaltine should not be confused with sugar-loaded chocolate drinks which claim similar properties and results. Over 20,000 doctors and child specialists recommend Ovaltine—to increase a child's weight (often a pound a week or more); to curb nervousness; to increase appetite and add to the food value of milk. Thousands of nervous people—men and women—use Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. Physicians also recommend it for sleeplessness—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents and the aged.

KEEP COOL WITH HILLS BROS

COFFEE–iced

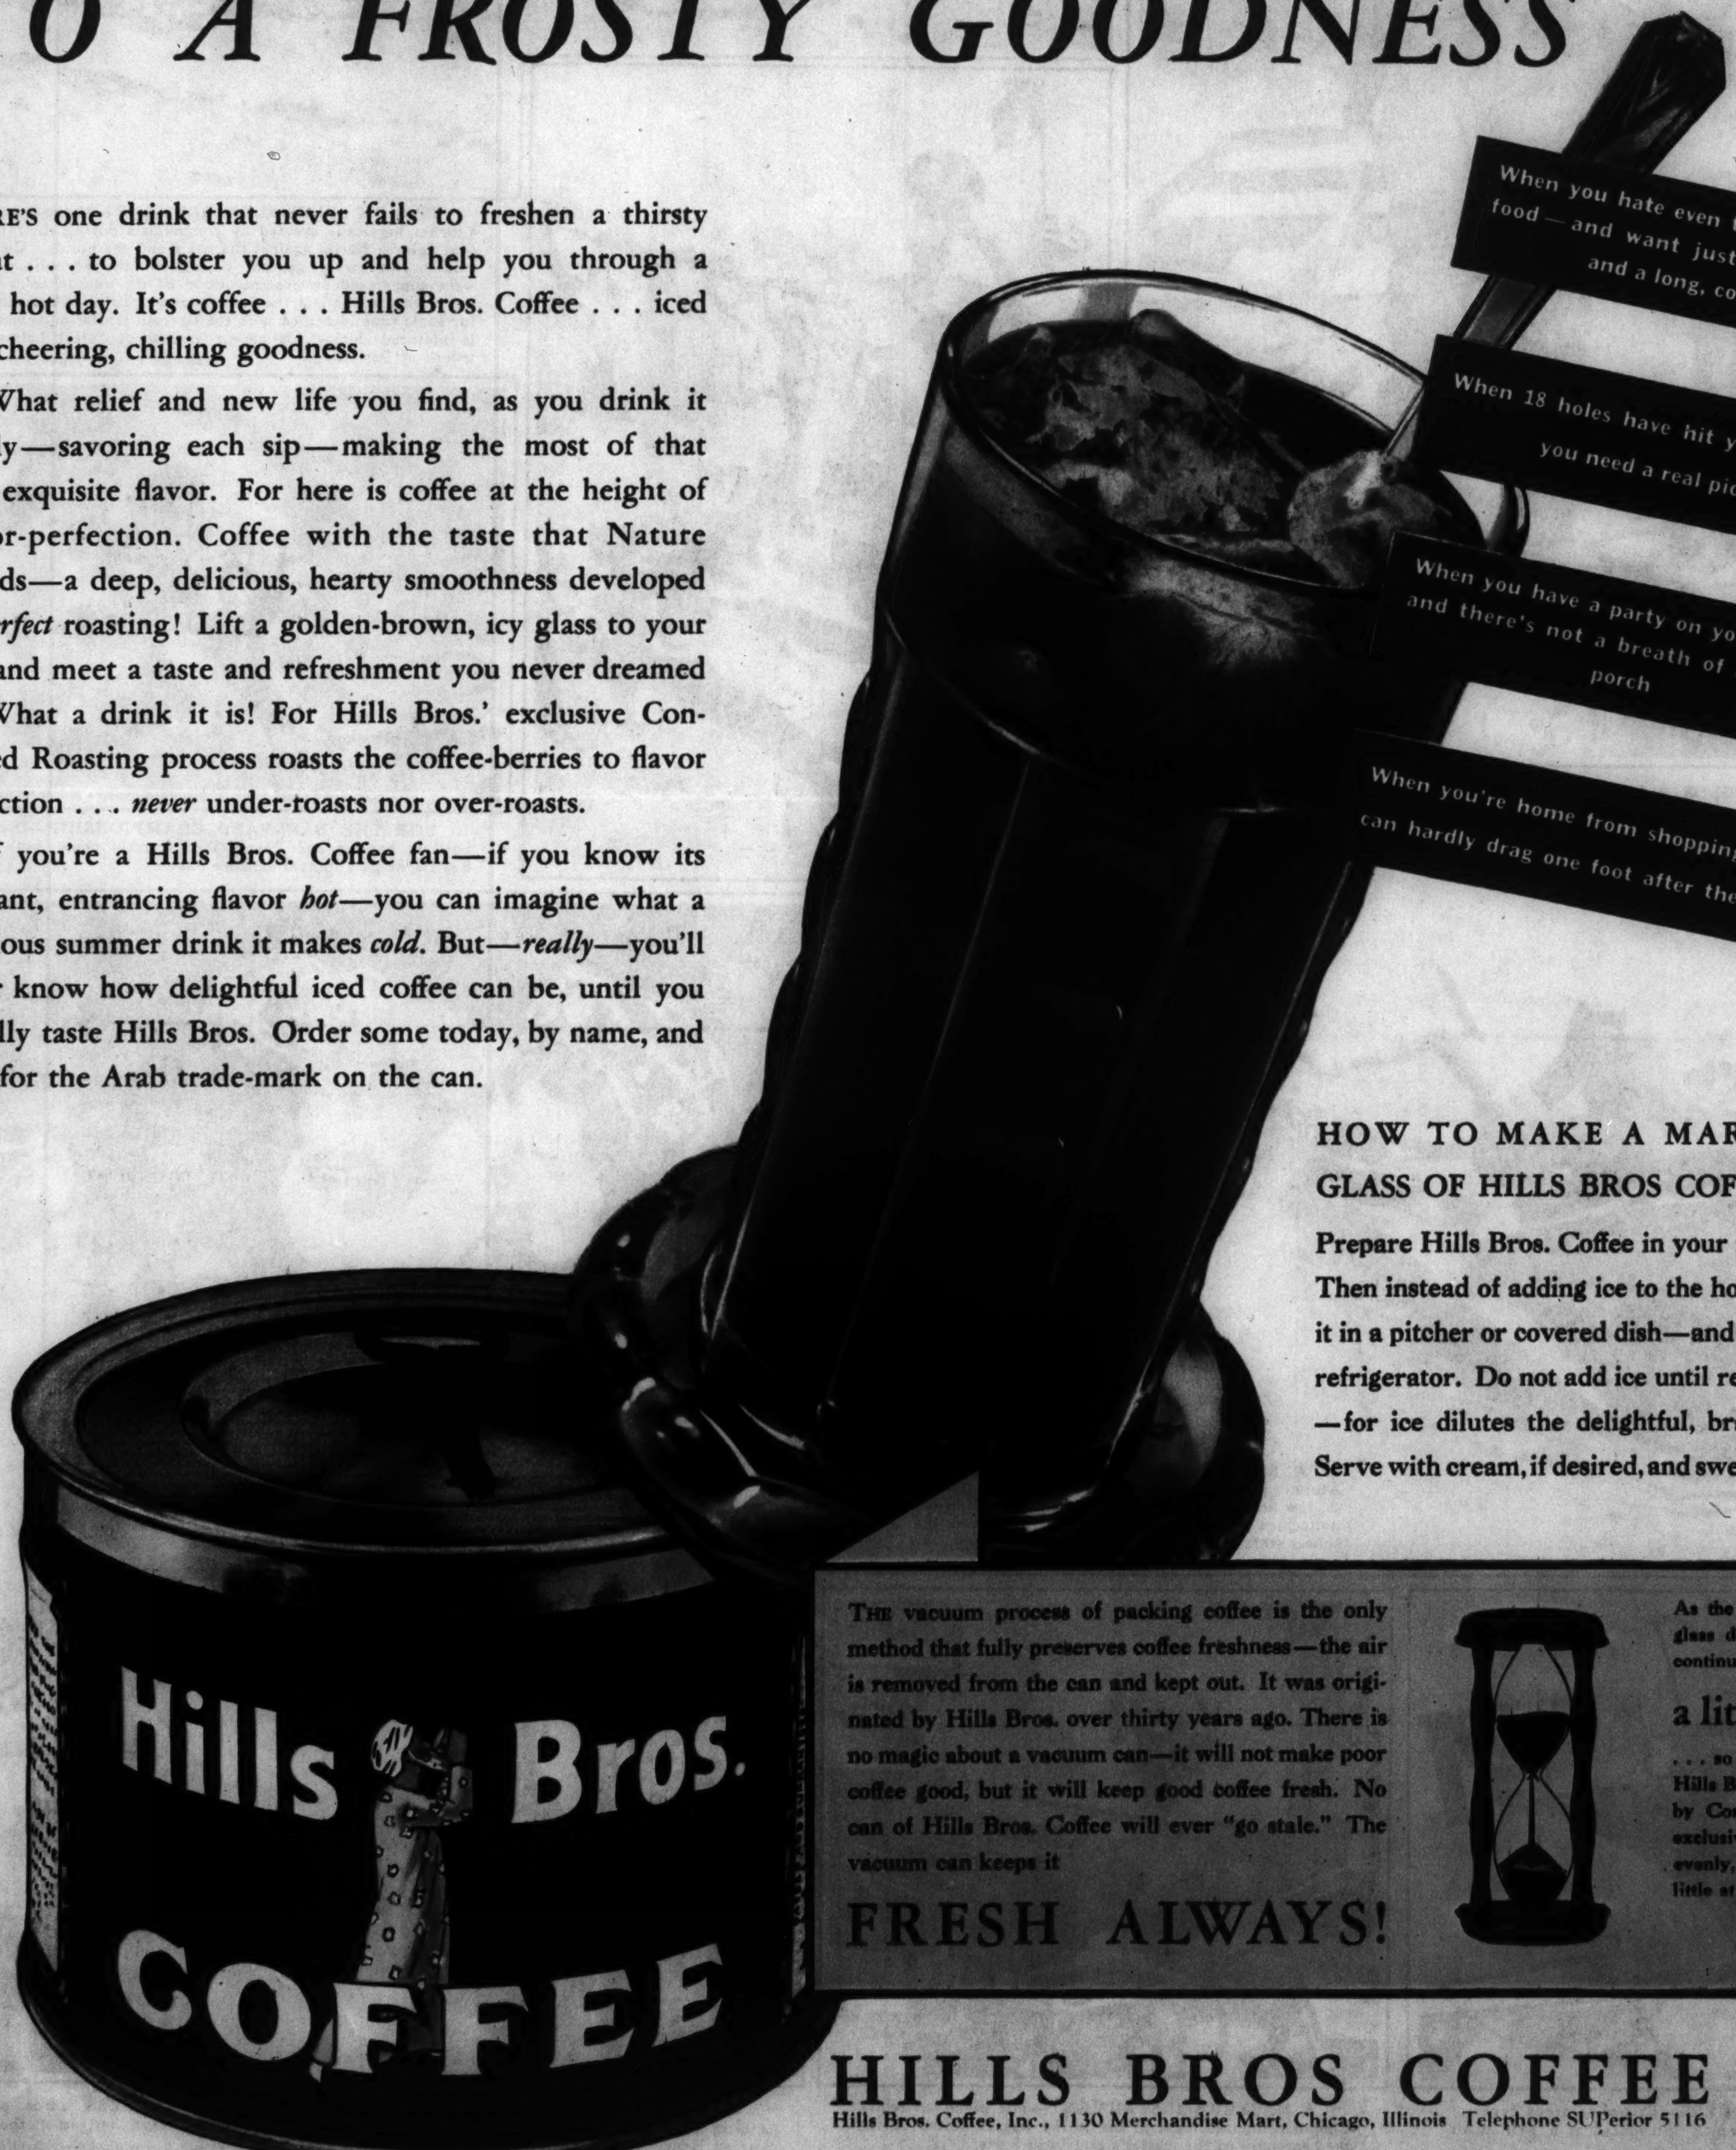
TO A FROSTY GOODNESS

THERE'S one drink that never fails to freshen a thirsty throat . . . to bolster you up and help you through a hard, hot day. It's coffee . . . Hills Bros. Coffee . . . iced to a cheering, chilling goodness.

What relief and new life you find, as you drink it slowly—savoring each sip—making the most of that rich, exquisite flavor. For here is coffee at the height of flavor-perfection. Coffee with the taste that Nature intends—a deep, delicious, hearty smoothness developed by perfect roasting! Lift a golden-brown, icy glass to your lips, and meet a taste and refreshment you never dreamed of. What a drink it is! For Hills Bros.' exclusive Controlled Roasting process roasts the coffee-berries to flavor perfection . . . never under-roasts nor over-roasts.

If you're a Hills Bros. Coffee fan—if you know its pleasant, entrancing flavor hot—you can imagine what a delicious summer drink it makes cold. But—really—you'll never know how delightful iced coffee can be, until you actually taste Hills Bros. Order some today, by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.



When you hate even the thought of hot food—and want just something cold, and a long, cool drink

When 18 holes have hit you hard—and you need a real pick-up

When you have a party on your hands—and there's not a breath of air on the porch

When you're home from shopping—and can hardly drag one foot after the other

HOW TO MAKE A MARVELOUS GLASS OF HILLS BROS COFFEE—iced

Prepare Hills Bros. Coffee in your regular way. Then instead of adding ice to the hot coffee, cool it in a pitcher or covered dish—and chill in your refrigerator. Do not add ice until ready to serve—for ice dilutes the delightful, bracing flavor. Serve with cream, if desired, and sweeten to taste.

THE vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh. No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it a little at a time

FRESH ALWAYS!

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

. . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the exclusive process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . "a little at a time."

PARIS ANNOUNCES EARLY FALL FASHION PROGRAM

New Silhouette Seen in Loose, Unbelted Coats

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The flower sellers at the Madeleine are loading their stands with lilacs and anemones, and along the Rue de la Paix trucks full of gilded chairs are being unloaded in the big dressmaking houses in preparation for the midseason fashion shows. Buyers and other professional fashion gentry have reserved these chairs, the hardest ever conceived by a perverse chairmaker, to see the first fall styles, and not a chair goes begging, for everybody who can wrangle an invitation is agog with interest. The buyers hand in their hundred dollars to the hard faced woman at the entrance, and forget their tortured anatomy in their absorption of the revelations of the mannequin parade.

Nondrastic Changes.

The fashions thus revealed for early fall aren't surprisingly different. The Paris couturiers are sticking to a program of nondrastic changes. For the first cool days they propose dresses of feather-light woolen with little fur mantelets. They offer, also, dressmaker suits that have jackets which are either very short or hip length.

They show knee length and three-quarter length coats with contrasting or matching frocks, made of smooth or hairy woolens. These coats have a new silhouette, one that is loose and unbelted, and the dress by contrast is fitted neatly. These ensembles, smart and new, threaten the supremacy of the narrow silhouette. The coats have no fur trimming, and are worn with scarfs.

There is no dearth of long coats, however. Straight long coats, tied-on long coats, and buttoned-up long coats are in the Paris fall style program. It is fashionable to have the fur trimming of such coats separate, so you can use it with other clothes; and Paris shows many separate capelets, little jackets, draped collars, and scarfs with such coats. Light gray or beige coats with dark brown, dark gray, or black fur are important, and they are shown with dark dresses. Red, blue, and gray fox, sableized marten, seal, and astrakhan are the furs most in evidence, with ermine always lurking about dressy coats.

May Match or Contrast.

There are many smooth woolens, some with a soft hairy surface, heaps and heaps of velvet and velveteen, crinkly crêpes and smooth crêpe silks, satins, stiff silks like faille, heavy jerseys, and silk and wool materials that look like shantung. Crêped satin ribbed velvet jersey and satin piqué are novelties.

Sleeves are going to have a lot of importance in the chic of both coats and frocks this fall. Many are bulky at the top, others below the elbows. A quantity are fitted.

The "don't dress" ensemble, for both day and evening, is more firmly established than ever. Women who have them wonder how they ever managed to do without. They come in the form of suit or jacket ensembles usually.

Mainbocher, who first made these ensembles, has many in his pre-autumn collection. One that is to be imported to the United States is shown on the first standing figure in the foreground at the left. As it is sketched it is a smart daytime suit with a waist length jacket and a skirt that is flared by a wide panel at the front and back. The material of this suit is smooth black woolen, and the chic of the jacket lies in the double full circle capelets on the sleeves and the diagonal buttoned closing. Immediately on the left, in the background, is the dress of this ensemble, with its evening bodice of pink chiffon. The skirt mounts to points in front, below which is a black satin belt. A red velvet toque with a pink and red velvet rope around it completes the outfit.

Brown and Gray Combination.

Judge Views Youth of Today Optimistically

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

YOUTH.

Children.

Are they headed for disaster or are they the brave, level eyed leaders of tomorrow who are going to lead us—and themselves—out of the desert?

Are parents of today confronted with the hardest problem that has ever challenged fathers and mothers since the world began?

How much are parents responsible for the misdemeanors of youth?

What can they do about it?

These are the burning questions of the day, to which parents and people in general seek the answer. It's pessimism that colors most of the replies that find the light of public print or utterance. But is a pessimistic answer the truthful one?

Questions Judge.

I chose to ask a man whose experience is wide and deep, yet of a nature to enable him to see to the heart of the matter—a man who is also a father—Judge Franklin Chase Hoyt. Judge Hoyt is notable as the presiding justice of the Children's court of the city of New York. He not only organized the court, but has a list of other achievements. He has always worked zealously for all constitutional amendments to further the cause of childhood. He works closely with the Big Brothers, Boy Scouts, and the National Probation association.

Being confronted constantly in his court with children who are delinquent, or on the borderline, or neglected, you might reasonably expect that the darker side of the picture of childhood would shadow his prophecy of the future of our young generation.

I went to seek a judge and found an optimist. A rare find these days—an optimist—especially where our youth are concerned. The fact almost overpowered the many significant things Judge Hoyt had to say of special interest to parents, of which I have space to pass on to you only a few.

Retains Sympathetic Attitude.

Judge Hoyt is by nature and training strikingly well equipped to direct and carry on the work of the Children's court. His trenchant

New Ideal for Housewives

By Doris Blake.

"HOUSEWORK, when it applies modern art and science, ceases to be an occupation and becomes an avocation."

So said the late Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, for years director of the College of Home Economics at Cornell university, and a pioneer in this field.

"It is of as much interest and as important for a woman to keep her kitchen sink clean as for a surgeon to wash his hands and use sterilized instruments. The most menial task to be performed in her home is part of the life of her family. Upon the food she gives her children depends their future health.

"The average woman," Miss Van Rensselaer continued in a lecture not long before her death, "likes to draw a line between her household duties and her spiritual life. There is no difference. Housework is spiritual."

Back in 1900 Miss Van Rensselaer was called to undertake some work of extension service for farmers' wives which would correspond to the work of agricultural schools for farmers. This call paved the way for her life work, of which she already had seen the need in her contacts with rural women.

No Interest in Soul Culture.

"I saw that great advances had been made in soil culture for the farmer," Miss Van Rensselaer reported, "but that the soul culture of the farmers' wife was at standstill. Slow, cumbrous methods, dirt, and a sixteen hour day told the story. A pedometer test showed the daily mileage of the women in badly arranged kitchens was between seven and eight miles a day. I found this could be reduced by simple improvements to three and a half or four miles."

Miss Van Rensselaer, with her coworker, Miss Flora Rose, succeeded in establishing a department at Cornell devoted to home making, the first of its kind in the country. It has a four year course, and its graduates receive the degree of bachelor of science. On

Menu Planning Today Merits Extra Thought

By Mary Meade.

WHEN Napoleon made history by declaring that an army marches on its stomach, he epigrammatically said something that has been a fact since man first climbed out of the trees and began raiding wild honey caches, munching roots, and stalking game.

For the whole world, and not only armies, marches on its stomach. Industry, capital, science, the arts—every phase of life and every inch of progress owe success, happiness, and life itself to what goes to make up their three meals a day.

Today, with every dollar spreading out to do triple duty, and with half or more of each green bill that comes in going out again for food, the home manager who can inveigle her reduced income into successfully answering the food needs of her family and still tickle palates and lure appetites as intriguingly as ever, is carrying off a job as important as any ever performed by a wartime commissary feeding an army.

How to save and what to serve while saving? That question has been met in the last few months by a deluge of "dollar a day menus" and emergency food budgets which have almost swamped the homemaker by their bewildering variety and almost unbelievably low figures.

Theory and Practice at Odds.

But, unfortunately, theory and practice sometimes are two different things. An alluring economy budget turns up. The thrifty homemaker follows it for a month—and then discovers to her disappointment that what looked ideal on paper has failed to work out in the kitchen. She is certain she served the foods the menus directed, and yet consistently dishes and meals have cost more than has been allowed for them in the budget.

In a few cases this may have been the fault of an overzealous budgeteer. But in far more it is likely that the trouble was not in the types of food served but in the way they were marketed and prepared. For it doesn't take much imagination to understand that two women might prepare the identical menu and yet the cost of one might actually double that of the other.

It appears, then, that the things the budget leaves out are really as important as the budget itself. And if we are really to perform wonders with a dollar a day—or even $2—we will do well to give solid thought to the market basket, the ice box, and the saucepan.

Marketing suggestions, which all of us know but which keep slipping away from us, save dollars each week. Here are a few, each of which will neatly rescue a good many important pennies apiece.

Buy by weights whenever possible. Bulk is deceiving.

Day old bread is just as nourishing as the fresh and may be bought for less.

Use bread, not crackers, as energy supplying foods.

Economy in Seasonal Purchases.

Purchase fruits and vegetables in season. Berries are inexpensive buys in the spring and summer, apples and peaches in the fall, and cranberries, grapefruit, and oranges in the winter months. Corn and asparagus—in the luxury class in April—are cheap and delicious in midsummer. When oranges are out of season, tomatoes should come in for daily service as preventatives of colds and infection and as good, husky appetite rousers.

To vary the fresh fruit diet, make frequent calls on dried fruits. There is a host of delicious ways to use them in chilly desserts, beverages, breakfast foods, and hearty entrées. And consider commercially canned fruits occasionally. They contain slightly more food value than home canned varieties, and the saving in sugar and cooking fuel just about equalizes the extra cost.

Use top milk rather than cream in coffee and on cereals. The skimmed milk can find plenty of uses in soups, sauces, and the like.

Watch out for sales and take advantage of such times to stock up on staples. Large quantity buying is smart—if there is plenty of storage room and all the food bought can be used before there is any spoilage. Go slowly on buying whole grain flours or cereals in quantity, however. They spoil more quickly than the refined varieties, and so should be bought only in short time installments.

Cereals bought in bulk cost less than those coming in packages. And the ready to serve types are more expensive per serving than cooked cereals. Cereal, combined with other foods as a main dish or served as a breakfast food once a day, may be at once one of the most inexpensive and delicious forms of energy foods we can serve.

Prepared flour mixtures for baked foods cost more than the ingredients from which they are made.

Inexpensive Cuts of Meat.

Inexpensive cuts of meat, if properly prepared, may be even more fully flavored and delicious than their more expensive relatives. Chuck, brisket, flank, plate, shank, shoulder, and neck are excellent economy cuts.

Dried vegetables—especially beans, peas, and lentils—are temptingly low priced, adapt themselves to a wide range of dishes, and with their high percentage of protein may be used to ease along the meat bill two or even three times a week. Overnight soak

"Back to Bobs" Is Coiffeur's Chant

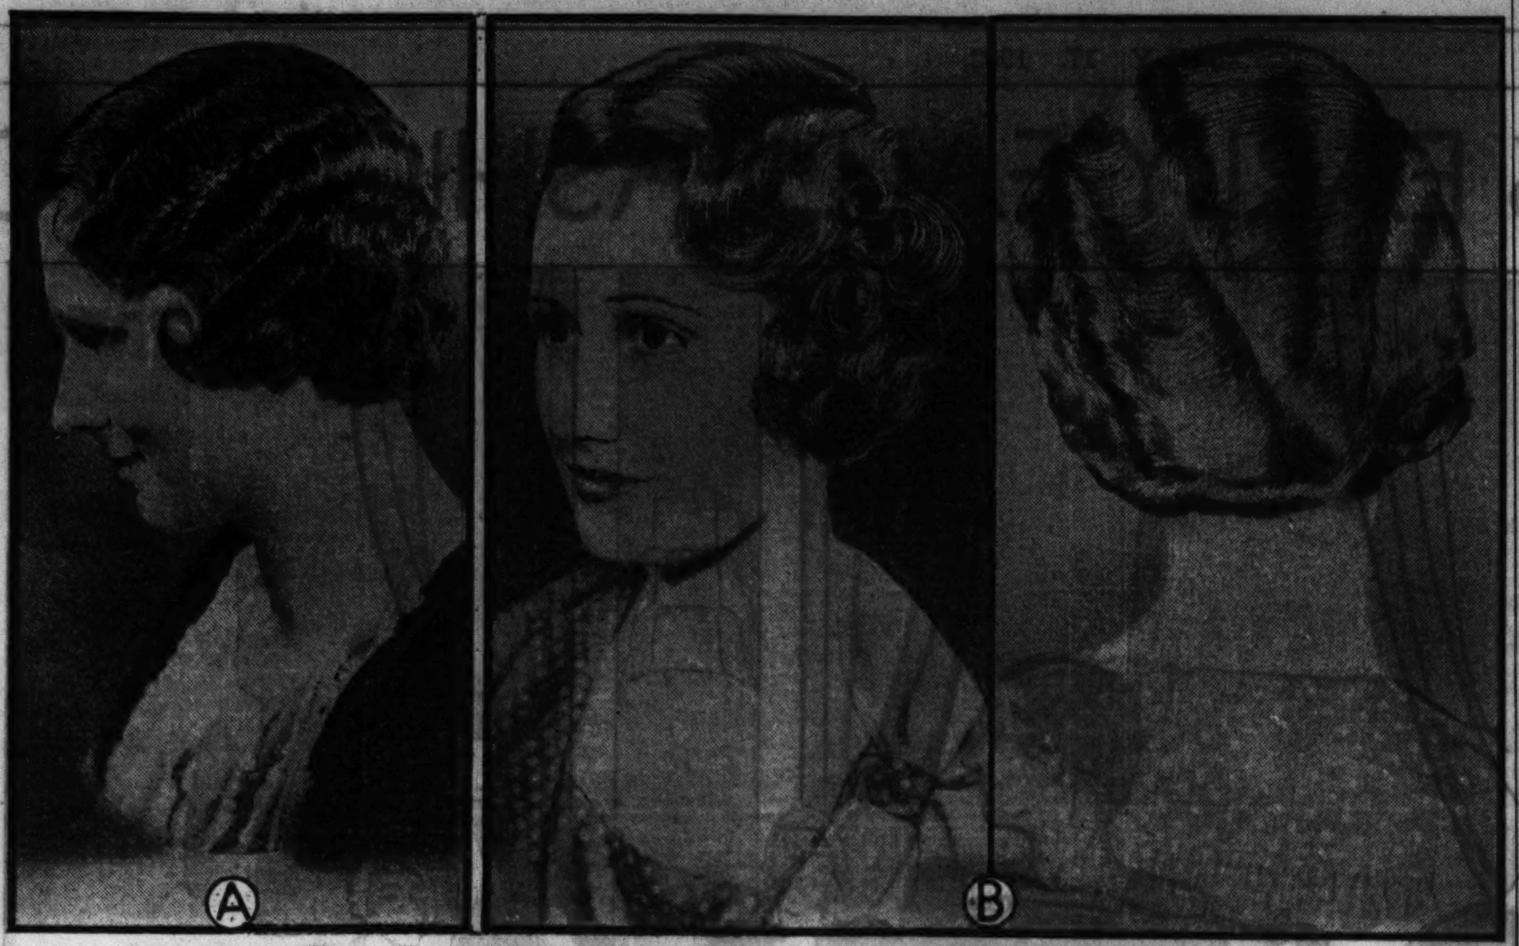
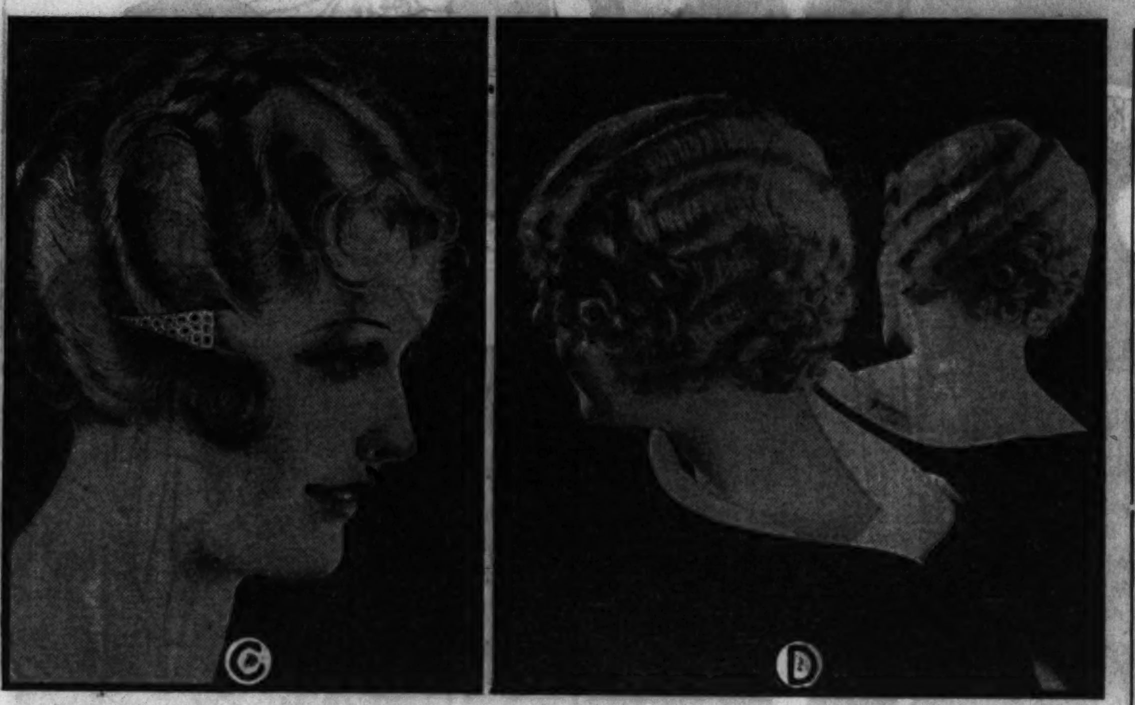
By Antoinette Donnelly.





ONE thing we can say about hairdressing is that there is a definite trend toward shorter hair lengths. Bobs are reappearing. And what bobs! So good looking, feminine—and original!

A stunning brunette of my acqaintance is wearing her short, full bob swung entirely to one side with the ends of the hair from forehead to ear as mass of curls. The back arrangements shows hair combed in a swirl [with but two wave indentations] over to meet the curl mass on the left. The neck finish in the back is uncurled.

The hairdressers seem to be tearing their own hair to develop new styles for the new shorter haircuts. Curls in most cases are ruled off the neckline but permitted on one side, or both in front. The neckline is important because most hats expose the neck and there must be a smartly finished look here. The sausage roll won't do, nor is a mass of curls on the neckline as popular as it was six months ago.

It looks to me as if women have never got over their taste for the short and comfortable bobbed head, which seems to be gradually edging its way back. This clearing off of the neckline would indicate it, don't you think? Unless one has a slender, young neck, hair falling down on it in the back is clumsy, heavy looking.

Highlights of Moment.

Unusual partings of the hair are another highlight of the moment. They provide a variation in the ways that short hair may go. The crescent parting is one of the novelties, best suited to a young woman with oval features. It is just as its name implies—crescent shaped, beginning at the crown and continuing to the neck line, the hair over one side of the face being combed out into feathery edges. Diagonal bangs across the forehead are another form of original twist to the bob. The bob here is rather windblown with ringlet rolls over the ears.

The luster bob is shingled close in back and close enough on the sides to make the curls (double tiers) running from temple to below the ears, lie flat against the head.

Every hairdresser you talk to reminds you of the need of thinning and tapering the hair for the new modes, especially those of shorter length hair.

The film folk are yielding to the vogue for shorter hair which has persisted in Paris in spite of rumors to the contrary. The tidy neckline is showing up in many of the recent pictures, with nothing lost to femininity. Janet Gaynor has come out with a short bob set at the back and sides in soft, flat curls close to the head. Ina Claire has an equally short haircut, and is sporting a cluster of puff curls over the left ear. It has a vivacious and extremely feminine effect and forms a tres chic combination with Ina's small, tilted hats.

Wide, Soft Wave Favored.

New York's leading coiffure creators have incorporated many of Hollywood's ideas in their new summer exhibits. The basis of practically all of them is a wide, soft wave, either permanent or natural. The wave must be fresh and expertly made, especially if curls are to enter into the scheme. There is little to choose between the various permanent waving systems, the difference lying largely in the skill of the individual operator.

The finger waves in these new coiffures are set on the bias, most of them with a pronounced swirl at the back. In almost every case there is a formation of some kind over the left ear to bank up under the new hats with a lifting, buoyant effect.

Curls predominate in the designs offered by Emile, head of the New York State Hairdressers' association. One of his smartest effects features a series of deep waves on the sharp bias, ending in a cluster of soft, close set ringlets at the right side of the neckline. There also are soft ringlets at either temple and on the forehead. Set on a shapely head, this coiffure is especially chic for summer evening wear.

For all purpose wear, Emile suggests [A] a simple, tidy arrangement of moderately diagonal waves with short cut curls all the way across the back, and flat ringlets on the forehead and in front of the ears. This is particularly effective with lustrous dark hair.

"If curls are to be worn," Emile advises, "it is absolutely essential that they be set for the first time by an expert hairdresser. Amateurishly handled, curls make a sorry and messy appearance."

Outdoor Coiffures.

If the summer program is to consist largely of daytime outdoor activities, P. Richard, of the Coiffure guild, suggests [B] a single diagonal finger wave ending at the neckline in a single row of small curls. The part is far to the right and ends at the back of the right ear. Over the left ear are large soft "drawn over" curls, filling the space left by the tilted hat. This design is extremely youthful and is the essence of smart simplicity.

P. Richard also offers [C] a smart sculptured effect featuring a series of deep left-to-right diagonal waves and a few judiciously placed ringlets on the forehead. An unusual touch is a wide soft swirl extending well out on the face even with the lobe of the ear. A short coronet braid worn well forward on the crown contributes an extremely chic touch for evening.

Small combs and ornaments in metals and brilliants will be much in order for evening wear this summer, P. Richard says. And if dyeing is on the schedule, he reports that Titian tints will be considerably more fashionable than either platinum blonde or extreme black.

For the Sophisticated.

John of the Mayfair has worked out a stunning, smooth coiffure which employs no curls at all. The finger wave is soft and extends all the way to the neckline, which is straight, with about one-half inch of the hair turned outward and upward at the ends for a soft finishing touch there. Deep, swirling waves dip down almost vertically over the ears and a single flat ringlet comes down on the face on either side. This is a definitely sophisticated type and is equally appropriate either for daytime or evening.

Prophets More than Priests Needed Today

Each Sunday for the next few weeks the Tribune will publish brief sermon editorials on questions dealing with current religious developments. These discussions will be written by well known Chicago clergymen selected by the Rev. John Evans, religious editor. The following was prepared by the Rev. Dr. Edwin E. Voigt, associate professor of Old Testament literature, Garrett Biblical institue, Evanston.

WHAT kind of leadership does the church need? We may choose between two, for, like an ellipse, religion moves, not around one, but around two types of leaders. The function of one is to point out new ideals, nobler goals and higher verities; the function of the other is to conserve the gains of the past and create the structure needed for bringing the new ideas into living reality. We commonly speak of these as the prophetic and the priestly functions.

It can be truly said of Christendom that in the last nineteen centuries no age was completely prophetic, nor entirely priestly. Neither can it be said of any one group within Christianity that it was altogether one or the other. Certain Christian bodies whose emphasis may have tended toward conservation have, however, not been without their great prophetic spirits. And certain other Christian groups who have principally been interested in pointing new paths, have likewise not been without their great priestly souls. But now in spite of the fact that the individual spirit must be encouraged to maintain its calm and courage and social passions must be held under control, it is, nevertheless, true that the call is for the bold and adventurous spirit of the prophet rather than for the conservator.

A Backward Glance.

We can see that this is true if we will look at our situation from the long perspective of history. The race by a slow and painful process has passed from savagery to barbarism, from barbarism to the nomadic and pastoral life, and from the roving life of the dweller of the tent in the plains or on the steppes to the settled life of the agriculturist.

As near as it is possible to judge from history, the agricultural stage of human civilization began about 10,000 year ago. In the following centuries one after another of the tribes and nations of the earth settled down to this kind of economic life, and in time practically all of mankind got their subsistence directly from the soil, the herds now producing only the accessories of life. Some large cities sprung up and some trade flourished, but the wealth thus created and concentrated was obtained by trading in the products of the field.

Changes Taking Place.

But now, in recent times, that is, recent in the light of history, we have first invented the machine, and then more recently still the power driven machine with its limitless possibilities of removing the drudgery from life and enriching it in innumerable material ways. However, whether we admit it or not, or whether we notice it or not, the machine is slowly changing our whole social organization and, like the industrial revolution, it is producing a social reconstruction which will involve structural changes in socity that will be as great as those that took place when man passed from the life of the shepherd to the life of the argiculturist.

It is true, therefore, that since the industrial revolution the race has found itself in a process of fundamental change such as it has not witnessed in 10,000 years. The present world wide economic stagnation is in reality one of the paroxysms accompanying the birth of a new cultural and social order. What that new world will be we cannot as yet see, but what we need is a group of men who will envision it for us and inspire us to work for its creation. True enough, in this process we need those who will hold us steady and keep us from violence, but even more than that we need the master draftsman of the prophetic guild who will picture for us this future and, we hope, fairer city of God.

The Rev. William E. Cousins of the Holy Name cathedral will speak on "Spiritism, Fact or Fraud?" at the July meeting of the Holy Name Cathedral Converts' league. This meeting, which is open to all Catholics of the archdiocese of Chicago, convert or otherwise, and to interested non-Catholics, will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall, 11 East Chicago avenue.

Need Waste No Time Envying Business Sister, but Can Put Heart and Soul Into Attaining Success Above Average at Own Job.

speech and vital personalities reveal a keenness and brilliance of mind, combined with singularly humane and sympathetic attitude toward children. the campus is a model house, and among its features have been "practice babies" for first hand study. The course offers instruction in food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, housing and design, and household and institution management. Here, indeed, housework is elevated to the avocation with which its sponsors dignify it.

The great need among house workers is a changed mental status toward the job in hand. It is doubtful if there is another body of workers whose daily duties are so belittled by their performers. Women in offices, women in stores, women in factories with work far more confining, with work in which there is comparatively small chance for self-expression, are not given to the same resentment found among those whose duties revolve around the home.

Hold Wrong Attitude.

True, there are exceptional women who love home making and housekeeping for whose mental reaction toward the job there can be only the highest commendation. Generally speaking, however, the attitude of the housewife toward her home duties is that she has taken a step down. She is wasting talent on a monotonous, unappreciated, unnecessary performance. True, there is a certain monotony about the job. But compared to the monotonous day after day repetition of the average store, office, or factory employé the home worker has far and away the best of it.

A factor she enjoys, but which is denied the away-from-home vocationist, is that she is her own boss. She has the privilege of arranging her working hours so that daily she has time off to do with exactly what she pleases. Outside of that minority of modern day wives and mothers whose household duties are excessively taxing, her working hours are matters of her own skilled arrangement. And with the modern art and science in the home, the average wife and mother can very well arrange time off to cultivate interests, pursuits, and such social contact as she may feel herself denied in comparison with the business sister. She could do this exactly as her business sister has to arrange her social and study life outside of her actual working hours. She could do it, that is, if she would stop deprecating housework as an inferior job. Or, like her sister in business bent on attaining a position above the average, she could put heart and soul into her work, performing it with the same determination to gain recognition, and meanwhile gathering for herself the satisfaction that comes from a job well done.

Dignified Occupation.

It's the attitude toward the home job that is wrong. The work will always remain monotonous, uninspiring, hateful, maybe, so long as one brings that spirit to its performance. Believe that yours is an avocation, not an occupation. That there is as much dignity to feeding the group depending upon your individual effort as there is in conducting a successful restaurant. Believe that you are a whole welfare committee in yourself; a minister tending your flock; a board of arbitration; a secretary of finances; a child betterment head. A dozen other dignified appropriations you may take to yourself, if you will change your mental attitude toward your work.

Now is a particularly good time to look at this job of yours without an unflattering comparison with the business woman's. The times have deflated much of the business sister's "superiority," responsible in large part, in my opinion, for the seeming meniality of the homemaker's job. Anyway, the business girl's life, her freedom, her pay envelope, were disturbing elements in many a housewife's career. The business one's ego has been pretty badly punctured of late, and not a few of them are casting envious eyes on the home woman's job.

Better, however, to dispense with comparisons, and tackle the job of housework for all there is in it. As it may be practised today, with an easily acquired knowledge of food and nutrition, of housing and design, and household management, you may appropriate unto yourself a bachelor of science degrees along with all your other distinctions.

Poor Construction Is Easily Detected

WITH regard to quality of workmanship, the following remarks by Thomas Sheraton are interesting: "The cabinetmaker is distinguishable by the neatness of his lines, cross banding and drawer work. In both, one sure sign of a bad workman is the ill condition of his tools."

A great deal concerning the quality of a piece can be gauged from an examination of the drawers to see whether the dovetails are coarse and badly fitted, or whether they are fine and close fitting. In carving, perhaps, the greatest variation in quality is to be found. It ranges from superlative to coarse. Careful examination of the carving on the backs and legs of mahogany chairs will teach the student of furniture a great deal more concerning quality in this respect than the written word can convey.

The acanthus foliage of the arms or back of a fine quality 18th century mahogany armchair will show that the carving is in high relief and that the leaves and tendrils of the foliage intertwine with each other. Such carving has a crispness and a sense of movement in contrast to carving of poor quality, which is not only coarse in execution but is dull and lifeless in appearance, the leaves of the acanthus being represented by gouged lines on the surface, with no undercutting.

Restricted Food Budget Is an Incentive to the Ingenious Housewife to Serve Meals Both Nutritious and Appetizing.

"What is it?" demands father. "Guess!" challenges mother. "Hash!" ventures Billy. "Pie!" gurgles Mary. But whatever the answer, it's bound to be an epic if mother is up to the minute on the art of turning homely foods into culinary triumphs.

ing will materially cut down on the cooking time and the fuel.

Eggs bought in April and May are at their lowest and best, and may be packed in waterglass solutions in sufficient quantities to carry through the high priced season.

While butter is the most expensive fat, it is also the most valuable, especially for growing children. Whole milk and less costly cooking fats may be used in most prepared dishes, with butter reserved for table service.

Potatoes, served once a day, supply important amounts of vitamin C, the anti-infection vitamin, as well as blood and body building materials.

Baking them preserves much of the important food materials, and if pre-scrubbed and oiled before being placed in the oven they may be eaten skins and all, thus rescuing their most important minerals, which lie just under the jackets.

Celery tops make delicious creamed soups if sauteed in a little butter, while the outside leaves of lettuce and cabbage may be utilized in soups or scalloped dishes.

The homemaker who buys poor grades of meat, vegetables, and eggs as money savers loses in the end because of the higher percentage of waste.

Substitutes for Variety.

So much for marketing. But, say you, with such large amounts of mildly flavored grain products, how is it possible to vary the menu enough to make it palatable and appealing? It is true that in cutting down costs we automatically increase the grain, for this class of food supplies the most nourishment for a given amount of money. But this need not alter the attractiveness of our service or the tastiness of the foods we do serve. It's simply necessary to work a bit harder to entice color and flavor combination in to make up for the lack of variety.

Quick cooking in boiling water retains the attractive colors and desirable flavors of vegetables. Long, slow cooking has to be allowed for the less expensive cuts of meat to make them completely delicious. Bones from yesterday's stew will make an excellently flavored soup for tomorrow. And fat cut from the roast before cooking will do priceless things to mildly flavored vegetables. Also a little meat flavor will cover a lot of territory if combined with "meat extenders," such as bread crumbs or rice in croquettes, meat pies, creamed meat on toast, or stews with dumplings. A bit of discreet adventuring in spices and flavorings—especially in onions, tomatoes, curry powder, and minced celery leaves—will add the final touches and call down approval on every dish served.

Tantalizing Disguises.

Because we so often turn up disdainful noses at foods we call "common" or "uninteresting," or, worse yet, serve them because of their low prices but always in the same hackneyed combinations and forms, there's a grand and glorious field for adventure in creating new, tantalizing dishes in which the old faithfuls can take on new charm. A few of my own favorite tantalizers follow. And lest I forget, I'm looking for tasty, new, low priced dishes; so if you have any pet economy recipes, won't you send them in?

PEA ROAST.

1 tablespoon sugar.
¼ cup melted butter.
½ cup pea pulp [canned or dried].
¼ cup finely chopped peanuts.
¾ cup whole milk.
¾ cup stale bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Blend the melted butter with the sugar and eggs. Mix together the pea pulp, peanuts, seasonings, bread crumbs, and milk, and combine with the first mixture. Turn into a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] 25 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce or chopped pickle. This interesting entrée comes to you for the pleasant sum of approximately 17 cents and serves four generously.

HOPPING JOHN.

½ pound salt pork, cut fine.
3 small onions, chopped.
2 cups cooked rice.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Wash the beans, drain, and add one quart of cold water. Let soak ten hours, then add another quart of water and cook over low heat until tender. Brown the cut pork in a hot skillet and add to the cooked beans. Brown the onion in the pork fat and add to the beans. Season with from one to two teaspoons of salt. Add pepper to taste. Stir in the cooked rice and simmer the Hopping John 15 minutes. Serve with catsup or thick tomato sauce.

PRUNE JELLY.

1 cup sugar.
Juice of one lemon.
¼ teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons orange juice.

Soak the prunes in two cups cold water and cook gently in the same water until tender. Save the juice. Seed the prunes and cut into small pieces. Add enough boiling water to bring the amount of prune juice to two cups. Dissolve in this the gelatin, which has been soaked in the cold water five minutes. Stir in the sugar, fruit juices, and salt. Chill until the gelatin is partly thickened. Then stir in the prunes and pour into fancy individual molds. When firm unmold and serve with top milk and sugar.

BRAISED LIVER EN CASSEROLE.

1 medium sized turnip, diced.
1 small onion, minced.
1-3 cup chopped celery.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 bay leaf.
1 pound beef liver.
2 tablespoons flour.
2 tablespoons bacon or other fat.
1 cup hot meat stock or water.
1 cup strained hot tomato juice.

Chop the liver in two inch pieces and roll in the mixed flour, salt, and pepper. Place the fat in a hot skillet and brown the liver in it. Add the vegetables and brown slightly. Turn into a deep casserole and pour over it the mixed stock, tomato juice, and minced bay leaf. If desired, this may be slightly thickened by a flour and water paste. Cover and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about two hours. Cook uncovered during the last half hour.

Comfort Combined with Style

COOL, crisp, chalk white linen is used for practically everything in your fashionable summer wardrobe. The smartest street shoes are oxford ties of white linen with medium high walking heels, such as those portrayed here, which were photographed in a Chicago shop. The high pointed tongue slenderizes the foot unbelievably well, and you can walk miles without any effort with those unusually comfortable heels.

Gay Styles from Old Courts Turn to Modern Ways

PARIS.—(AP)—Old world grace combined with new world sophistication—that's the story of the new evening clothes.

The riches of the renaissance, the color of the court of Louis Quinze, blended with the nonchalant sophistication of the twentieth century make the evening frocks which will be worn this summer and early fall worthy of the worldliest wardrobes.

Cottons may bloom at the seashore and countryside, but the fabrics which flower in the ballrooms in town are rich and rare in tone.

They are fairly light in weight, but they are heavy in effect and chosen for their draping qualities.

A new ciré [waxed] jersey with a glazed soapy finish, gleaming transparent velvet which catches the light like a jewel, heavy crêpes and peau d'ange jerseys which fall in folds as rich as a palace portiere are among the fabrics seen.

Their color combinations are as exotic as their weaves—a sheathlike shell pink frock ornamented with a dashing shoulder bow of American beauty satin; a mauve crêpe accented with one big cluster of red carnations; a cardinal purple velvet touched with turquoise, and flesh pink crêpe accented with gentian blue.

Equally sophisticated are their lines. The skirts, with hips less tight than a few months ago, swirl in heavy folds within a hair's breadth of the floor; waists are slender and unadorned; while bodices are draped to reveal the bust.

The new version of the shade once reserved for kings and archbishops is a rich, dark, winelike hue which lends itself to combinations with brighter colors.

Contrast Aplenty in Dotted Bag

DOTS that are almost as big as pennies make the new color contrasts on the whitest sports bags. This one, offered in a Chicago shop, has spots of bordeaux red, a grape shade, to contrast with the white pigskin of the bag itself. A long white bone clasp is unusual when combined with a carrying strap, but very new and practical.

Home Treatment For Keeping Skin Young

MERCOLIZED WAX is the one beauty aid you can afford because this single preparation embodies all the essentials of beauty that your skin needs. It cleanses, softens, bleaches, lubricates and protects. It is so simple to use, too. Just pat it on your skin each night as if it were an ordinary cold cream. That's all. Mercolized Wax seeps into your pores and dissolves grime and dust and all impurities. It absorbs the discolored surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, revealing the beautiful, soft, young skin that lies beneath. It clears away freckles, tan, oiliness, sunburn or any other blemishes. You use such a tiny bit of Mercolized Wax for each application that it proves an inexpensive beauty investment. Beauty cannot be taken for granted. It must be cared for regularly if you want to hold it through the years. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

POWDERED SAXOLITE dissolved in one half pint witch hazel quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. It is a refreshing, stimulating astringent lotion. Use it daily. At all drug and department stores.

Special Frocks and Coats for Airplane Jaunt

The New Soft Hats of Silk, Wool or Straw Take Little Room in Your Trunks

By Rhea Seeger.

WHETHER it takes you two weeks, two days, or an efficient two hours to pack your wardrobe and depart for blue horizons that beckon alluringly, you'll weaken just like a thousand other packers, and before the last trunk is pushed together you'll make another mad dash to the shops for new travel clothes. And you'll find them, all sorts, the newest clothes for shopping travelers designed for all points south, north, east, and west.

New thin woolens, so sheer and lacy that they will be mistaken for cottons and silks, are perhaps the most interesting models, while silk suits of two and three piece ensembles claim the attention of experienced travelers who have journeyed about with such cool outfits before. You can start out on a trip of discovery and find some perfect clothes for airplane travel. Models designed with the minimum of frills and extras; likewise of sheer wools in every fascinating color and shade. These flying clothes are made cleverly with such a practical idea lurking behind them all that they are smart enough and new enough to be worn long after you have completed your flying vacation. Two piece costumes for the air feature a long sleeved dress and a short chic jacket. Over this you can add a matching or contrasting long, warmer coat.

Wearable Silk Suits.

For summer holidays planned all spring, for the clothes hound who really takes her holidays in the dress parade spirit, some of the new silk suits will be a joy to inspect. While silk suits and costumes and ensembles may sound defiantly unpractical and even frivolously senseless to the vacationist who travels with only absolute essentials, these silk things are exceptionally wearable and delightfully cool and are tremendously chic in dark street colors.

Hats that are appearing around the town must have been launched just at this time for the especial selection of outgoing vacationists. All kinds of tight, skull hugging models are awaiting your approval. Silk, thin wools, soft, airy straws that look like silk or wool are well designed for the slim spaces of your various bags and traveling cases, and some of them can be folded into even smaller spaces and retrieved hours later without any wrinkled signs of their cramped seclusion.

Baggage, a superior collection of suitcases, hat bags, condensed cases that look much smaller than they really are, hold just as much and sometimes more than any similar sized trunk. Baggage makers have been most ingenious in making trunks that are small and compact and yet miracles of pockets and compartments that will hold the most complete summer wardrobe.

But the clothes you will pack will, no doubt, be of paramount importance. Any trip, any vacation is only as successful as the ease with which you managed to appear faultlessly groomed and fashionably frocked. And the most important of all the clothes you will need and shop for are the clothes you travel in, the sleek, slim, knowing models you will wear on the way. Four summer models have been sketched today, four outstanding designs that are particularly practical as well as chic.

The inspired model shown in the upper center sketch is made of a thin emerald green wool, a wool that is woven with a tiny basketlike pattern of nubby threads. This costume consists of two pieces, a short sleeved frock and a swagger, well fitted jacket. Any traveler could wear this model. It's warm enough and also cool enough to cope with any temperature. It's smart and different enough to please the most fastidious. The most unusual trimming ever attached to a thin wool costume is illustrated in this green suit. Notice the lace edging around the skirt and the yoke of the frock. This is an Alençon lace dyed a lovely green that exactly matches the one of the wool.

Ribbed Wool Is Smart.

At the left in the picture is a bright blue suit of ribbed wool. A double breasted jacket that is fitted snugly to the ribs goes in for double rows of metal buttons. The wide ribbed wool is new and is delightfully cool and airy, as the narrow sections between the woolen wales are transparent. A separate blouse of tailored silk pique is worn with this skirt and jacket. For contrast and color a gayly printed scarlet and white 'kerchief is tucked in the side pocket.

The exciting silk suit in the lower center is definitely distinctive as well as sophisticated. What a find it is for a summer bride as her traveling costume! The model sketched is of heavy black silk crêpe. A one piece dress with short sleeves is worn with a wide sleeved short jacket. Rows of shirred cordings and huge long silk tassels are the only decoration. The shirred motif is repeated on the skirt of the dress and a wide braided belt ending with tassels defines the waistline.

At the right a two color contrast in brown is achieved in an eye catching costume. The frock is of dark cinnamon brown wool crêpe with a coffee colored lace yoke and demure high collar that creeps over the collar of the outside jacket. Glittering gold metal buttons march down the sleeves and the front of the frock well below the length of the jacket.

The short sleeved jacket is of light tan wool crêpe and is buttoned together with the same metal buttons of the dress. Wide fur cuffs band the jacket sleeves.

Lady Louis Mountbatten Wears White for Sports

PARIS.—(AP)—Lady Louis Mountbatten is among smart Europeans who are wearing white for sports wear this summer. She has a number of wool and silk crêpe sports frocks with which she wears navy blue scarfs and belts for accessory accents.

Costumes That Will Go North, South, East and West

Woman's Brain Developed More Highly Than Man's

According to Dr. Wells P. Eggleston, brain specialist of Newark, N. J., "certain portions of a woman's brain are more highly developed than a man's; specifically the portion which controls moral and ethical reactions, making her more spiritual, while man remains carnal."

New Patterns Obey Summer Style Trend

By Clotilde.

THE smart higher waistline effect is prettily shown in the dress made by pattern No. 2802, and the dropped shoulders are finished with small puffed sleeves that may be left off if you prefer. The six piece circular skirt is cleverly cut to give slenderness and height to the figure.

The dress is closed under the left arm, and the bodice has crossed over fronts with attached tie strings that cross at the center back and tie either in the front or at the side. After the waist seams are finished, finish the neck and tie strings with a narrow bias binding. If you use the puffed sleeves be sure that the band fits so it will stay up under the sleeve and allow it to form a puff.

Turn the edges of the front and back of the skirt under a seam's width and baste down. It will be necessary to clip at intervals where the edge curves. Then, beginning at the top, pin this turned under edge a seam's width over the side gore. After it is pinned the entire length, baste in place and stitch close to the edge. Trim off the seam edges if they are uneven and overcast. On sheer or thin materials one row of stitching will be enough.

Pattern No. 2529 shows a new version of the cape collar and is unusually pretty. There are pin tucks on the shoulders at the front, and French bows at the center front give a smart trimming.

The curved seaming of the circular skirt is an idea copied from the grown up mode, and will be becoming to the junior girl. A narrow belt is used at the normal waistline, and the entire frock is as easy as can be to make. Don't finish at the bottom, however, till it has had a chance to sag. Let it hang for several days, then finish on the edge with a narrow hem.

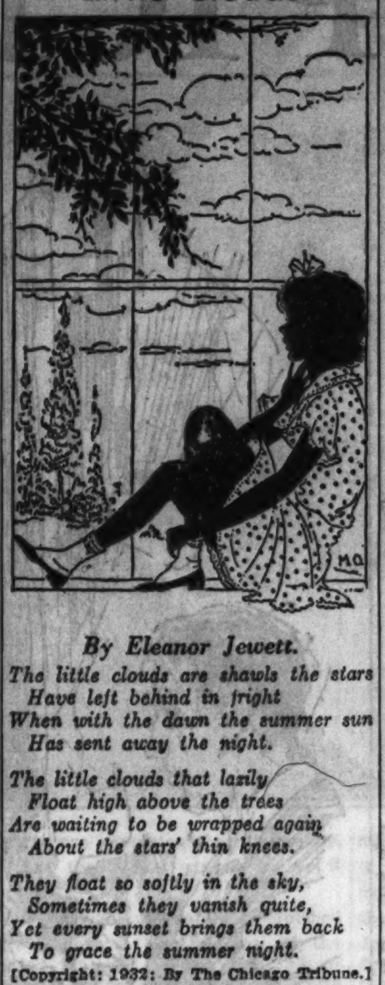
Pattern No. 2828 is for a smart daytime dress for the matron, and the original model used a navy blue and white patterned silk crêpe. The vestee, cascading rever collar and sleeve frills were in a white crêpe.

The skirt is a four piece circular one, and is joined to the bodice under a removable belt. The pattern provides for long and short sleeves, the short ones being finished with circular ruffles. The dress closes under the left arm. The front seam edge is turned back to make a faced hem, and the opposite seam edge is clipped at the top to allow it to form an extension hem. The smallest sized snaps should be used, setting them one-eighth inch in from the edge, and ¾ inch apart.

Little Clouds



By Eleanor Jewett.

The little clouds are shawls the stars
Have left behind in fright
When with the dawn the summer sun
Has sent away the night.

The little clouds that lazily
Float high above the trees
Are waiting to be wrapped again
About the stars' thin knees.

They float so softly in the sky,
Sometimes they vanish quite,
Yet every sunset brings them back
To grace the summer night.

bodice and at the back of the sleeves, above the wrists. The skirt is plaited at the sides. The high square neckline is smart. The Alaskan seal capelet worn with this dress has a belt around the waist and buttons at the sides.

Youthful Silhouette.

Next on the right, in front, is the new loose knee length coat from Schiaparelli. It is young looking and is made of brown wool, with capes over the straight sleeves and a flat collar. Big square gold clips fasten it down the front. A brown and orange silk scarf is knotted around the shoulders, and the transparent wool frock is made of brown and orange striped materials. There are set-in pockets. The dress is shown in the background, on the left. Coat and dress form the new wide and narrow silhouette.

At the extreme right, in front, is shown Maggy Rouff's three-quarter length loose coat of dark gray heavy jersey, trimmed with diagonal lines of straight and wavy tucks. This coat closes at the neck with a flap attached by a silver monogrammed button. The scarf is separate and is striped in two tones of yellow. It is worn also with the frock, shown back of the coat, which closes with a monogrammed flap like the coat. The skirt is straight and the sleeves are loose raglan. A gray leather belt is fastened with a silver monogram.

As you see by the illustrations, skirts remain the same length and waistlines are placed at normal.

Judge Views Youth of Today Optimistically

speech and vital personality reveal a keenness and brilliance of mind, combined with a singularly humane and sympathetic attitude toward children.

One fact ran like a thread through the statements that Judge Hoyt made. It was this: That the requisite for dealing with children is a combination of the ideal and the practical—that no strictly matter of fact treatment, no utilitarian attitude, no acceptance of obvious surface behavior is going to reach and cure the child's trouble—or prevent it.

He said, "one question I thought you were going to ask, which so many people do, was whether the depression had increased delinquency."

"Well, I wasn't," I said, "but has it?"

"Surprisingly enough, no," replied the judge. "And here's another question that was asked me after much deliberation by the group of people who had been weighing it. They inquired:

Source of Delinquency.

"'Do you consider that 75 per cent of delinquency is due to the failure of parents?'"

And here is his answer which will be encouraging to many parents because it will lighten some of the responsibility or blame that falls so heavily on their shoulders these days:

"I told them 'no,' that in my opinion 70 per cent of the delinquency was due to environment, but used in the broadest sense," he said.

Then the judge went on to list those influences which he broadly calls environment: Home, parents, neighborhood, school, companions, and amusement. These are things which together play a 70 per cent part in making or marring a child after he arrives in this world.

"But," added Judge Hoyt, "while not all of that 70 per cent can be blamed on parents, this does not absolve them from their great responsibility." His voice was grave as he said it.

And then he went on to speak most eloquently of youth and its guardians—mother and father. To quote him freely:

"The world has changed. The new environment and customs and inventions are strong influences for our children. They have more to cope with than we had.

"But I do not see that children have changed. Each age has struggled with its children. Each age has had to meet changing conditions, and each age, in turn, has felt that its children were going to the dogs."

Ancient Bewailings.

And he mentioned with a glint of humor some recently deciphered cuneiform inscriptions which revealed the ancients bewailing the problems of parenthood!

"But," said Judge Hoyt with a vitality and enthusiasm that carry conviction, "I am an optimist. I don't find our children so dreadful or so different. They are franker, more independent, more self-reliant than the children of your youth. And we must face that.

"The day of the tyrant parent is past," he went on. "The day of the mentor is over. We who are parents must now be guide, philosopher and friend to our children."

This is the only way that we can retain their confidence, and retain their confidence we must, if we are to be able to help them in this world of today—and tomorrow, was his conclusion. This was not only the judge with a vast factual knowledge of cases speaking, but the father with children, and the man, who in view of his great experience, is constantly called upon by troubled parents whose children, because of their better circumstances, would never be brought before the Children's court.

Cases Treated Successfully.

It was along the lines of Judge Hoyt's intelligent and humane convictions of what children need that he organized the Children's courts and due to this belief that four out of every five children brought before the court are brought successfully out of their difficulties. Not only is that proportion of interest, but the fact that the number of cases brought before the court has decreased by 745 during 1931. I find in the annual report of the Children's court of the city of New York for 1931 this statement by Presiding Justice Franklin Chase Hoyt:

"I cannot accept or subscribe to those varied and often unverified statements that the youth of the city are now more lawless than in the past. Of course, I can only speak with authority as to the children up to 16 years of age, but as to them our own figures show that there are not as many delinquents today as there were in the past.

"It is true that most of the cases with which we have to deal are of a serious character and we recognize that modern conditions have brought in their train new problems to be faced. But after all, is it not also true that every age and era has had its own especial problems engendered by the conditions of the times, and that the modern day causes of juvenile delinquency, while they may appear disquieting on the surface because of their novel and perplexing features, are no worse than those which had to be faced in bygone days?"

Encouraging Note.

There's an encouraging note to rest on, isn't it? And one we modern parents need sorely, I think. So much unfounded pessimism bruited abroad about youth has made some of us faint hearted. What we need to do is to take a deep breath, turn a deaf ear to the dark caws of calamity, and have a good time doing a good job with courage, faith, and fun. We can believe it when a man with Judge Hoyt's experience states:

"Modern youth, with which we have had to deal, is bravely struggling on the upward path of progress and is not the menace which some have chosen to proclaim it."

There is indeed something for parents and the world to go forward on.

Ice Pick

By Richard Howells Watkins

The Story of an Artist Who Declared He Did Not Have an Artistic Temperament; Who Said He Could Work Anywhere—and of What Happened as a Result.

WHILE Elspeth waited in prickly impatience for the kettle to boil on the leisurely kerosene stove, she came to the conclusion that she must be unusually stupid. Here it was more than two years since she had married Will Tregenna and she understood him less than on the day that she had met him.

"Why—O, why—did I tell Jane to bring that artist along?" she asked herself in deep contrition. "I should have known—I should!"

At the risk of filling the house with black, greasy smuts she turned the burner higher, until the thin yellow flames strained upward almost to the kettle's bottom. Outrageously it would not boil so that she could return to the living room in time to save the situation—or what was left of it.

"That's another thing that's wrong with us artists," he declared. "We're a bunch of sickly posers—I should say poseurs, and simper, since I'm one of 'em myself. We manufacture a thing called temperament—a mixture of bad manners and bad temper—and impose it as our right upon the ignorant and credulous public."

"Do you think so?" said the visiting artist stiffly. "I'm afraid——"

"It's simply a shoddy excuse for us to behave like a lot of spoiled, peevish children," Will went on, serenely ignoring the interruption. Elspeth could tell by his tone that he was enjoying himself amazingly. "We must have silence; we must have this for lunch and have that to wear; we cannot work now and we cannot stop working then. Nonsense! Piffle! Bunkum! Yes, bunk!"

Elspeth feared, though she could not see, that Will had strode over to his guest and tapped him emphatically upon the breastbone.

"We know, you and I, that the greatest art has always been created in the midst of confusion, interruption, and the most disheartening disadvantages. We know it, but we take good care that no layman finds out about it. If that happened, we'd lose our license and have to behave like reasonable human beings."

The kettle emitted a faint puff of steam. Elspeth caught it up and hastily drenched the tea leaves. Then she fled with the tray into the other room.

It was as bad as she had feared. The visiting artist—she had forgotten his name—sat rigidly erect on the edge of the Windsor chair. He wore the expression of one whose dinner had disagreed with him. Will Tregenna stood, legs wide apart, on the brick hearth, with Janice Winky Wu, his daughter, tucked, forgotten, under one arm. He was beaming down upon his discomfited guest.

"O, I'm so sorry to keep you all waiting," Elspeth said with her best effort at reckless gayety. "The kettle simply wouldn't boil." She rattled on, feeling the banality of every word, but desperately determined to keep talking until her husband's mouth could be stopped with a piece of chocolate cake. He was fond of chocolate.

Gradually the tea became an ordinary tea; not a brilliant tea, but a safe tea. Elspeth felt that mediocrity in entertainment had its points. She was exhausted when the guests had passed out through the grape arbor, admired again the beauty of the little brown cottage, and departed.

BACK in the big living room, Will Tregenna chuckled and reduced the baby to gurgling bliss by sliding her backward down his outstretched legs.

"Guess I wiped that lad's eye for him," he said with virtuous satisfaction. "He had the nerve to tell me he couldn't work unless he had a studio that reflected his personality."

He rumbled in his throat. "I was fool enough not to ask him if he'd tried a pigpen," he complained. "That's the worst of being a host—can't speak your mind."

He snorted. His indignation was mounting as he brooded on his repression. "Give me a good, honest undertaker, Spethy, or a street cleaner, or a diplomat, or a pickpocket, but defend me from the artist—writer, painter, poet—anything of that ilk."

"Sometimes I agree with you about artists—all artists," said Elspeth cuttingly.

Will laughed uproariously, and with a deft finger induced the baby to join in his mirth. "Come, now, Els, you know that, though I do earn a living doing odd bits, I'm a practical, unfaddy sort. I could work at the bottom of a mine or on top of the Woolworth tower."

Elspeth drew a deep breath. Her heart beat faster. His remark gave her a chance for which she had been waiting timorously. She must speak now.

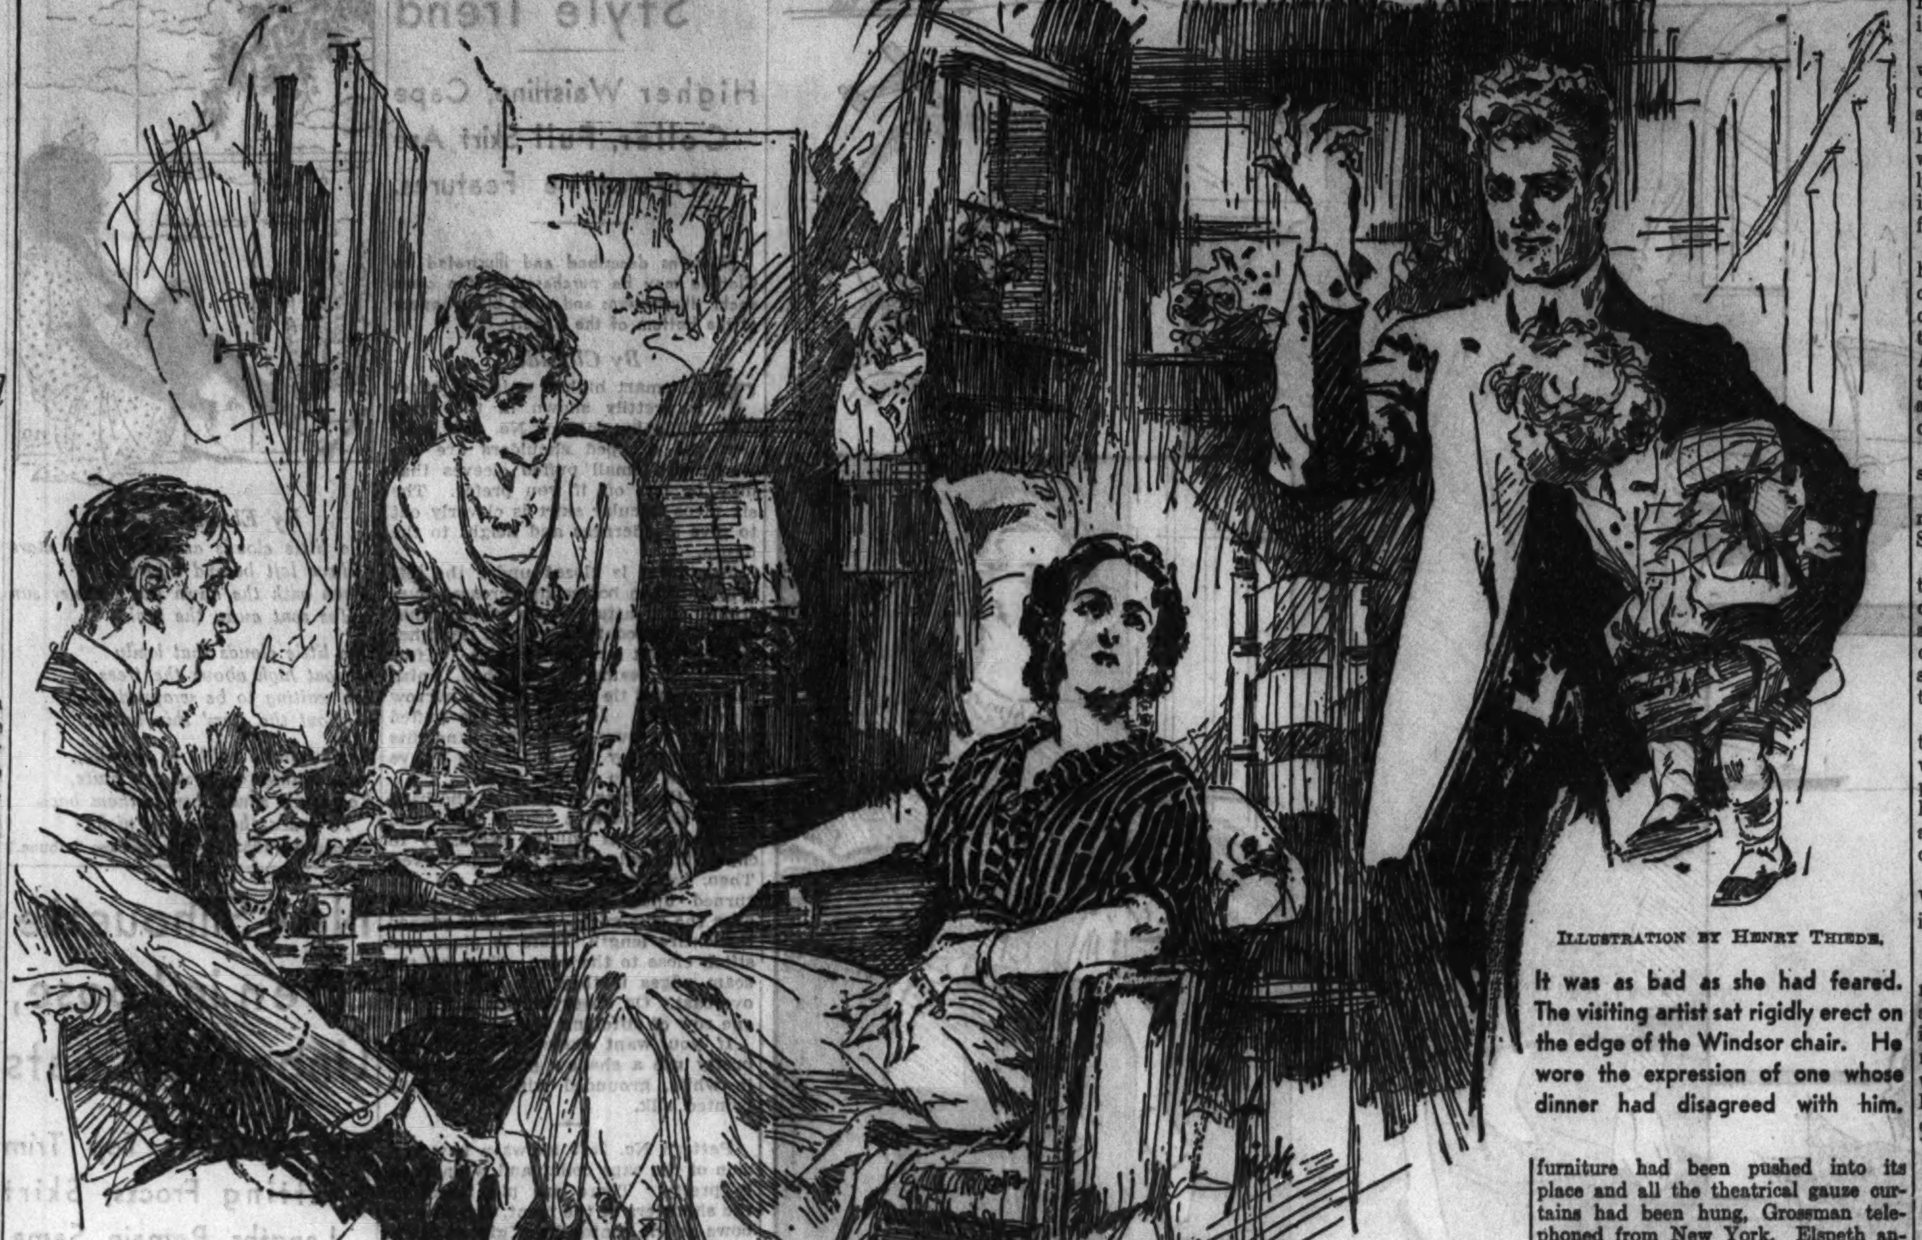

ILLUSTRATION BY HENRY THIEDE.

It was as bad as she had feared. The visiting artist sat rigidly erect on the edge of the Windsor chair. He wore the expression of one whose dinner had disagreed with him.

"I dare say," she remarked, with most casual disbelief.

"I could!" Will maintained with instant emphasis. "You know I could. Look how I work here in this place—terrible place to work in. Half my working time I'm running around with a hammer and nail trying to keep it from falling apart. Plugging up cracks with putty and weather stripping; patching the roof with flashings; bailing out the cellar; pulling cars out of that mud driveway, and in the winter slinging coal into that rusty furnace faster than it can escape up the chimney!"

HE paused, considering his labors, and then added explosively: "It's a wonder I ever get any work done, at all!"

"Yes, but the house is artistic—beautiful—unique," Elspeth answered. She was watching him as carefully as a toreador watches a bull, and she felt that she was placing her barbs accurately. "It's just exactly the right spot for an artist like you to work in. It inspires you. It—it suits your personality."

Will roared, very much like a successfully baited bull. "Nonsense! Nonsense!" he stormed. His sense of humor was numbed for the moment. An accusation of temperament was more than a barb; it was a thrust at his vitals.

"An artist can work anywhere!" he trumpeted. "This place is an infernal nuisance, not an inspiration."

"O!" said Elspeth. She opened her eyes very wide as she stared at him, then closed them and reopened them with even greater intensity glowing within them. "Then"—she exaggerated her hesitation—"then I may speak to you about the baby."

"The baby!" Startled, Will upended Janice Winky Wu and examined her. "What's the matter with her?"

"Look at her knees," said Elspeth. "Just full of splinters from crawling about on these terrible floors. Think of the drafts we feel on our feet. Look at those stairs—as steep as the stairs of a ship—and she'll soon be climbing up and down them. Think of the temperature of the house in the winter—and the furnace will be worse this year, for it's a year older."

"You're right," Will said abruptly, as he lowered the baby gently to the rug. "We'll have to move. Can't have the Wink ill because of this shack."

He stood up and scowled at the fireplace. "I'll have another go at that faucet upstairs," he said vaguely.

"But the money——" Elspeth murmured. "It would be hard to find a house with modern conveniences around here for what we are paying for this."

"Then we'll pay more," Will Tregenna announced. He stopped at the door and looked back at her. "Don't you worry about the money—that's my affair. Never been too hard up yet, have we?"

"No," said Elspeth, but she said it faintly, for she did not like even white lies.

NEXT day the washerwoman came and Elspeth, as she sometimes did, confided Janice to her care and fled to New York. Her life was so walled in by bottles, baths, and naps that she always felt herself a truant when she came to the city.

She went at once to Mr. Grossman, who had a place, part office, part shop, and part studio in a most unartistic and unbusinesslike side street. Mr. Grossman was Will's agent. Whatever odd bits of art that Will's diverse and straying genius produced—etching or drypoint, woodcut or pencil sketch or something uncanonically old-fashioned in oil—whatever it was, it went to Mr. Grossman for sale to obscure or unorthodox collectors that he ferreted out.

Elspeth was supposed in the Tregenna household to have met Mr. Grossman only once, but she found time in her flying visits to New York to make friends with him. Will would not have approved, for Grossman, eloquent of hand, uncertain in the spoken tongue, untidy of dress and unpleasing in visage, was a mere scavenger to Will.

"Now what?" inquired Mr. Grossman apprehensively, wrinkling up his thick gray eyebrows at Elspeth. He was a tub of a man, as thick as he was wide, with a lined, colorless, and rugged face.

"I've done it—I think I have!" Elspeth said breathlessly.

Mr. Grossman made a quick and moving gesture of profound despair. "I tell you not to, so you do, and then come to me for applause!" he said.

"We can't go on—that house is killing the baby and—and——"

"And the vork is killing you," said Mr. Grossman keenly. "Yes, that is so. And he is still so busy fixing the house up that there is no time for him to vork, eh?"

"It's getting worse," Elspeth said. "The estate that owns it won't do a thing about repairs. And Will is so proud of his practicality and the amount of money he saves by doing the repairs himself. We—how much has he had in advances from you already?"

"Two hundred dollars," said Mr. Grossman promptly.

ELSPETH faced him and stared through his grizzled eyebrows unwaveringly. "And you—you are paying him everything for his work but a fair commission for yourself?" she asked.

Mr. Grossman shrugged his heavy, rounded shoulders.

"You go to the smartest men in the business that I haf had dealings with and they will say to you that I am a crook," he said. "Who am I that I should contradict them? Nobody. But if you should think I'm honest—vell, there might be something in that, too. Who knows?"

"I know you're honest," Elspeth confessed, with humility. "Forgive me, but I'm desperate—I've never been in debt before."

"Let me do the vorrying about it," Mr. Grossman suggested. "It's my money, ain't it?"

He raised a solid finger and shook it at her. "Up to five hundred I vill be a patron of the arts," he warned her. "I am a poor man—too poor to hire a lawyer—so let me do the vorrying about it. And tell that minor genius of yours that the vorld needs quantity production."

"Up to five hundred," Elspeth repeated. "We'll move. Thank you, Mr. Grossman. I hope you know what a risk you are taking."

"Go ahead, then," Mr. Grossman said violently. "Move! I can't mend a Sviss watch with an ice pick, but maybe you can. Move!"

It was quite a normal house to which the Tregenna family moved, but it was normal in the mode of 1931. To Elspeth Tregenna, who was ignorant of the allegation that all good artisans died about the time that railroads were invented, it seemed a house from heaven.

The roof was tight and so, too, were the stucco walls. The windows were steel casement affairs, with a bewildering habit of staying open or closed as she desired them. The floors were of hardwood and as smooth as a pond. The furnace, controlled by a device, heated more than the chimney. There were electric outlets at convenient places in the walls. The piping was brass.

In the kitchen a gas stove, glassed-in china closet, built-in ironing board, high porcelain sink and tub, and adequate broom closet all proclaimed the new day. The doors of the icebox in the back entry closed tightly and there was a drain under it.

The bathroom's gleaming whiteness and effective radiator invited bathing. Each of the three bedrooms had a big closet and cross-ventilation.

ELSPETH was tremulous with delight when they found it, and tremulous with fear of losing it during the days that intervened before they actually moved in.

Will Tregenna decided that there was no time to work since he must assist in the packing up, the buying of a few pieces of furniture at secondhand stores, and the moving and the settling down thereafter. He became more practical than ever in his solutions of domestic problems. But he was unusually silent and on several occasions before the actual moving day Elspeth found him at the windows of the new house. He was staring at other houses in the development, and at the stakes that marked off the vacant lot next door.

"There won't be much for us to do around here in the summer," he remarked. "It's rather bare."

That was all. But when Elspeth thought of Will—and it was surprising how often she thought of him in spite of her delight and her trebled duties—it was always with a consciousness that her heart was beating more rapidly. Truly, this was a high gamble. She was moving not alone their home but also Will's studio—his workshop, as he preferred to call it. In one throw she was risking home and income.

Sometimes she thought she was risking more than that, for Will had fallen into the habit of studying her rather attentively as she hurried about during the convulsions of moving. She wondered if he suspected the trap she had sprung upon him so promptly when he had declared that he could work anywhere. She found herself keeping watch on him as covertly as he observed her.

One thing she knew. He was much more attached to the little brown house among the trees than she had thought. She could tell that by the way he wandered about the house and grounds on the last few days. He paused now and then in an aimless way to set something to rights—a cane of the grapevines to be cut off, a weed to be pulled, shingles blown from the roof to be gathered up, ruts in the driveway to be flattened out, rusty hinges in the sagging front door to be oiled.

Despite this enhanced abstraction, he worked hard at the moving, which was accomplished with the aid of a truck from the local garage and one man.

"It's a good thing you have something more than a lah-de-dah artist for a husband, Spethy," he remarked complacently as he heaved an easy chair up onto his broad back. "I guess we're saving quite a bit on the moving."

"We'll have to save on more than the moving," she answered in an unguarded moment.

He set the chair down again and regarded her intently.

"If you think that I can move and work at the same time, Els——" he began irritably.

"I don't, of course, Will," she said at once. "It's just the added expense——"

"O, plague take the added expense!" he muttered, seizing his burden again. "I've told you a million times that that's my affair. We've never been in need, have we?"

"No," she said.

"Then don't worry about my not working," he growled and, bending his back to the chair, he moved away.

She had said nothing about his not working. It was far too delicate a subject for her to speak of, but he had sensed her thought. Or else—was he, too, wondering, worrying, about whether he could work in this modern house? It was heaven for her, whose perfect, shining workshop it was. Would it be hell for him, failing in its prosaic rightness to provide the beauty of inspiration that the small brown house in the trees had emanated so freely?

Most vividly was this difference brought home to her one morning when they were fairly well settled down. She had washed the breakfast things and was hurriedly making the beds so that she could get Janice out into the feeble autumn sunlight. Will had been fixing a door that failed by a mere hair to catch properly. It was the only thing that he had found wrong in the house.

"Well, that's all right," he said drearily. With his tools collected in his hands he looked around the flawless room. There was nothing more to be done. He walked to a window, inspected its fastening, and then stared out at the limited plot of flat lawn in front of the house. It was as precise and self-sufficient as a checkerboard.

"What this place needs is an earthquake," he muttered querulously, and turned into his workshop. Elspeth heard the tools thump on the table and then he slammed the door.

WHAT he did in his room she could not tell, for she never entered it without an invitation, and no invitations were forthcoming. Often she heard him walking up and down and once, from the roadway in front of the house, she caught a glimpse of him gazing unseeingly out over the neat little houses and the plots for more neat little houses.

When there had been callers at the small brown house Will had invariably come clattering down the stairs at the first sound of voices, eager for chatter. Always he had protested that an artist's work did not prevent him from being a sociable as well as a practical creature, and certainly he had demonstrated his theory upon every occasion.

Now he brooded in his room. She was sure he was brooding, for he never came out in that mood of exultation that some small accomplishment with brush or needle inspired in him. Finding no odd jobs about the house, he ceased to look for them. Discovering, too, that Elspeth's simplified housekeeping gave her more time for the baby, he played with Janice less and less.

He was withdrawing into himself. Sometimes he went for walks but never, she noticed, in the direction of their old home.

Without words the estrangement grew between them like a barrier of quick, rank weeds in a garden. Her back ached less but her head ached more.

A fortnight after the last piece of furniture had been pushed into its place and all the theatrical gauze curtains had been hung, Grossman telephoned from New York. Elspeth answered the ring.

"How far you been moving that I haven't had nothing from him?" the art dealer asked, deeply aggrieved. "Did he sprain an arm carrying pianos or has he retired?"

"We—we have been busy, Mr. Grossman," Elspeth answered apologetically.

"It's a month since I had even a bookplate from him, and that wasn't so wonderful, either," Grossman persisted. "Don't the icepick work on the Sviss watch or what?"

"I—I'll try to ask him if he has anything," Elspeth said desperately. "Usually I—I don't like to——"

She heard Will's door open upstairs. "Is that Grossman?" he called down.

"Yes," she answered. "He—he was wondering why he hadn't—heard from you, Will."

"Tell him I have nothing for him," Will directed, with a certain savage satisfaction in his voice. "Tell him not to bother me. Tell him I'm coming to town next week and he'll hear all he wants from me then, if he's so anxious to."

Elspeth euphemized this as much as she dared in transmitting it to Grossman.

"Vell, telephone cost money, and if he hasn't anything he hasn't anything," the dealer said with gruff philosophy. "Maybe an icepick is too gentle; a hatchet would be better, perhaps. Good-by."

ELSPETH replaced the receiver with a feeling of increased tension. She had kept close check upon their expenditures, and she knew well why Will must go to town to see Grossman.

Wheeling Janice in the baby carriage along the rows of prim, utterly unoriginal little houses that afternoon, Elspeth came to realize more acutely than ever before what she had done.

Will Tregenna was both man and genius. The man was practical, as a boy might be practical, and the man could well exist with his wife and baby in that matter-of-fact and ordinary house in its plain surroundings. But the genius—and she was quite convinced that Will was a genius of a wayward, flickering sort—found the development house and the development neighborhood well nigh unbearable.

There was no beauty in house nor in surroundings; there was utility only and a certain ordinary niceness that did well enough for beauty with everyday people like herself. She had rescued her baby from bodily hazards by sacrificing her husband to a hazard of the mind. And she saw now with a clearness that made her miserable that Will, after all, was by far the most precious of the three. It was not of his value to the world as an artist that Elspeth referred in her uneasy deliberations, for a woman with a baby is not given to high mindedness at the baby's cost. It was of his value to the family that she thought. Without him Janice and herself went down, too.

She returned to the house. Its silence was formidable. She was ridiculously relieved when she caught the sound of a cough in Will's room. Though he had changed so, at least he was still there.

On the morning that the laundress came Will left the house while Elspeth was out marketing. A curt scrawl on the dining table announced that he had gone to New York to see Grossman.

Upon that visit much depended. There was still a chance, Elspeth assured herself, that Will might settle down to work again if only he had a little more time. On the other hand, Grossman might not be willing, despite his promise, to support a changed Will Tregenna, an irritable, indolent fellow who gave him nothing to sell. Grossman was a patron of art, not a patron of idleness.

What would they do if Grossman spoke his mind and withheld his money? There were relatives to be appealed to, of course. Elspeth's cheeks burned.

It had been a day of thinking and waiting, and now it might become a day of deciding, too. Resolutely Elspeth walked toward the small brown house. The sun had not set, but it was well hidden behind an increasingly leaden west. She must walk rapidly if she were to reach the old place before dusk.

With short, quick footsteps she made her way from the concrete highway down the uneven dirt road that meandered to the house and past it into the unspoiled wooded country behind. As she reached the rutted driveway that was so strangely familiar she heard a rustle of dry leaves somewhere ahead of her.

She stopped, suddenly aware that she was a trespasser here.

There was a big "to let" sign nailed to a tree. That encouraged her. She went on.

"We could live here again," she told herself. "We could live here quite—quite comfortably. I'm silly about modern conveniences. The baby could wear leather pads, and she'll soon be walking. Nobody has taken the house."

There was, of course, the matter of the lease of the new house, but people who cannot pay rent are seldom pressed to stay. Within sight of the house she stopped. It was unlighted, and the shadow of several pines among other naked trees fell heavily upon it.

"I'm sure nobody has taken it. And Will would never suspect how I hated it if—if I was a good soldier about it."

Dead leaves rustled again nearby.

A man was coming around the corner of the house by the bare grape arbor—a tall man who came to a halt in front of the house. He stood there, motionless, looking up at it. Then he wandered on, around the other end. By his movements rather than anything else Elspeth recognized him. It was Will.

QUICK tears leaped to her eyes. Returning from the city he had come, not home, but to the little brown house! It meant more to him than his home.

Turning, she fled. Desperately she ran down the drive. She did not slow her headlong pace until she reached the concrete highway. There she fumbled for a handkerchief, wiped her eyes with severity, and hurried homeward.

"It's settled," she said. "We'll go back. Poor Will."

Her heart was lighter, but she felt cold and wondered if that coldness were internal. Was this apparent step backward actually a step forward?

"It must be!" she murmured, but it was a prayer rather than a statement.

At the development house she found a visitor awaiting her. It was Grossman—Grossman arrayed in a wrinkled frock coat, with a silk hat incongruously poised on his fat knees. He arose and bowed to her in ponderous dignity.

"I salute the ice pick," he said. "The Sviss vatch is ticking on time."

"What—what do you mean?" she asked uncertainly. His formal manner was even less like him than his attire. There was something strange about Grossman.

The dealer brandished his hat in sudden renunciation of dignity. "He's done it—something more than a sketch—a work of art! He left it for me this morning ven I was not in. Look! I carry it around vith me!"

He bent beside his chair and caught up a flat parcel. Ripping off the paper he exposed to her a small canvas.

It was a painting—a picture of the small brown house among the trees in springtime. The new green of tender leaves, the fuzzy pink of the sprouting vine, the weathered hue of the shingles, the very aura of the house lived there on the canvas. It brought the thrill of opening buds to Elspeth in the dusk of autumn.

She gave a little gasp, her eyes unwaveringly on the canvas as Eve might have looked back into Eden. Fully, now, she realized how Will felt about that little house.

"Now, ask me if I can sell it—if genius is recognized in this town," Grossman roared. His voice had almost the triumphal peal of an organ. "Twenty times I could sell it—and for what a price! It is a vork of art I have in my hands."

GROSSMAN stared at her. "That was how he loved it"—he burlesqued her tone—"after you made him leave it. Ven he lived there he cursed the roof and wasted his paint and acid on pot boilers. Me, I know these artists—I knew them vell."

He shook a finger at her. "Ven he, a genius, has beauty—he is too lazy to make it—it is there for him. Vy should he create it at an agony of his soul? It is there alretty. Ven it is gone away, then he must have it. So Tregenna, ven you shut him away from it, torture him with utility, makes beauty for himself at an exertion only he can feel. He must have it."

"Then—do you think the baby—I—could profit by his suffering?" Elspeth demanded tremulously. "He must have the picture to keep. He—he must have the house."

"It is a joy, this suffering," he declared. "And the picture, it is finished for him—ended. He vill make more beauty, this genius. He has tasted blood."

The front door opened suddenly upon them. Will Tregenna came in. He looked at them and at the canvas that Grossman was clutching with eyes that gradually lost their abstraction. His attitude was quiet, relaxed. He nodded casually.

"What do you think of it?" he asked Grossman.

"It is beautiful, Will!" Elspeth murmured.

Will smiled at her. "And you thought I couldn't work here," he said. "Have I kept you guessing? It—it was sustained work—sorry if I've rather neglected you."

"It is beautiful," she said again.

"An artist can work anywhere," Will explained didactically. "Temperament—just a mixture of bad manners and bad temper. Eh, Grossman?"

"I von't contradict you," said Grossman comfortably. He turned his attention once more to the picture and Will moved toward him and joined him in his scrutiny. His eye was critical.

"A nice little place," Will muttered. "I'm going to do one of it in summer—high moon, foliage in full cry, the zenith of the year—after I've fooled around a bit with the family. I feel lazy."

"It vould make a good studio—that place," Grossman said with a cunning glance at Elspeth. "This house—it is nice, but not so inspiring."

"I can work anywhere," Will repeated. "I'm going to work here."

"That's all right, then," said Grossman briskly. "Ve need some artists without temperament in the picture business." He winked prodigiously at Elspeth. "Ve got too much temperament without art already."

The Popular Buffet Meals

Prove an Easy, Graceful Way for Summer Hostess to Dispense Hospitality to a Large Crowd.

By Helen Bartlett.

A CORRESPONDENT spending a summer and, incidentally, dispensing a great deal of hospitality in the country wants some information about buffet meals. She has decided, quite sensibly, that they are her only solution when she must entertain a large number of guests.

Buffet meals—luncheons, dinners, and even breakfasts—are quite the rage just now, probably because all informal entertaining is, due to reduced incomes and reduced service staffs.

In planning a buffet meal, the choice of foods is the first consideration. Not all menus lend themselves well to this type of service but nearly all summer foods do. Cold meats and salads [not individual ones] are ideal.

Fruit Cocktails First.

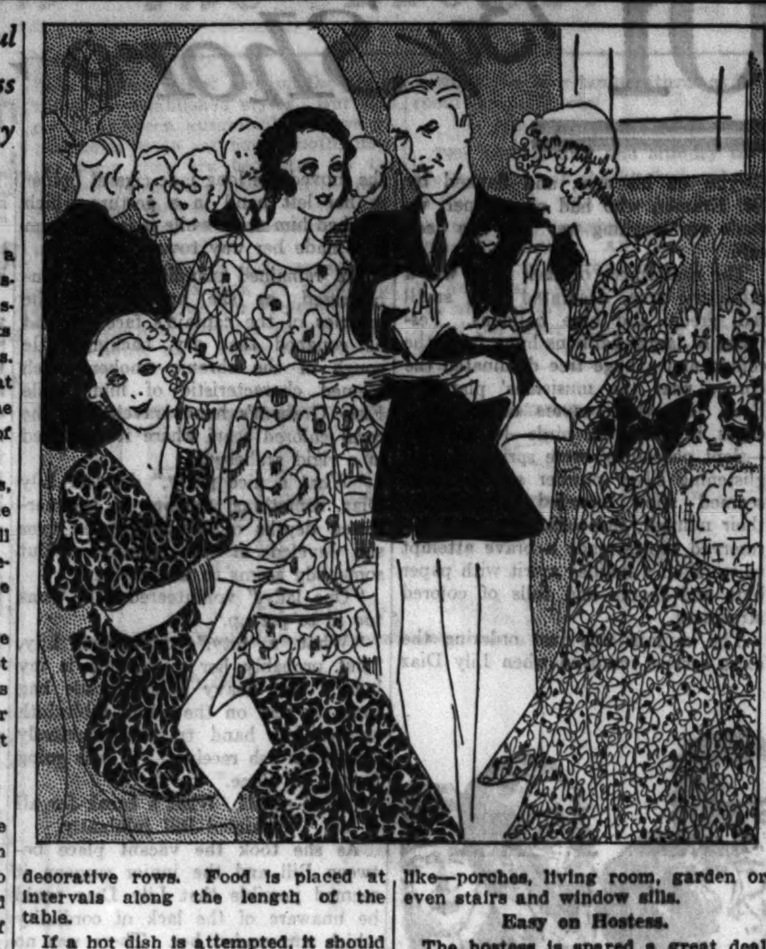
This summer smart hostesses are starting their buffet meals off with cocktails—fruit juices, we hasten to add, sans alcohol. These are served in the living room, a large tray of filled glasses being brought in from the kitchen; these may be replenished from shakers or pitchers. The two tone sauerkraut and tomato juice cocktail or grapefruit and orange juice, thoroughly chilled, are a good start to a summer meal.

The table in the dining room, set for buffet service, can be as beautiful as it is practical. Almost any sort of linen may be used—an organdy cloth, or runners, or lace—for elegant parties—or even the good old damask coverall.

There is usually a centerpiece of flowers or porcelain or fruit. At one end of the table is the tea or coffee service, behind which a friend or a member of the family sits. In front of her are a sufficient number of cups and the usual cream or lemon and sugar. Saucers are seldom used, the cups being placed directly on the plate.

Arranged Decoratively.

Plates are piled at one end of the table, napkins stacked beside them. Forks and spoons are laid out in decorative rows. Food is placed at intervals along the length of the table.



If a hot dish is attempted, it should be placed on the table in a serving dish with a hot water compartment to keep food warm. Piping hot, buttered rolls are brought in from the kitchen and placed on the table. The salads and meats should be attractively garnished. And at a meal of this sort relishes should be in abundance—they suit varied tastes and they're quite decorative. Beside each platter or tray of food the necessary serving spoon or fork or both are laid diagonally.

Guests help themselves to a plate, a napkin, and the necessary silver, then go along the table selecting the foods they like. The person dispensing tea or coffee fills each cup and places it on the guest's plate.

Balancing plates could hardly be called the great American pastime, particularly where our men are concerned. They just don't like it. But hostesses are recognizing this dislike and providing a life saver—end tables or card tables conveniently placed throughout the rooms. Guests hie themselves off, with their plates, to eat in little groups anywhere they like—porches, living room, garden or even stairs and window sills.

Easy on Hostess.

The hostess is spared a great deal by this method of service. Once the table is set, all she need do is see that guests get what they like and, if necessary, send or go to the kitchen for reinforcements. This should be avoided as much as possible—the food can be placed on the table in almost any amount, so long as it is arranged rather artistically.

Buffet desserts are a problem if one wants something a bit more elaborate than the simple cake. The ice cream pies or meringues are a nice solution. These, in their pretty shapes and colors, can be placed directly on the table. The guests can help themselves, or the hostess may cut and put a piece on each guest's plate as it is brought up.

This is a method of service, this buffet idea, that is only now coming into its own in general popularity. It certainly provides the easiest method of dispensing hospitality to a large crowd. As many as sixteen or twenty may be served without the aid of a servant if the hostess plans intelligently beforehand. We urge you to try it.

By Sally Joy Brown.

DID you discover when you unpacked your summer clothing from the mothballs which protected them all winter and spring that there were a number of things you couldn't wear? Suits that are now a trifle tight because of those few added pounds, dresses that are a lot shorter than you'd expected them to be, summer hats which looked fine last year but which have lost something in the way of modishness during their months of storage?

Aren't there dresses and suits and shoes belonging to your young sons and daughters which they have outgrown? Or baby clothing that the erstwhile infant of the house will never be able to wear again? I am sure there's hardly a household with family large or small which doesn't experience something like the above when last year's garments are unpacked.

It seems foolish and a trifle selfish to allow such clothing to hang about the house unused when there are so many, many desperately poor people right now who could make use of it. Hundreds of them have come to us for wearing apparel. They are willing to take any kind that comes their way and are grateful to get it. Here are letters from some of them—perhaps you can fill these needs with the garments your own families can no longer wear:

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: I have been out of work for two years and we are living on what we get from charity. We haven't had any new clothes in so long that what we have now is in rags. I need a suit, size 40, and a pair of shoes, size 9. My wife wears size 38. The children are boys, 7 and 3 years old, and girls, 8 and 5. If you can get anything for us we will be very thankful to you. J. N."

"Dear Miss Sally: My husband, who is unemployed, and I have an opportunity of going on a three weeks' camping trip with friends. I haven't any camping clothes and would appreciate anything in the line of sports clothes or equipment that would be suitable for the trip. I wear size 14 or 16 and size 5½ or 6 in shoes. A. P."

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: I am a widow and am completely out of clothes. I can't look for work because I haven't any shoes to wear and I wonder if you can help me. I wear 38 or 40 in dresses and size 7½ in shoes. My son has been out of work for two years and he needs clothes, too. He wears size 36 in a suit and size 9 shoes. We are badly in need and would appreciate it if you could help us. MRS. A. M."

"Dear Miss Brown: I am just out of the hospital and need some decent clothes so I can look for work. I am an old man, alone, and have no one else to help me. I need a suit, size 36; shoes, size 7, and shirts, size 15. W. S."

"Dear Miss Brown: I am an expectant mother with four small children. Due to sickness and unemployment I will not be able to go to the hospital but will be confined at home. I need bed linen and would be so glad if you could help me get it. I shall need clothing for the new baby, too. MRS. E. G."

All these people are suffering greatly because of unemployment and their special need right now is for clothing. In every case the writer would be much more comfortable if he or she and the children had many of the garments which you discard from time to time. If you can help them—or any others, we have requests for clothing of every size and description—please let me know.

Clothing Needed.

"Friends have given a woman and her husband shelter, and others are providing them with food because they are unable to work and have no means of support. They are badly in need of clothing, too, and we wonder if you could help them get it. The woman wears dresses, size 18, and shoes, size 5½. M. M."

If you have clothing to give in the above size, it could be put to good use here. Once she secures it, this woman will be more comfortable than she's been in a long time.

Depression Victims.

"I am a young married woman with two little boys, 2½ years and 10 months old, and am expecting another child in September. My father hasn't been working for some time, and now my husband is working only two or three days a week. Things got so bad we had to give up our flat and go to live with my parents. It is very crowded here and I have no place to keep our clothing. Could you get me some kind of a dish or linen closet or a small size dresser? We are all badly in need of clothing, too. My mother, who needs house dresses especially, wears size 38 or 40, and I year 16 or 18. My little brother wears size 8 or 10. If you can help us with a few articles of clothing we will be most grateful. MRS. A. G."

Doubling up on living quarters has helped to simplify one problem with these people, but an urgent need of clothing still exists. Have you any to give them?

Sally Joy Brown Invites All Youngsters to World's Fair

Alligator Farm, Stunts, Free Rides Guarantee Happy Afternoon.

By Sally Joy Brown.

THERE is something new in the way of parties, boys and girls, and to prove it we are going to do something totally different—something we've never done before—for our next one which, by the way, will be on Thursday, July 28. It's to be at the Century of Progress exposition on Chicago's lake front, and there are so many things to do and so many interesting things to see that I know it will be a marvelous party.

The exposition doesn't open officially until next year, but many of the exhibits have been completed, and visitors from all over the world are seen there every day. One of the most interesting of the things we'll do on our party day will be to visit Fort Dearborn, a replica of the original which was constructed in 1803, and we'll visit the Lincoln group.

The latter consists of copies of buildings associated with the life of the martyred president, and through them we can follow his history from his birth in a Kentucky cabin to the Wigwam, the Chicago convention hall, where he was nominated for the presidency in 1860.

Duplicates of the Originals.

All of these are exact duplicates of the originals, many of which have been preserved down the years so that it was possible to erect and furnish authentic reproductions.

When we've finished our sightseeing tour over the grounds there will be rides in the amusement section and a marvelous alligator show for us. These will provide the fun and excitement for our party which has all the earmarks of being a very successful one.

The Florida show and alligator farm was brought here from Miami for the World's fair. There are three huge pools of water in which are exhibited many alligators, all sizes, from tiny babies to huge monsters, some as old as 300 years. The original "Alligator Boys," one of the chief features of this exhibition, wrestles with the ferocious monsters in the tank, subdues and hypnotizes them, and then brings them back to consciousness by giving the alligator call.

During this show we will also see Capt. Kenneth Blake, world's greatest high diver, who plunges from the top of a 110 foot ladder, turns a complete somersault in the air in his downward flight, and lands safely in a shallow tank on the ground. And Phil James, world's archery champion, will be there, and he promises not only to give us an exhibition of his skill, but he'll let us try our own prowess with the bow and arrow in the archery range. Won't that be fun?

Invitations Based on Letters.

It will be an interesting party, you may be sure, and I'd like to take one hundred boys and girls with me on Thursday, July 28. As usual, I want my guests to be the ones who would most enjoy such a day, and as I have no other way of telling, I want you to write me a letter and convince me that you belong in this group of fun-lovers.

With such a party to look forward to, writing a winning letter should not be difficult. You know why you'd like to visit Fort Dearborn and relive the days of those sturdy pioneers who lived in constant danger and were ever on the brink of war with the Indians about them. And you know why you'd like to visit the interesting alligator farm and see these daring men perform their feats. Tell me so in your letter and you may win an invitation.

Now here are the names of the boys and girls who will be my guests at the Publix-Balaban and Katz Uptown theater on next Thursday when we will see the great Thurston on the stage and Jimmie Cagney in his picture, "Winner Take All."

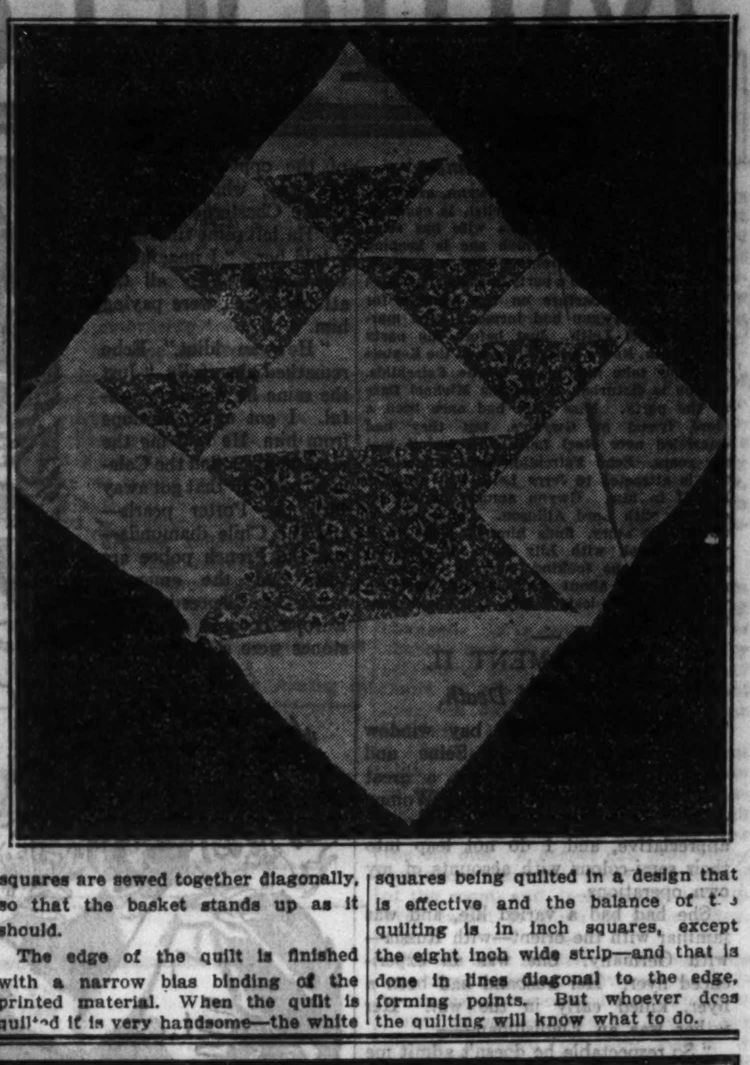
Basket Quilt Alternates Blocks of Printed and Plain Material with Squares of White.

By Clotilde.



TODAY a quilt block called the basket is shown. Each block measures seven inches when finished, and the basket squares or blocks are alternated with plain white ones the same size as the others. There are five basket blocks across and six on the length, with the white ones between. Down each side and across the ends are half squares of the white. Around the four sides an eight inch wide strip of the white is put. This makes the quilt a full bed size.

To make the basket squares cut squares of the print measuring 2½ inches, fold each square diagonally and cut on the diagonal line. This will give you the seven three cornered pieces necessary. The one left over can be used on another square. You will need five of these three cornered pieces of the white. You will need one three-cornered piece of the print just twice the size of the others and two of the white. In addition to these, you will see that there are two oblong pieces of white, measuring 2½x4½ inches to fill out the square. You can see from the picture how these pieces are put together.

In putting the quilt together the squares are sewed together diagonally, so that the basket stands up as it should.

The edge of the quilt is finished with a narrow bias binding of the printed material. When the quilt is quilted it is very handsome—the white squares being quilted in a design that is effective and the balance of the quilting is in inch squares, except the eight inch wide strip—and that is done in lines diagonal to the edge, forming points. But whoever does the quilting will know what to do.

Murder on the Glass Floor

By Viola Brothers Shore

The Story in Resume:

Colin Keats and his wife, Gwynn, are staying in Paris. Keats, a novelist, is eager to return to America, but his wife has some other plan for them which she is keeping to herself. The Fairchilds, Bill and Anne, invite the Keatses to a party in their apartment before their departure on the Albania for New York. Gwynn had formerly been married to Noel Leith. Just before the party Jerry Leith, Noel's brother, calls on the Keatses and they take him along to the Fairchilds. Gwynn is disturbed at meeting Michael Dare at the party. Miss Dare had once been a close friend of Gwynn's, but they had quarreled over Noel Leith and hadn't met for years. Echo Fairchild, Bill's young sister, is attracted to Jerry Leith and attaches herself to him. Gwynn amuses herself by dancing with Lord Allinson. Colin, who is telling the story, finds himself alone in a window nook with Lily Diaz, an unusual and mysterious looking woman. There is some gossip about an emerald necklace which had been lost by Mrs. Coleman, whom they all knew.

INSTALLMENT II.

The Ship of Death.

WE stood in the bay window overlooking the Seine and Lily Diaz told me a great deal about herself. Women usually talk to me. I am receptive, appreciative, and I do not leap into their semi-colons with accounts of my own operations.

She had had a varied life, and was familiar with the orient—with Russia—with Germany. She was an experienced flyer. Her husband had been a flyer, killed early in the war. Her father was an Englishman——

"So respectable he doesn't admit me—and so whenever I meet the poor darling I pretend to be just a casual acquaintance."

I suggested that she did not speak like an Englishwoman.

"Because I learned it from my mother—who was not English."

I was still watching the dancers. "Lord Allinson appears to be a fascinating man," I volunteered.

She laughed. "Your wife seems to find him so. How is it she still continues to bear Noel Leith's name?"

I looked at her. "Did you know Noel Leith?"

"O, yes—a delightful boy. Too bad he killed himself——"

Before I could ask any further questions Gwynn and Lord Allinson came toward us and there were mutual introductions. "I've met his lordship," murmured Lily Diaz, her lids veiling something mocking in her eyes. And immediately she drifted away to dance with Bill. When Gwynn, looking flushed and excited, also drifted off again with Lord Allinson I wandered into the library to think.

Why was Gwynn so interested in this Lord Allinson, that she could not be pried loose from him? I know all the antidotes for jealousy. I've told them to myself enough times. But nevertheless I feel certain that if Gwynn had a more confiding nature I wouldn't put in so many miserable hours. How was I to guess that her interest in the fascinating Lord Allinson was entirely due to that casual remark of Jerry's—"I met Mrs. Coleman at the party Lord Allinson gave for her last April—the famous party where Mrs. Porter lost her pearls." Why couldn't she have told me that she had succumbed to one of her famous hunches? Although I fancy what makes hunches so miraculous is the fact that they are seldom mentioned until time has proved them right.

I was upset, too, by what Lily Diaz had said about Gwynn's first husband. Not so much because Noel Leith had killed himself, but because Gwynn had never mentioned it. It seemed she might have had a little more confidence in me.

As I look back now, I realize how few dull evenings we would spend if we were only gifted with foresight! But how can you tell that any casual happening—or even train of happenings—can later be read like "The House that Jack Built"? Instead of sulking because my wife was paying no attention to me, what a busy boy I should have been, questioning Lily Diaz about how she knew Noel Leith—and what she knew of his end; following her and Bill into the corner by the window to hear what they were talking about; getting out of Michael Dare just what led up to that insulting question of hers—"What's the matter—didn't he leave you as well fixed as you expected?"—prying out of Jerry just what he meant by a simple phrase he used to Gwynn that afternoon—"You've forgotten a lot, haven't you, Gwynn?"; eavesdropping on my wife and the social idol, Lord Allinson, and even watching the beginnings of that Jerry-Echo romance, whose fruition provided the match that lit the spark that fired the gun that found the victim that held the strings that worked the curse that followed the boat that—well, you get the idea.

Albania Minded.

WHEN we finally were ready to leave most of the party had gone. Echo was radiant. "Isn't it wonderful? Jerry's going back on the Albania!" Anne's gold vanity case fell to the floor and as I handed it to her I noticed that her face was flushed. Bill scowled angrily.

"That's rather a sudden decision, isn't it, Mr. Leith?" inquired Lily Diaz and held out her hand. "You don't know me, but I've heard so much about your paintings."

"Tweet—tweet," chirped Echo under her breath.

"You see," Jerry was explaining uncomfortably, "I have to go back to the States soon, and Echo—Miss Fairchild——"

"I thought he might as well go back with us. I have designs on him."

It was one of those impertinent half truths which women fling out, trusting to their sheer audacity to cloud the issue. Even after you know the little dears it's hard to separate the kernel of truth from the chaffing.

"You're a fool," observed her brother disagreeably.

"It's a family failing," replied Echo calmly. "We're just clay in the hands of the opposite sex. By the way, what happened to the Chesterfield?"

"He left some time ago,' I told her. "I imagine he was oppressed by all the attention you were paying him."

"He's an idiot," Echo remarked cheerfully. "Just the same he was very useful. I got a lot of dope from him. He told me the same gang pulled the Coleman robbery that got away with the Porter pearls—and the Chile diamonds—and the French police are sure that the emeralds won't be disposed of in Europe because the other stones were sold in America. So there'll be an agent on every boat, including the Scandinavian and Albanian."

"You really shouldn't spread that story," remonstrated Lily Diaz. "It will make it so much harder to catch the thieves."

"You talk too much," Bill agreed.

"No wonder I can't do anything with her—you always stick up for her!"

"IT'S rare enough," said Michael Dare with a laugh that her eyes belied. "For the most part a woman can't turn her back on her most cherished possession without finding it in the clutches of her best friend."

"That works two ways, doesn't it, Michael?" asked Gwynn.

"O, for heaven's sake," pleaded Anne Fairchild, 'forget it, can't you two? The past is dead."

"That's a question," remarked Bill. "Is it ever really dead or just lying quiet, waiting to get at your throat?"

"Sometimes," maintained Jerry Leith, "it's only when it comes to life again that you realize how dead it is."

Gwynn murmured something about going for her wrap, and Anne went with her. When they came back Anne's face was radiant. "Isn't it wonderful? Gwynn and Colin may go back on the Albania!"

Being a well trained husband, I registered nothing until we were alone.

Gwynn slipped her hand into mine. "O, you wanted to go, and I just thought it might be fun, with the Fairchilds, and Jerry——"

"You've been staying in Paris to see Jerry, haven't you?"

"Yes, Sergt. Keats." Then she added seriously, "There's something Jerry's been hiding from me for years and I want to clear it up in my own mind. It's about Noel."

"And you decided to go on the Albania when you heard Jerry was going?"

"No, sergeant. On the evening of the eleventh inst., at approximately 9:40 p. m. or 11:40 a. m., Pacific coast time, while dancing, I was suddenly stricken with the idea that it might be fun to go back on the Albania."

"O." I tried to keep the inquisitorial note out of my voice. "Is Lord Allinson sailing, too?"

Gwynn began to wring her hands dramatically. "I see nothing will do you but a full confession."

"Remember," I warned, "anything you say will be used against you."

"Don't I know it? But the time has come when I feel I should Tell All! Lord Allinson is not sailing on the Albania, Sarge. But I have a hunch the Coleman emeralds are!"

The Rougher the Seas the Duller the Crossing.

THE captain said, of course, it was the roughest trip he had ever made. I found him an attractive man with a ruddy complexion, heavy silver-gray hair, and a powerful frame, whose muscles suggested all the play of youth. But there was nothing young about his eyes. As Echo remarked, "I don't think it's the boat that's haunted—I think it's the captain."

The weather kept most of the thin passenger list in bed, and on the whole the trip was so dull that Echo was forced to divide her time between pumping the ship's surgeon for data about the famous curse and teaching Lysistrata, the captain's parrot, to say Merry Christmas in seven languages.

The captain's dinner dance and the inauguration of the new glass dance floor in the deck café, after two postponements, had to be definitely set for Christmas night, because on the following day we arrived in New York.

Gwynn and I received a formal invitation from Capt. Graham, and a little postscript advised us that we were expected up in his quarters for cocktails.

ECHO dropped into our stateroom full of gossip. Bill had given Lily Diaz his raccoon coat. Anne was not really seasick; she was churned up with irritation. Jerry was hugging his room to avoid Bill, who had quarreled with him. "But I've been down in Jerry's room every single afternoon and evening! Bill has a crust to mess up in my love life when an astigmatic cretin can see the way he is about Lily Diaz."

"And is she that way about him, too?" inquired Gwynn.

Echo laughed. "She started on the make for Bill because she heard he had plenty pesetas, and then as soon as she had him hooked she started chasing after Dr. Kramer—you know, the junior surgeon with the saint's beard and the R. S. V. P. eyes. She's always having him down in her room, pretending she's sick. It's revolting!"

"Much worse than chasing him down into his cabin," I suggested.

"Well, I just sit around and devil Jerry, all in good fun. But she burns up every time the doctor looks at Michael Dare."

"And how does Michael take it all?"

On the train to Cherbourg we had found Michael Dare in the diner, looking very casual in her sport suit and topcoat of heavy green tweed. I don't think I ever saw Michael in anything but green, except on one startling occasion when she was wearing a purple kimono. But that happened to belong to Gwynn. To our surprised questions she replied matter-of-factly that she had made up her mind quite suddenly to look up her family in America. Anne was overjoyed. But relations between my wife and Michael remained ice-locked. However, Michael was unfailingly pleasant to me and even opened up to the extent of telling me once that this trip might change the whole course of her life.

"Funny," she mused, if I remember her words correctly, "how little there is of finality about life. At least twice I died . . . and came back again. And once I came to a place where the road forked sharply. And very definitely I took a left turn because it led irrevocably away from all the smug, dull people and because it was dangerous. And after years it brought me safely to another crossroads . . . and the first few steps along the right turn seem to be taking me back just where I started from—home."

"O, Michael won't let any one get under her skin," Echo was saying. "The poor guy was just making a little headway today when along came a message that Lily wanted him. And I had just wangled around to a place where I could hear," she wailed. "Seems Michael's family disowned her years ago. But lately she found out her brother had softening of the pursestrings. Do you know her brother Silas?"

Gwynn smiled. "I used to. He takes fishing trips, lives in East Orange, and publishes church books."

"Complete portrait of a man! Well, his change of heart, it seems, came just in the Nicholas of time when she had to make some sort of Big Decision to the people she worked for. So the doc ups to her and says he hoped she would make another big decision, soon! Snappy work, eh what, for a new acquaintance?"

"I don't think Michael and the doctor are new acquaintances," announced Gwynn. And, at our startled exclamations: "I happened to notice her the first time she saw him, and she was rather upset—for Michael."

As soon as Gwynn mentioned it I recalled the manner in which Michael had asked the captain who he was, and the captain had replied, "A young German named Franz Kramer."

Echo bounced up excitedly. "I'll tell you something else! He knew who Jerry was before he met him. But Jerry never saw him before. Of course, that beard may be a disguise. Gosh! I don't believe he's a doctor at all! O, boy, I've got to look into this!" She was in a lather to be off. "Well, see you chez le capitaine vers seven-thirtyish. And I hope to goodness Michael will stop being snooty and Lily will cut out the cat, or else that they'll bring their guns and shoot it out. I think that'd be jolly between cocktails—toujours quelque chose de nouveau—n'est ce pas?"

But Echo's hopes were not to be fulfilled because Lily Diaz was not among those present during cocktails, although twice the mere mention of her name produced curious results.

Cocktails Chez le Capitaine.

THE captain's quarters had formerly belonged to the owner of the Sevilla, as the Albania was called before it was rechristened, and were rather sumptuous, with a separate companionway leading down into what had been the owner's private salon, now transformed into a very modern little deck café. But the rug had never been lifted, it having been considered rather gay to inaugurate the new glass floor with fitting ceremony.

Jerry Leith was already there, his red hair plastered close to his head. Also Michael Dare, in green, of course, a crêpe whose simple cut accentuated the boyish flatness of her figure, while the color brought out the unusual Malaga grape tone of her eyes. Under her arm, where it made a pleasant play of muscle, she balanced a small flat envelope of black and green striped silk. There was about Michael in evening clothes an air of complete informality as though she had slipped out of a tennis dress, changed her slippers and, as an afterthought, powdered her nose.

The captain and his daughter greeted us graciously. Time was beginning to pinch the contours of Elsie Graham's face—to accentuate the slight but not displeasing British prominence of her teeth, to breathe upon the luster of her heavy brown hair. But as the brilliant coral pink scarf wound 'round her throat set off the pale chiffon of her dress, so her eyes, when she spoke to her father, lit with a dark blue radiance which illuminated and transfigured her face.

Dr. Masters, the senior surgeon, and his junior, Dr. Franz Kramer, were followed by the three Fairchilds. Bill appeared less dissipated than in Paris. Echo, in an intricate froth of yellow chiffon, reminded me of a hazy day in early spring, irradiated by the shimmering sunlight which was her hair

Anne was, as always, a work of art, her silver blonde waves perfectly molded, her long black gown devoid of ornament save for a chain of matched diamonds ending in a single square ruby below her throat.

The captain commented to me on the picture they made—Anne in shimmering black; Gwynn in velvet as soft toned as a graciously tinted Meerschaum; Michael in vivid green; Elsie Graham in pale pink and Echo in yellow, and then inquired, raising his voice, "But where is the other lady?"

"I've just sent a steward to find out," replied Elsie Graham, crossing to us as though her presence would dissipate her father's faint annoyance.

"Is it Mrs. Diaz we're waiting for?" The moment the words were out I knew I had blundered. However, I floundered on with one of those stupid impulses to cover a mistake. "O, Mrs. Diaz being an old friend, I took it for granted——"

Miss Graham avoided my eyes. "I don't believe my father asked her."

"I see," I said, feeling as though I had stepped on somebody's train, and was glad of the diversion of a door opening on the other side of the room through which a stewardess wheeled an invalid chair.

Lady Frances must have been glorious before hopeless illness had given her the querulousness of complete helplessness. Doubtless her life had been tragic. But I felt sorrier for her husband and daughter. There was so much bitterness in the way she accepted their devoted ministrations. And finally she had to be whisked back into her room, when a simple question of Echo's seemed to precipitate her into an attack of unreasonable hysteria. So, of course, she was not with us when we started down the stairs into the festively decorated café, the sixth lady having finally sent her apologies.

I KEEP marveling at the insignificance of the threads on which our destinies hang. If Lily Diaz had not joined our party, at least seven life stories would have had to find other grooves by which to reach, eventually, the points at which the next day found them, if, as the fatalists believe, those points are foreordained. Michael Dare probably would today be living with her brother, Silas, trying to fit her turbulent nature into his church text book scheme of life; Dr. Kramer would, in all likelihood, be practicing medicine somewhere in Kansas; Lord Allinson, who disappeared before he could be apprehended, might still be threading his colorful way through the social life of several European capitals, from which more emeralds and diamonds and pearls might have been diverted into the open hands of American pawnbrokers; continued strange happenings on board the Albania might have deepened the shadows behind the tired blue eyes Captain Graham directed into the fog, from the bridge of his boat on troubled nights; Lady Frances would, in all probability, still be querulously accepting, from her wheel chair, the devoted attentions of her husband and daughter. As for Bill Fairchild——

But such speculations, although fascinating, cannot be half so interesting as the things which really did happen, because Lily Diaz did join our party. Perhaps if, as the fatalists contend, her end was written in the stars, she might have met it in some other fashion. But as it happened, from nine o'clock until two she wove her devious way through our chatter and our laughter and our dancing, and at two she was dead in Jerry Leith's arms.

Dinner Dance on the Glass Floor.

I think, for purposes of coherence, I had better go back to nine o'clock, when, led by Captain Graham, with Gwynn on his arm, and flanked by Dr. Kramer, who had no partner, we made our laughing way into the deck café.

The centerpiece of each table was a miniature tree, decorated with small red, green, and blue balloons. Festoons of larger balloons hung from the ceiling and a huge tree dominated the corner near the musicians' platform. Even the white covers of the bird cages, in which the birds—let us hope—slept peacefully, were sprinkled with glistening silver powder so that they seemed snow covered. Considering their number, the passengers who had reserved tables made a brave attempt to work up a holiday spirit with paper hats and favors and rolls of colored streamers.

The captain was just ordering the extra service removed when Lily Diaz appeared in the doorway, looking like some gorgeously exotic lacquered image from the shining mat of her black enameled hair to her highly veneered finger tips. Her gown of gold lamé cascaded sinuously to the points of gilt slippers, whose emerald buckles answered the green challenge of a heavy pair of jade earrings. From beneath her slanting, uncurled lashes she cast an insolent look around the room. Then, as the head steward approached, she moved the long jade cigaret holder in her left hand in a gesture which brushed him aside while it ignored him and made her way toward us.

We remained standing, rather embarrassed, as she approached. The muscles of the captain's face set and he coughed that dry, hacking little cough of the chronic smoker which seemed characteristic of him, while Elsie Graham's hand traveled to the coral colored scarf where it remained in a rigid arabesque.

"What a nice party," drawled Lily Diaz, something mocking in the narrowed depths of the gray-green eyes she leveled at the captain. "But somebody seems to be missing."

"What a pity," murmured Lily, "but probably her misfortune is my luck." Her heavy gold brocade bag came to rest on the white tablecloth as her left hand traveled carelessly toward an ash receiver. "I was going to eat all alone."

As she took the vacant place between Bill and the junior surgeon it seemed possible that Lily Diaz could be unaware of the lack of cordiality which surrounded her. There was no mistaking the perfunctory manner in which Captain Graham seconded Bill's exuberant suggestion. The captain's daughter made no effort to control the working of her face. Anne's lips disappeared into a fine raspberry tinted line. Echo, on my left, took no pains to conceal the open sneer which lifted the corner of her fine little mouth. Michael's manner, as she struck a match and carried it to the cigaret caught lightly between her lips, showed more plainly than seemed generous, her contemptuous dislike of the twelfth member of our party. Even Dr. Kramer's polite smile immediately lost itself behind the ambush of his blond, pointed beard.

THE seating could not have been more unfortunately designed—with Jerry Leith between Anne Fairchild and Echo—Bill between his wife and Lily Diaz—and Dr. Kramer between Lily and Michael Dare. From where I sat diagonally across the long table, I caught the occasional flash of steel between the two women.

After one of them, Lily turned to Bill and muttered something about "green in her eyes." Michael, hearing, leaned over to Dr. Masters and remarked in an audible undertone, "But no yellow in my blood."

Lily's left hand closed around her knife and the doctor, who was between both of them, put out two involuntarily protesting hands, while Bill, seizing his glass, tried to create a diversion by demanding toasts. Having already drunk to the captain and the Albania, Michael proposed "To us—may we all get—what we're looking for!" But her tone vitiated the innocuousness of the words, her eyes directing them mockingly toward Lily.

Lily held out her glass and as Bill filled it she lifted it toward Michael: "To us—may our little troubles never grow into big ones."

As Michael set down her glass abruptly, Gwynn lifted hers hastily. "To the beginning of the new year—and the end of all left-handed compliments!"

Everybody laughed except Lily Diaz, who was left handed. But the tension, momentarily snapped, soon made itself felt again. Dr. Masters, called away before the meat course, never did return. Anne and Bill were bickering about everything and about nothing—about his lighter which he said he had left in the trunk and she said she had seen him use—about going to bed—about feeling something in the air.

"Why didn't you feel it before we got on the boat?" growled her husband. "It's too late to get off now."

"It was you who wanted to come—not I," she reminded him.

"Well, I'm not sorry."

"You will be," she prophesied.

Only once I saw Elsie Graham's face light up. It was when Anulesco, the chief night steward, murmured something to her as he passed behind her chair. I scented a ship romance.

JERRY remained depressed and silent all evening. "I can't help it," I heard him tell Echo. "I won't feel right till this day is over." Finally, while most of the others were dancing, Gwynn trapped him into a conversation. They made no atempt to lower their voices and there really seemed no reason for me to go away.

"Jerry, you got the letters I wrote you, back in 1918 and '19?"

"Yes, and I meant to answer, only I kept putting it off—and——"

"Jerry, stop stalling. What was in the letter Noel sent you? I had a hunch there was something in it important enough to make you duck out of town rather than face me. Right, Jerry?"

"And after Noel died you were afraid I'd get it out of you and it would hurt me. That's why you didn't answer my letters, wasn't it?"

Jerry made no attempt to deny it.

"Noel had found somebody in Paris that he cared more about—hadn't he?"

And when he did not reply she insisted, "You're not telling me anything I don't know. It's just to straighten it out in my own mind. Judge Hascom had to tell me something, you see——"

"Judge Hascom knew?"

"He knew that Noel had drawn out his money, naturally. He had to tell me there was nothing left but some debts. The insurance just covered them."

"I didn't know that Gwynn—truly—I had no idea——"

"O, I wouldn't have taken anything from you. I had already begun to scratch out a living."

"But why——?"

Gwynn finished the question for him. "Did he draw it out? The best I could get from the judge was that it was for some one to whom he was very much indebted and who must not be left in want."

Home in the Modern Style Is Now Possible at Minimum Cost

Start Off with One Floor, Build Another Later

By Louise Bargelt.

GEORGE FRED KECK, architect, 612 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, is one of a small group of outstanding men of this city who have worked considerably along the line of modern architecture, or in the so-called new style.

In the small dwelling moderne shown today, designed by Mr. Keck to house a small family at minimum cost with maximum benefit for every dollar invested, there are five rooms, bath, and attached garage. The house is not pretentious. It does not claim to be a mansion nor does it look like a little house "trying to be big." It is an honest attempt to meet modern living requirements in a practical way.

Because of the extreme simplicity of the house and its entire lack of ornament, adequate professional advice is essential to carry out the design in pleasing, smart and sophisticated lines. This also is true of the landscape which will form a part of the picture.

There is no basement under the house, nor is there any sloping roof. The simple, flat roof construction makes possible its use for sun baths, outdoor sleeping rooms, lounge rooms and for other purposes the owners may desire.

Another point to note is the modern window arrangement. The windows reach from floor to ceiling in the living room and dining room. In the other rooms they reach the ceiling, giving the effect of added height to the interior. Each room has considerable glass area and the intensity of light can be controlled by venetian blinds or draperies. The large panes of glass are fixed with smaller panes at the sides which open and admit air.

Rooms Are Large.

The rooms are airy and large. Observe the windows at the corners, which give long wall spaces for the arrangement of large pieces of furniture and flexibility of rearrangement. The corner windows also light up uniformly the four walls of each room.

Naturally, the exterior appearance of the house is altered with this consciously new style of building. The lines do not follow any of the traditional or established styles. But just as the modern automobile follows no particular style yet has smooth, flowing lines that are beautiful, so the modern house can have smooth, flowing lines, various types establishing themselves with the various materials used on the exteriors.

New and strange this modernism seems, but let us look for a moment at the dwelling as the architect does. The modern architect scarcely thinks of his house as a heavy structure of brick or stone, stucco or wood, with heavy supporting walls and columns resting heavily on mother earth. Rather, he thinks of his building as a skeleton enclosed by a light shell. Mass and solidity as principles are supplanted by the idea of volume, of space enclosed by surfaces and planes.

This home does not require a wide lot, but may be placed on a site of 30 feet frontage, or more.

As there is no basement an open type of joist construction is used and the air chamber is used as a return air duct for the heating unit, thus keeping the floor temperatures at near room temperatures.

Plumbing Centralized.

The heating unit and laundry trays are in a room off the kitchen and next to the garage. The empty garage may be used for hanging clothes in inclement weather. All the plumbing equipment is centralized in one stack. By omitting the basement deep sewers are unnecessary. There is no possibility of the sewer backing up, a flooded basement, or odors sometimes found in a basement. Ground insects and vermin are sealed out by an insulating layer of cinders and monolithic concrete under the entire area of the house.

Modern insulation in its extreme efficiency makes it possible to do without expensive attic and basement space and make every cubic foot of building available as usable cubage. A half of the building no longer has to be dug into the ground to keep the floors warm, house the heating plant and laundry room. This can be done in other ways and, incidentally, at a big saving in money to the owner.

As one can see from the floor plan, there is no sacrifice here of room sizes. One enters a large living room, quite as large as is found in many houses costing four and five times as much as this one. Nor is any space wasted.

The bedrooms are well protected from first floor living room noises. Plaster is contemplated for the inside wall finish, but this may be omitted and another material of sound absorbing qualities substituted. There are many noises within a house which are penetrating and often a source of irritation and annoyance to various occupants.

Choice of Materials.

This house may be built of any of the standard, long used materials such as brick, wood or stucco, or it may be built of the newer materials. The prices quoted below, which have been carefully computed, contemplate the use of standard materials, the least expensive at the moment being brick veneer, stucco or wood. For the five room house and garage in waterproof stucco, the estimated cost is from $4,300 up. For the same in painted brick, from $4,600 up.

A fireplace in the living room, it should be mentioned, may be included for $75 additional.

There is also shown this same little house with a second floor addition of two bedrooms, bath, sun room and roof deck. With the addition, which makes of the residence an eight room home with garage, the cost in waterproof stucco would be $5,750 up, and in painted brick $6,250 up.

Among other possible additions to this house are a front, rear or side sun porch, a second car garage, a storage room, a glazed-in porch on the second floor, and additional bedrooms. All of these are possible to this very adjustable little home without injuring the design in any way, and all at minimum cost.

Such a home, it may be added, is simple to build and may be completed rapidly.

Movement Goes On.

No one can say how soon modernism in architecture will drastically affect our home designs, if it ever does. Motor cars, aeroplanes, radio, television, cinemas are all having their effect on the tenor of our lives. The developments of many materials for domestic use: steel, glass, reinforced concrete, aluminum even, are demanding newer forms of expression. And if architects are divided in their opinion as to just how lasting and permanent will be the influence of this newer style, certainly its influence has already been felt. Many believe that a distinctive American style is still in the making and even though unrestricted expressions of modernism may not last in themselves their influence will certainly be for the good.

This little house is a conservative, restrained expression of the modern. It has been designed with keen appreciation and understanding of what may be offered in the way of a small home at the present time at low cost. It provides excellence in construction and equipment, a lavish amount of sun and air, a super economy of space, an elimination of every nonessenial, of every detail not absolutely necessary to modern demands of comfort, convenience, health and safety.

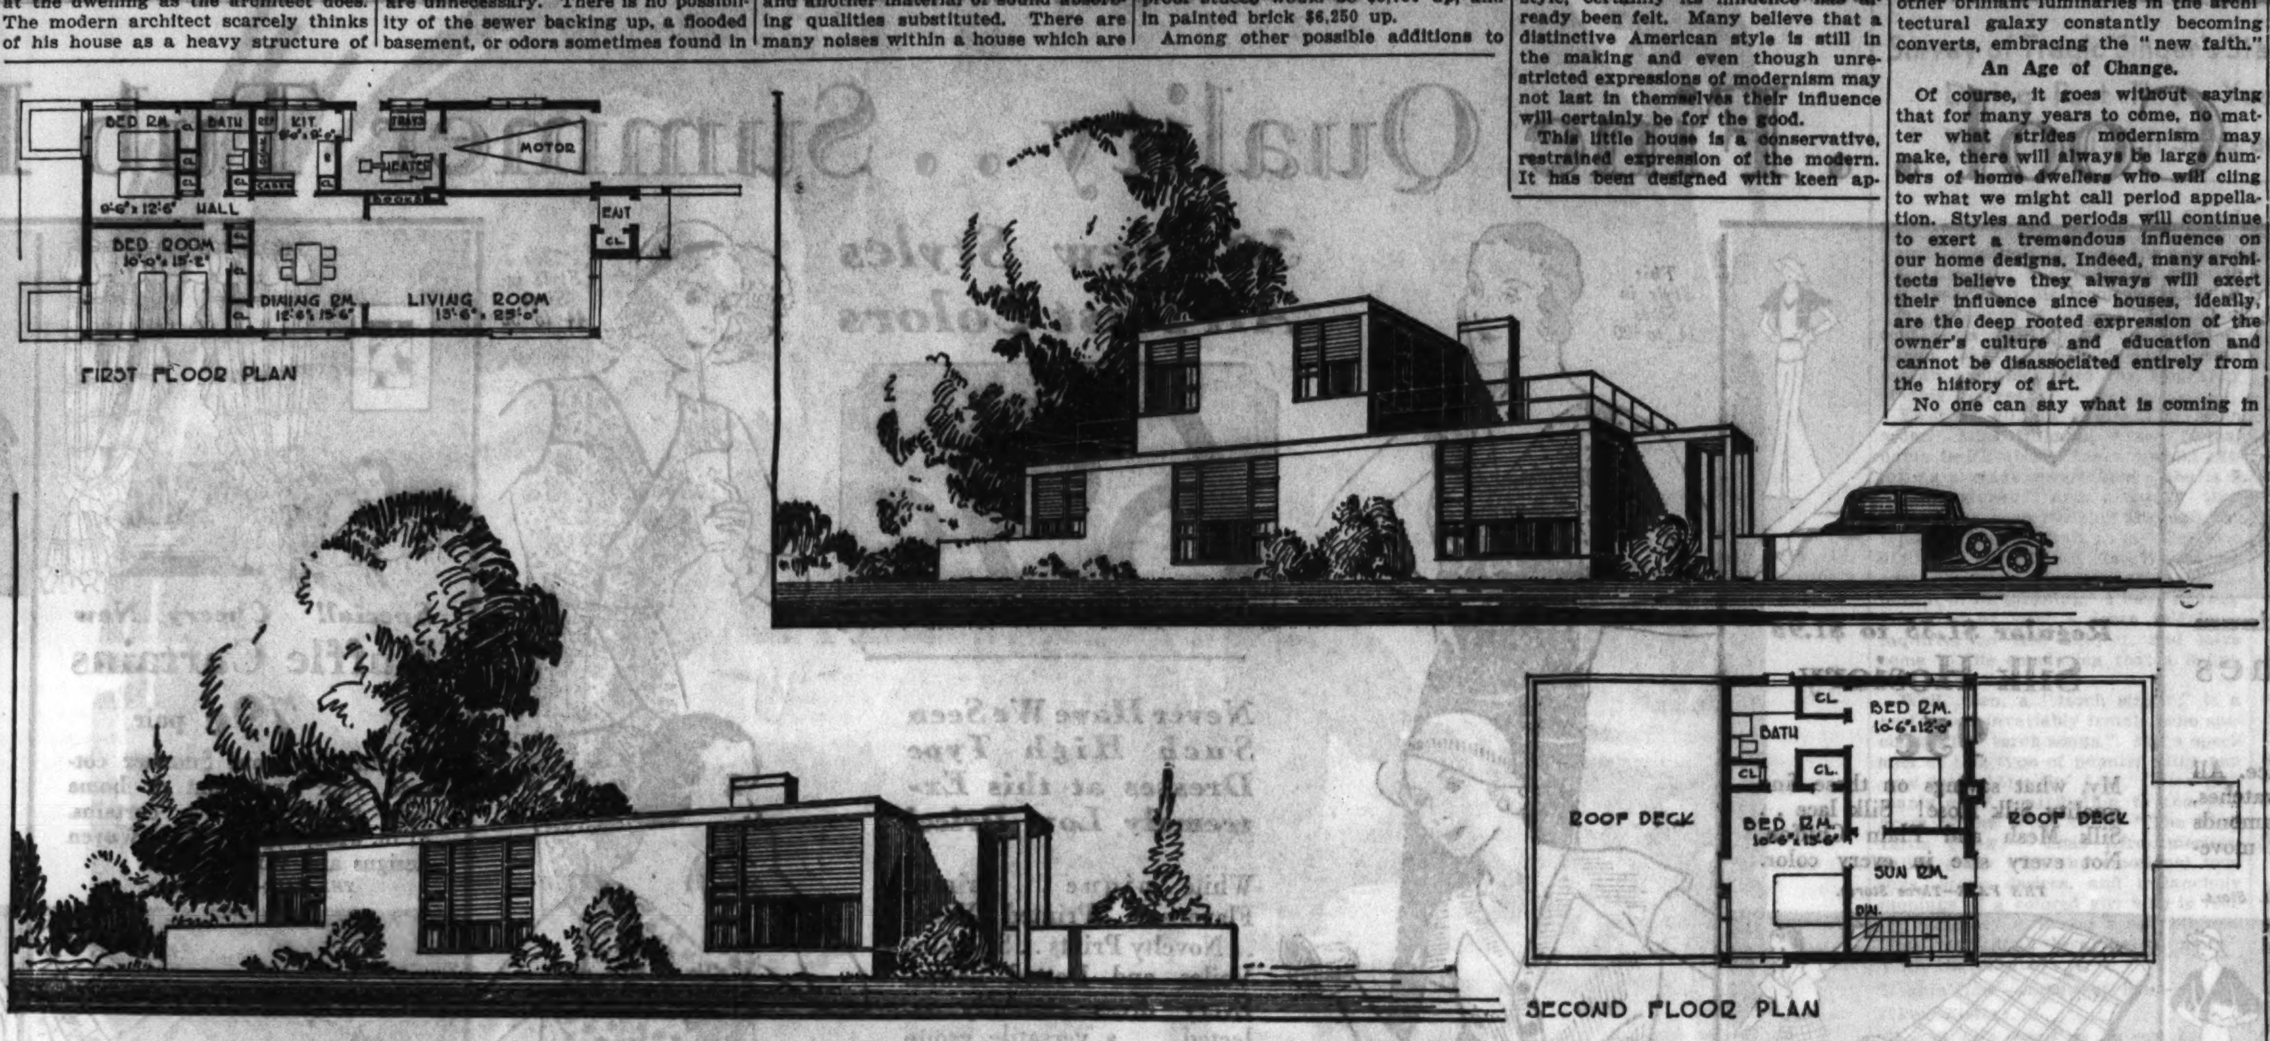
The suggested interior flooring is oak throughout, excepting in the bath, which will be of tile and in the kitchen, which will have linoleum or any other preferred material in the same cost range.

Certainly modern architecture has spread to all parts of the globe. Germany, Holland, France probably hold the leadership in this consciously advanced type of building. Our own country has its outstanding exemplars of modernism with Frank Lloyd Wright occupying a unique position as a great and individual genius and other brilliant luminaries in the architectural galaxy constantly becoming converts, embracing the "new faith."

An Age of Change.

Of course, it goes without saying that for many years to come, no matter what strides modernism may make, there will always be large numbers of home dwellers who will cling to what we might call period appellation. Styles and periods will continue to exert a tremendous influence on our home designs. Indeed, many architects believe they always will exert their influence since houses, ideally, are the deep rooted expression of the owner's culture and education and cannot be disassociated entirely from the history of art.

No one can say what is coming in this age of change, but whether we incline to the modern as an expression of our own home, whether or not our hearts and affections cling tenaciously to the storied, the traditional, the age old types, we can't help a stirring of interest, a thrill even, when we see glimpses of our domestic architecture sparkling with new ideas, when we see how new materials allow new forms and how amazingly adjustable old materials are in adapting themselves to new manners of expression!



Sparkling with new ideas, this small home in the modern style of architecture has been designed with keen appreciation and understanding of what may be offered in the way of a small dwelling at the present time at very low cost, indeed! Its estimated cost, five rooms and attached garage, with exterior of waterproof stucco, is from $4,300 up. With exterior walls of painted brick, from $4,600 up. A second floor may be given to this little home in the newer style of architecture: two additional bedrooms, another bath, a sunroom and roof deck, as shown in the upper sketch. Thus we have an eight room house with attached garage. The estimated cost in waterproof stucco is from $5,750 up. In painted brick, from $6,250 up. Observe the modern window arrangement, with windows reaching to the ceiling, giving the effect of added height to the interior. At the upper left is a floor plan of the five room home and at the lower right the second floor plan of the eight room home moderne.

Questions Before the House

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: I have always thought waxed floors beautiful, but recently I visited where they seemed sticky and to show footmarks. What can I do to prevent this, as I am having new hardwood floors put over my old ones and don't want them waxed if they are going to give me trouble? "M. Y."

ANSWER: Use a good grade of wax, don't apply too much, and allow it to dry thoroughly before polishing. In this way you will avoid the above difficulties. In purchasing any floor finish don't buy the cheapest. Use only a good grade of well known brands and follow directions carefully.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: The floor in our living room could stand being changed. It is not so worn as it is shabby and it fairly cries out for something new. How about linoleum? Could we have a new wood floor laid over the old? Have you any other suggestion? DAVE T."

ANSWER: Linoleum in its present lovely forms can be used in any room in the house. Rubber is another excellent composition flooring. Yes, you could have a new wood floor laid over the old one. A carpet can hide many faults and blemishes, add to the beauty of the room, and, incidentally, the allover carpet is much in favor today.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We would like an extra bathroom between two bedrooms on our second floor. There is plenty of space there as one of the closets between the two rooms is unusually large. Who should we see about this? MARY L.

ANSWER: You might ask a local contractor and a plumbing contractor to look over the house and see what opportunities there are, advise you about costs, etc.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Are there automatic stokers which can be used in small homes? I know they have them in big buildings, but have they been perfected for domestic use? We have a seven room home and I'm tired of shoveling! G. T."

ANSWER: Yes, indeed! There are excellent domestic stokers manufactured for domestic use. They are not expensive and they perform their allotted task faithfully and well.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Our basement was extremely hot all last winter and it seemed to us that a lot of heat was being wasted in the lower regions What can we do about it? R. F."

ANSWER: Apply asbestos or other heat insulating covering on pipes and boiler to reduce heat waste.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We want to refinish our first floor woodwork. It is birch. Will it take paint or enamel? "C. H."

ANSWER: Birch takes either paint or enamel very well, as it is a hard wood and does not dent or bruise easily.

Maple Along the Early American Lines Proves Very Popular for the Summer Cottage in the Country or at the Shore

It Is Sturdy and Simple and Its Mellow Tones Endear It to Many Lovers of Good Furniture.

By Edith Weigle.

THE warm days of summer fail to wilt the energy of furniture manufacturers. As this goes to press they are gathering from all over the country to show their new designs at the annual summer show at the American Furniture Mart. Secrecy always shrouds the displays until the opening day so we will not be able to tell you about the exhibition until our next article. But predictions are that the following styles will be emphasized: 18th century English, early American and Federal.

Certainly early American maple seems the ideal choice for the summer house in the country or at the shore. Its simplicity strikes the right note in informal surroundings, and its rich, goldenbrown color makes it doubly desirable. We noticed that eastern stores had larger collections of maple furniture than of any other type when we were on the Atlantic coast recently. It is the inevitable favorite of New Englanders.

Here in Chicago, too, shops are blossoming with modern reproductions of sturdy, interesting antiques. One State street store has an entire model cottage furnished with one manufacturer's line of early American maple, and this is well worth a visit. Wallpapers were chosen painstakingly to create just the right background, and draperies and rugs harmonize perfectly with the spool and four poster beds, the open china cupboards, the Boston rockers and Windsor chairs and the simple drop leaf tables.

The wallpaper has an old fashioned scenic design showing windmills. The floor is carpeted and hooked rugs are used to carry out the theme of simplicity and quaintness. Pewter candlestick lamps are placed on the drop leaf dressing table, and a small wooden bench accompanies it. Nearby is a chintz covered wing chair, the wings being of the maple. It makes an ideal sewing chair for it has no arms.

Seen in the shops:

An amusing, portable bar of unfinished reed with two high, leather-topped stools. The bar itself is circular and opens in two parts, the interiors of which contain shelves for bottles, little sections for glasses, places for ice, etc. The whole outfit can be taken to the porch or to a tea house on the lawn.

Another less subtle drinking group consists of barrels. A large brass-bound barrel with a top of circular wood forms a table on which are beer steins. Smaller barrels, also brass-bound and with round scarlet cushions bound in black, are the seats. Just two suggestions, these, for the days when the Democrats' plank about the repealing of the eighteenth amendment becomes effective.

Extremely good looking porch tables of all sorts are selling for less than five dollars. One type with a circular glass top has a container for flowers below; another, also with a round top of canary yellow, folds up and is easy to carry about; a third is ideal for the tea or cocktail hour, with its colored tile top and bronze legs. These tables are of wood, painted tin, and metals.

You can buy stunning green lacquered hickory and rattan chairs for less than ten dollars each, a settee to match, and a small round table, also for less than this amount.

A porch furniture set of sea-going trimness consists of chairs, settee, and round table in deep marine blue with seat cushions of white washable imitation leather. Trimmings are black. Modern lines are followed and the whole effect of this ensemble is arrestingly smart and different.

Fiber reed chairs are clever in white enamel with emerald green weatherproof cushions, in canary yellow and green, and in coral red with beige, and they're so inexpensive!

And beach umbrellas—ideal for that pretty corner in the garden where you'd like to place several chairs and a little table, or for the sidelines of the tennis court, or for the back lawn, come in cool shades of green and white, black and white, and green and yellow, and their price is well under five dollars.

The maple furniture in this summer bedroom is manufactured by an eastern company known for its excellent design and workmanship and is sold in Chicago and other cities throughout the country.

Novel Touches in Accessories Brighten Mode

Belts of straw, shoes of printed silk, cotton gloves, and flower dog collars make costume incidentals as novel as frocks themselves are plain.

Green and White Combination.

Gloves are short, plain, and made of a wider range of fabrics than ever before. Linen gloves with suede palms and fingers, white piqué gauntlets with voile hands, crocheted cotton, and heavy knitted silk slip-ons are all newer notes in the glove category than kid or suede models.

Smart Flower Trim.

Flowers are used in a dozen different ways. A dog collar of white Chrysanthemums finishes a simple black crêpe frock, a cravat of nasturtiums is worn with a brown crêpe, while boutonnières of carved ivory, oilcloth, reptile skin, and starched piqué are seen on the broad lapels of wool tailleurs.

The flower trim is equally smart on formal clothes. A black chiffon dinner dress has two stark white lilies nestling on the shoulder, the décolletage of a cream crêpe is rimmed with blue cornflowers, and a black crêpe afternoon gown is caught with a cluster of six pink roses at the base of the V neckline.

White Felt Hats Top Off Gayest Sports Clothes

PARIS.—(AP)—White felt hats are back in style. With white wool and artificial silk sport frocks topped by bright colored jackets and scarfs, white felt hats with crush crowns and medium sized brims are the last word in chapeau chic.

Three Room Apartment Seems Popular Size for New Crop of Young Married Couples

By WillElla de Campi.

WITH the host of conveniences installed in modern apartment buildings, it is no great wonder that the three room apartment has become one of the most popular of present day homes.

Young couples of moderate circumstances find an answer to their needs and requirements in apartments of this type. Though the rooms themselves are somewhat standardized, there are limitless possibilities of transforming them into distinctive homes by means of clever furnishing and decorations.

One such ingeniously comfortable apartment is furnished with a combination of American colonial and French provincial pieces. Harmonious color schemes in all three rooms are pleasantly livable, and in no way monotonous. The living room walls are painted soft sage green with a dull chalky finish which makes a delightfully restful background. Woodwork is stained walnut. On the floor there is a plain green rug, somewhat deeper than the walls in tone.

Pale coral gauze glass curtains at the windows are quite full, hanging straight to the sills. Long draperies are of plain, straw colored glazed chintz. Narrow accordion plaited edging to match is joined under sage green piping. A large, deep seated sofa with down filled cushions is upholstered in glazed chintz with clusters of flowers in which straw color and coral tones predominate on a sage green ground. One arm chair is done in the same chintz, and a wing chair is upholstered in copper colored damask.

Between two windows is a commodious knee hole desk, as shown in the accompanying illustration. An old pressed glass decanter which had lost its stopper makes an amusing desk lamp. The shade is of natural parchment decorated with a border of gold stars. A decorative box and a low crystal bowl filled with flowers further add to the beauty of the desktop. In the space above hangs a lovely old English mirror with candle sconces.

Balancing this group, a graceful Duncan Phyfe table, holding an urn shaped lamp made of straw colored pottery, stands on the other side of the room. The lamp shade is stained pale coral, banded with three shades of green. A pair of Duncan Phyfe side chairs with seats done in copper and green striped material stand at each side of the table. Two colorful floral prints in narrow dull gilt frames hang in the wall space above. Plenty of small tables conveniently placed add to the attractive appearance as well as the graciously comfortable quality of the room.

Walls in the adjoining dinette are pale straw color. Woodwork, including door and window frames, is painted the color of dusty old red bricks. At the double casement window are curtains of square meshed net in leaf green. These are made quite full, reaching to the sill, and there are no over curtains. A French provincial dropleaf table is placed directly in front of the window, a pleasant spot, where informal meals are enjoyed.

Instead of the usual open dresser or sideboard, which often seems out of proportion in a dinette where space is limited, a small serving stand is placed against one wall. This is equipped with drop leaves at each side, and with two drawers, which comportably hold the table linens used daily. Hanging shelves above the stand effectively house an assortment of colored glassware. Four little chairs with vari-colored rush seats and an interesting hooked rug satisfactorily complete the furnishings here.

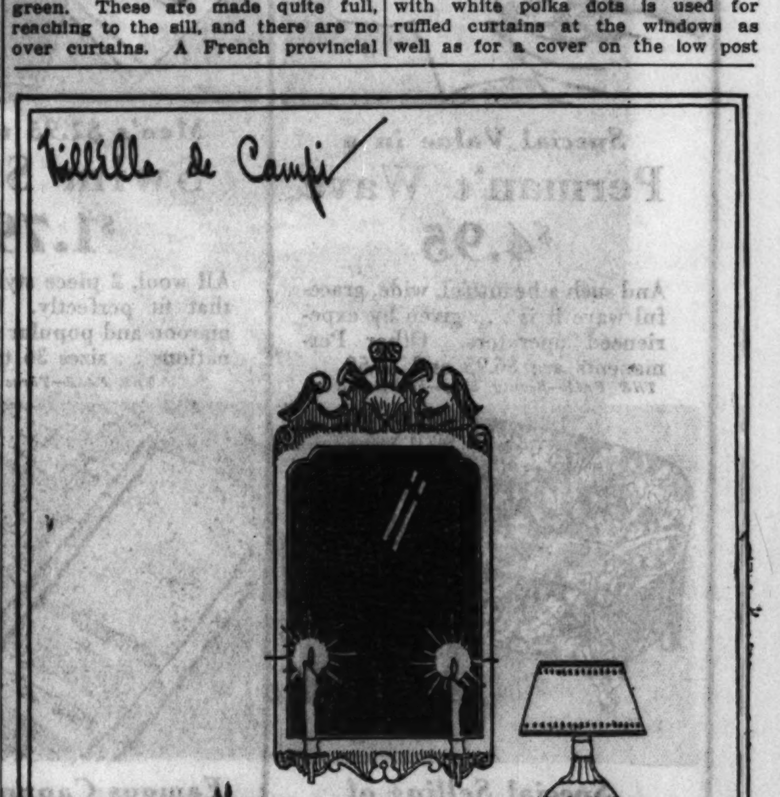
A little dressing table standing between two windows holds the white glass lamps with accordion plaited shades. On night stands at each side of the bed head are sky blue glass lamps with white shades. A maple rocker and an arm chair done in glazed chintz with small white flowers on a blue ground are pleasingly grouped near a maple butterfly table. Early American fashion prints relieve the plainness of the walls, and soft toned hooked rugs are used on the floor.



Modern reproduction of an 18th century knee hole desk with English mirror is placed effectively between two windows of the living room.

GOOD MORNING!

"The Washington Masquerade"!

Be it not said that the film has everything. A movie has to go some these days to have everything. But I will remark, with little fear of contradiction from you, that "The Washington Masquerade" is a production you'll remember far longer than you do the rank and file of photoplays that parade before your eyes.

Well, you ask, just what are the glowing qualifications of this remarkable cinema?

Lionel Barrymore's one.

A timely story with an idea is another. Then come:

Superfine direction.

Brainy acting.

Beautiful and appropriate sets.

Dialogue that hews to the line and keeps your interest alert.

A pat and courageous finale.

Sounds good?

IS good!

From opening to final scene, "The Washington Masquerade" is overflowing with human interest and suspense. Its central character is a western lawyer whose brilliant and successful plea to the governor of his state wins pardon for a boy sentenced to die; attracts the attention of honest men and decides them to place Jeff Keane in the seat of "hizzoner" who, they felt, had rendered a prejudiced decision.

* *

Runs for Senator.

Keane agrees to run for judge. Then, sneered at by the senator whose interests the judiciary had been furthering, he takes the bull by the horns and decides to win this reprehensible senator's seat the next election.

Having made his frothing opponent bite the dust, Keane, accompanied by his beloved only daughter, arrives at Washington, an honorable "people's choice," determined to do the square thing by the state he has been chosen to represent. It seems that in Washington neither all men nor all women are honest. Some there be, alas, who use position and brains to undermine the ideals and resistance of those who sincerely endeavor to serve the land of the free and the home of the brave.

—And your naïve idea that the government is run by big, strong men suffers a wallop in the tummy. Every big, strong legislator, apparently, is prettily driven by some fair, smart woman. And lo, he champeth not at the bit, nor doth he take it in his teeth and run away. NO, he standeth with arched neck, nibbleth gratefully at sugar the lady handeth out and when she sayeth: "Pretty pony, giddy-ap!"—giddyappeth!

Now, this is much too clever a picture to have its story revealed to you. So, I am merely going to remind you of a Bible story which you ought to know—the one about Samson and Delilah—and whisper gently that it's not so long before Ruth Keane has a stepmamma. From here on you walk alone.

Fine Work by Barrymore.

Lionel Barrymore has never done anything better than his characterization of the silver-tongued western senator. That sentence contains all possible encomium. Karen Morley executes a rarely craftsmanlike job as the Washington Egeria. C. Henry Gordon, Nils Asther, and Reginald Barlow as snakes of assorted breeds are excellent.

Diane Sinclair plays Ruth Keane thoughtfully and with considerable intelligence, but when she forgets herself has a decided foreign accent that grates. You would think that with all the pretty girls from whom to choose in Hollywood one WITHOUT an accent could have been found to fill the bill.

Supporting rôles are extraordinarily well handled and I have an idea that somebody familiar with Washington political and social procedure supervised the production. It has an atmosphere of authenticity and awareness.

May you enjoy "The Washington Masquerade" as I did!

THANKS, fans, for telling me that "Saturday's Children" was the name of the play from which "Week End Marriage" was adapted. You're always so nice about helping me out! . . . THE SPIRIT of coöperation is becoming more and more general. I'm told that the mad scramble of studios to secure the "exclusive" service of stars and directors is a thing of the past. At least so says Sam Katz of Paramount, who declares that talent is being generously loaned from one studio to another for the reason that producers are beginning to realize that a rival's punk photoplay, indirectly, is a black eye to the entire industry. Here are some exchanges scheduled for this season: Kay Francis, Warner star, will work with Miriam Hopkins and Herbert Marshall in Paramount's "The Honest Finder"; Elissa Landi, Fox star, joins Fredric March and Charles Laughton in Cecil B. De Mille's "Sign of the Cross" at Paramount; Joan Crawford goes from M-G-M to United Artists for "Rain";

RELIEVING THE SUMMER TEDIUM

"Will you come into my parlor?" said the spider (Karen Morley) to the fly (Lionel Barrymore). "The Washington Masquerade," at the Chicago, will show you what happened to the fly.

To be or not to be? To do or not to do? The man (Ben Lyon) can't seem to make up his mind. Cheerup, Ben, the lady (Joan Bennett) will help you! Joan and Ben are appearing as leading woman and leading man in "Week Ends Only," which is the State-Lake theater's feature picture for the current week.

Max Rabinoff Plans Opera on Democratic Lines for New York

Believing the Public Wants Good Music if It Can Be Had at Popular Prices, This Enterprising Manager Starts Raising $100,000 Fund at $1 per Unit.

By Edward Moore.

IF one plan of giving opera proves unavailing, why not try another that looks as though it has a chance of success?

So says Max Rabinoff, once of Chicago, now of New York, and, incidentally, seizing upon what looks to be the psychological moment for the new experiment. He was a brilliant and daring impresario in the old days. He brought that marvel of all dancers, Anna Pavlowa, to this country for the first time. He continued the Boston Opera company for a number of seasons after the Bostonians were no longer able to keep it at home. For some years he has been engaged in other activities, but he has always retained his interest in opera, and now he is about to launch his new plan upon New York.

The Cosmopolitan Opera association of which he is managing director, will open a season of sixteen weeks in New York. It may come to Chicago later, but this will depend upon circumstances yet to be determined.

Mr. Rabinoff bases his thesis upon several points. The days of patrons, underwriters, splendid, public spirited citizens who backed opera for the sole purpose of adding beauty to life, seem to be over. They cannot continue, but they are leaving some of the world's foremost lyric artists, musicians, choristers, and dancers in our midst without employment. Scenery, costumes, theaters are at our disposal. At the same time the people want opera.

Goes Direct to the People.

What is missing? Apparently only the will to go ahead, plus the necessary money for advance expenses. In that case, says Mr. Rabinoff, the most available plan is to go straight to the public itself, to make opera the public's own, to democratize opera, if you want to be entirely modern in choice of terms, to socialize it. Other people have said this before. Mr. Rabinoff seems to mean it.

At present it is New York's experiment, capable of being observed from a distance as an experiment. Mr. Rabinoff figured that he could give opera at prices ranging from fifty cents to $3 a seat, do it in a first class manner, and, with the costs of music makers as sharply revised downward as they are today, do it so that it would pay its own way.

He needed $100,000 to get under way. Instead of asking one man or one group of men to capitalize the undertaking he invited 100,000 citizens of New York to subscribe $1 each, enough to guarantee every necessary advance expenditure, and from last accounts it looked as though the invitation was going to be accepted in a most enthusiastic manner. A large part of the fund was already subscribed, and more was coming in rapidly by every mail.

What is more, it was not a matter of long and painful preparation. It was first broached on June 24. On that date an audience of 14,000 educators was gathered in Madison Square Garden, the board of education, university professors, music supervisors, principals, and teachers of high and grade schools, to say nothing of music lovers generally, and there the question was discussed. It went with a good deal of a blaze.

Naturally, the circumstances for this particular meeting were different in New York. There educators have been paid. On the other hand, New York is going to have its Metropolitan Opera company this year, even with a shortened season, and Chicago is to have no Civic Opera company.

Modest Prices Possible.

Under suitable direction the campaign is being extended, and it looks like success. The real object is to organize an army of music lovers in the determination to keep opera in the hands of the people at modest prices. At first glance the modesty of the demand is by no means the least surprising feature: $100,000 is asked, when heretofore it has been assumed that $500,000 is hardly enough to get results. Let Mr. Rabinoff answer it in his own words:

"Some great operatic artists are facing a calamity. They are without means. Because the material world first turns its back on beauty when there is danger to economic foundations musicians and artists of all sorts are first and hardest hit.

"Here is the answer. The venture is coöperative; gone and long forgotten for these artists are the inflated star salaries which once a social and fashionable board of directors flattered them was very reasonable. Now salaries are based upon the treasury and the box office, and all are pleased by the arrangement.

"I could tell you that the appropriations which have hitherto been considered essential in the development of grand opera were ridiculous. It was never possible, even were the opera house empty, to expend in reasonable manner those sums which have been spent.

"However, our problem is not what happened in the past, but what we can do here and now. We are doing it in New York. Our theater is negotiated, our company is being organized, our budgets have been laid out and approved, and now it is assured that we shall not fail."

Industry Encourages Music.

Business is more and more recognizing music as a worth while activity. This statement can be illustrated by four male choruses which will take part in the Chicagoland Music Festival contests sponsored on Saturday, Aug. 20, by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and coöperating newspapers and organizations throughout Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan. In the list of chorus contestants are singers from a hotel, railway, electric manufacturing plant, and the automobile industry.

Allerton Hotel Glee club, Frank Bennett.

Illinois Central Railway male chorus, Carl Craven.

Studebaker Athletic association chorus, the Studebaker corporation,

Libby Holman's Brief, Brilliant Career as a Muse of Torch Songs

Survey of Tragic Singer's Stage Appearances in Revues During Past Three Years; Answer to Question: What Is a Torch Song and Why?

By Charles Collins.

THIS should be an appropriate time for a chronic playgoer to set down his memories and impressions of Libby Holman. Recent news dispatches from Winston-Salem, N. C., are sufficient reason for an excursion into the biography of this actress.

First of all, an explanation is in order. Miss Holman, whose formal name is Elizabeth, has a special rating as a stage entertainer. She is a "torch singer," and although that phrase has been running through the reports of the tragedy in her domestic life like a leitmotif in Wagnerian opera, a great many people are ignorant of its meaning. I have already answered at least a dozen telephone inquiries on this subject, and have come to the conclusion that a definition is needed.

Well, then, a "torch singer" is a performer, invariably female, who specializes in "torch songs." For a specimen of this type of popular ditty you may take "Moanin' Low," Miss Holman's chief contribution to the program of the revue called "The First Little Show." That Afro-American ballad deals with the emotional urgings, erotic desires, and melancholy mopings of a colored girl who is feeling "mighty sick and sore" because "my man don't love me no more." Then the chorus:

Moanin' low—my sweet man—
I love him so.
Though he's mean as he can be,
He's the kind of a man
Needs the kind of a woman like me.

* *

Torches Are Hot.

A "torch song" is a "hot" song—passionate, woeful, and maudlin. It is a jazz age equivalent of the more vulgar forms of sentimental balladry. It is slow of tempo, with frequent pauses to permit emotional gurglings and chin quaverings by the singer; and it is supposed to be the lyric outcry of some heartbroken young woman in a low state of morals and a low walk of life.

The phrase apparently came out of the cabarets of Harlem, the center of Negro life in New York City, three or four years ago; and it was brought into the vernacular of the theater by the words-and-music authors who form an important part of the population of Broadway. Helen Morgan has represented the art of torch singing in its higher form. After her came Libby Holman, Wini Shaw, and dozens of others.

The trick has gone somewhat stale now; but at the height of the "torch" vogue almost any young woman of the revues or the floor shows, if gifted with a deep, lugubrious voice and a voluptuous physique, was likely to bray one of these lamentations. Therefore Kenyon Nicholson thought that "Torch Song" would make an excellent title for his play about the unhappy love life of a cabaret girl, unsuccessfully staged last year.

Sudden Success.

Libby Holman was the "torch singer" par excellence. A few years ago she descended upon New York, like hundreds of other ambitious girls from the midlands, to find a foothold in the tricky arena of theatrical life. She made no progress, or but little, for a while; then her throaty chanting and her swart, exotic appearance brought her an opportunity in a short-lived summer show called "Merry-Go-Round." She made a hit; she was recruited into the first "Little Show"; and suddenly she became a famous personality.

Thus it appears that Miss Holman, relatively speaking, is a new girl in American theatrical annals. Until that first "Little Show" came along, about three years ago, to score a sweeping

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We had gone into Greenwich Village in search of adventure, the Cherry Lane theater, and a young man whose mother-in-law had pleaded persistently that we see him act and tell her frankly whether it was worth while for him to go on trying to be an actor.

The Cherry Lane is perhaps the most picturesque of the hideaway theaters in the village. It used to be a garage or something, and you come upon it if you are good at figuring directions at the end of a lanelike narrow street officially tagged Commerce street, a block below Sheridan square.

The neighborhood is more Parisian in appearance than any other the village offers. The streets are curved and narrow, bordered with mysterious hallways in which dim lights burn, small stores and eating places. Except for the missing sidewalk cafés and the laughter, it is much like odd corners of the Latin quarter.

Finding the theater, we found a tall and good looking actorish person taking tickets. He had been a handsome fellow twenty years ago, that was plain at first glance. At second glance we recognized him. Paul Gilmore, the hero of a hundred touring hits in the middle west when the world was thirty years younger.

It was Paul's custom in those old days to take over a New York success and play it where its original stars would not travel. He followed John Drew in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," "The Tyranny of Tears," and other comedies. He took out a second company playing "The Garden of Allah." He played Ol' Bill in "The Better 'Ole," and the year before he retired and went to Florida to spend his declining years in the peace and sunshine of that state he had toured most successfully in "Experience."

In the Wake of the Boom.

But there came a thing called the Florida boom rolling across the semi-tropical peninsula, and when it had passed Gilmore was as flat as a busted bank. There was nothing for him to do but go back to acting.

He came to New York, found Broadway crowded with idle players and the touring territory closed to all but the bigger attractions. Looking about for some place to hang his hat, he discovered the Cherry Lane. It has possibilities, he decided, as a sort of incubator theater. He would organize an inexpensive stock company and give trial performances to new plays.

I have not kept track of what he has been doing for three or four years that he has been there, but it was interesting to discover that the play he was now offering, a comedy called "Man Crazy," written by Stephen Sanford, had been running a month.

The ticket of admission read that its price was $3, but it cost 40 cents. You can buy two of them for 80 cents and that automatically makes you a member of the club. Then you are privileged to buy six more seats at 40 cents each. After using these I suppose you join again for another 80 cents, and so on.

"We are not an endowed theater," Mr. Gilmore states in his program. "My daughter and I are doing all this by ourselves and believe we deserve your encouragement. We will from time to time appear in plays on our stage."

Audience of Fair Size.

Here is one old showman, at least, back in the show business and happy, making a living, apparently. The audience this midweek summer night after the play had been running a month was of fair size, and the usher told me they usually sold out over the week-end. Selling out, of course, would mean no more than an audience of possibly 200 persons.

"Man Crazy" may be headed for Broadway, but I have an idea Commerce street is as close as it will get. A fair amount of possible dialogue, but no situations and no story of holding value.

A married set swarming on a certain country club finds restless wives chasing after vulnerable young men, and vice versa. Some are catty and others are just cats. Along comes a timid, strong young man. The snippy ingenue thinks to make sport of him, but he turns masterful and marries her.

It appears to be the Gilmore idea to give as many young people a chance to act as possible. He may have a stock company school of sorts. There are two and three names opposite each character. "First names on program play first two weeks, second names second two weeks," reads the explanation. Third names may be understudies, ready to jump in if any of the others asks for his salary.

They are pretty bad actors, mostly; two or three of some experience and a developing talent. The young man I had come to see was as good as any of them. He has good looks and youth. He hopes to find a place in the movies his mother-in-law tells me. So, probably, do six or eight thousand other good looking youths.

Nothing Else to Do.

But, as she says, there is nothing else for him to do. The movies offer no greater hazards than the bond business. He had been a customer's man in a Wall street broker's office when there were any customers. It will be a long time before he can go back to that business.

"Should he go on being an actor?" she asked me.

"I can think of nothing worse for him to do," I said, "and nothing better, if it comes to that."

"All he has to sell is his good looks," she said, a little bitterly I thought.

"And his youth," I added. "There will always be a market for youth in the theater. But it is a glutted market. He will have to take his chances. He probably will be wasting the best years of his life and gaining nothing he can capitalize ten years from now, unless he happens to be the one in a thousand who strikes gold."

"And yet," she said, "there are a lot of actors who were probably no better than he is when they started."

"There are," I said. "That handsome fellow who took our tickets is one. There are a thousand others uptown."

"There are a lot of idle bond salesmen, too," she said. "It's a hard question."

"It always has been," I agreed. So we got nowhere.

* *

The Fittest Survive.

If the summer list of dramatic attractions gets down to one, as it threatens, that one will be "Of Thee I Sing." If two survive the July heat they will be "Of Thee I Sing" and "Show Boat." If there are three veterans in the list when the new season's experiments are begun in August they will be these two musical comedies and that family affair, "Another Language."

I see little chance for the others.

I. C. BOOSTERS BRAVE HEAT FOR AMATEUR SHOW

Dancing Virginia Britton, 10, Wins First Prize.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

J. H. GRIFF.

With Virginia Jane Britton, 10 years old, dancing her way to the hearts of 500 club members and winning the first prize silver loving cup, the Illinois Central Service Boosters packed St. Cyril's auditorium Tuesday evening for their first Amateur night despite heat and humidity which caused many of the men to leave their coats at home while many more wished they had done so. The entire program was given by employés of the railroad or members of their families.

Virginia, a grinning and blithe youngster of 10 years, had been ill a week, but likes dancing too well to stay away. First she gave a toe dance, garbed in a green trimmed ballet costume of light green. Then she swung into acrobatic dancing, truly the "Diamond Flash" [her nickname], and her flaxen curls tossed about turbulently. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Britton, and has been a pupil at the Gleason school of dancing for four years.

"Lady's One Piece Band."

The second place cup went to Mrs. Elizabeth Gigney, 867 East 87th street. Calling herself the "Lady's One Piece Band," the portly and jovial gray haired woman, belying her 66 years, established herself as a big favorite with the crowd. She began by playing a mouth organ and small accordion together. Then she "got hot" on the harmonica, and gave both castenets and bones a workout.

"Been doing it since I was a girl," she scoffed as praise flew her way.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hametman, 11336 Harvard avenue, calling themselves the "Waikiki Strummers," won the third prize cup. They have been married 11 years. Mr. Hanetman is the agent at Riverdale. Their "uke" and guitar duos have won them several radio appearances.

Judges of Show.

Judges in the varied show, which saw no two entertainers in exactly the same category, were "Happy Hank" Harrington of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station, J. Sullivan of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, and Sidney Paradie of Balaban & Katz.

A. M. Piper, treasurer and chairman of the entertainment committee, who is one of the club's most tireless workers, was master of ceremonies. J. H. Griff, president of the Boosters, presided. He is the agent at West Pullman.

Other entertainers included Miss Sarah Jane Irwin, 7036 Cregier avenue, a whistler; Miss Rosalind Saindon, 8829 Harper avenue, who showed her 16 year old versatility with song, dance, and piano solo.

Regina Marie Norton, just 8 years old Wednesday, was a favorite with the crowd as she romped through her tap dances with long, black curls tossing about her shoulders.

Vocal selections were contributed by Lee S. Lindig, 6025 South Albany avenue. Helen Adele Jay, 15 years old, 6406 Greenwood avenue, gave two readings by Edgar A. Guest. Ralph R. Barnes closed the program with marimba solos, the audience booming approval as he finished "Evening Star" from "Tannhäuser."

Workers Beside Executives.

The spontaneity of the program was characteristic of the Boosters. Side by side were trackmen in blue work shirts and starched collared executives. The gathering was nothing if not cosmopolitan. About one-fifth of the club's more than 4,000 members are women, and they were fully represented.

No dues are levied; no assessments are made. Membership is in no sense obligatory. The only requirement is membership in the Illinois Central system. The only pledge taken on joining is to be a booster and try to be responsible for one freight shipment or one paying passenger during the year.

These Boosters meet once a month, have a good time. Some of their programs have cost nearly $100. Refreshments are the usual order. Money to take care of requirements has come from get-together parties. The first one was held in October, 1929, and 2,500 persons were on hand. A year later more than 6,000 dancers and merrymakers packed the Trianon for their big party.

Eighty-two Charter Members.

There were 82 charter members when the club was organized on Jan. 29, 1929, in the inauspicious atmosphere of the old 43d street station. George Wissinger, engineer of the suburban service, was chosen temporary chairman and subsequently became the first president. He was succeeded by W. S. Morehead, assistant general storekeeper at Burnside. J. M. Dorsey, assistant chief clerk in the secretary's office, preceded Mr. Griff.

The Chicago club, however, is but one of seventy-five such groups which cover the system and include nearly 15,000 members, about half the number of employés. The local club is, however, the largest club by far, and it is composed of fourteen member groups from the various local offices of the road.

Present officers, aside from Mr. Griff and Mr. Piper: Vice presidents, A. C. Strunjak, P. F. Caffery, R. D. Ashley, Roger O'Connor, M. B. Benjamin, C. D. Burton, and W. J. Lynch; secretary, A. W. MacMaster; correspondent, Miss Nellie Young. The fourteen local chairmen are A. H. Scott, Mr. Lynch, James Kirk, Miss Annie L. Del Corral, F. G. Neuman, William Watson Jr., Walter O'Keefe, H. R. Brown, Mr. Dorsey, O. C. Hinkle, L. M. Mann, W. P. Stewart, F. V. Cassidy, and J. P. Flanagan.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 18.

Repair any lawn trees that may have deep bark cuts from the lawn mower, automobile collision, or other accidents. With a sharp knife cut all around the exposed and mutilated part; cut just through the living, cambium layer until the entire surface is clean and smooth. Cover the surface with coal tar antiseptic to prevent moisture from entering the wound. Eventually the wound will be grown over with new layers.

One reason that many newly planted trees dies is lack of water. Soak the ground and mulch with strawy substances, grass clippings, or hay.

Tuesday, July 19.

To force dahlias to produce as large blooms as possible, remove all but two stems, stake these up securely, and disbud. Bonemeal may be applied. Keep the lateral growths picked out to force the strength of the plant into the production of flowers.

Keep the garden shallowly cultivated.

Cut the old flower stems of the delphinium to within four inches of the ground for a new crop of flowers.

The sunplant (portulaca) may yet be sown in a sunny spot. Try sacking a few flowers when good seeds of a special variety are wanted. Sacking prevents the bees from carrying pollen from flower to flower and bringing in poor sorts.

Wednesday, July 20.

Keep the seeds removed from all annuals and prolong their season of bloom.

Propagate poinsettia by taking a heel with each cutting; that is, remove a slight part of the stem where the cutting joins it. Cover with newspapers or cheesecloth for a few days.

It is an excellent time to start a new strawberry bed. Plant those with perfect flowers, or a staminate and pistilate variety together.

Thursday, July 21.

Divide and transplant the German iris. Clean the cured bulbous stock, such as the tulip, hyacinth, and narcissus to prepare for planting them in the fall.

Friday, July 22.

An application of plant food to potatoes will aid in producing a bumper crop, and much larger potatoes. Root crops find potash of superior value.

Artificial watering is a necessity during a dry season, but when once begun must be kept up. Cultivate after each watering when the soil is fit. To increase the size of onions, break or bend the tops to the ground.

Saturday, July 23.

Try potting a few freesias for next winter's bloom. The gloxinias and tuberous rooted begonias will require resting after they flower. Gradually withhold water, but give abundant air. Store in dry sand until planting time.

Don't use nicotine preparations for eating insects. These leaf eaters must be killed with a stomach poison, such as arsenate of lead. Use nicotine for green fly or aphids.

More than 100 south side girls from 8 to 16 years old have responded enthusiatically to THE TRIBUNE's invitation to take part in the huge dance pageant which will be a feature of the third Chicagoland Music Festival to be held Aug. 20 in Soldiers' field.

They will be given their final steps for the pageant dance during their third rehearsal at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Beachview club, 1725 East 53d street. Miss Ethel Morgan is grooming the lassies to be at "tops" just a month hence.

The dance will be given at approximately 9:30 o'clock

Section Set Aside for Parents.

Announcement was made last week that a section of seats will be set aside for parents and friends of the girls in the dance.

Additional entries may still be sent in, and these may include suburban girls as well as those living inside Chicago.

Sopranos head the south side vocal entries, outnumbering by far those of any other classification. Preliminary contests will be held in different parts of the city, winners to meet in the Chicago finals.

GIRLS COMPETE THIS WEEK IN 3 TRACK CONTESTS

Feminine Ball Teams to Start Tourney.

Girls will hold the sport spotlight this week in the south parks. Not only will there be three track meets for the feminine athletes, but the senior girls will start playing their elimination tourney in playground ball tomorrow evening.

The junior track meet, for girls up to 14 years old, will be run off at 2 o'clock Tuesday at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue. The only three events on the program are the 50 yards dash, running high jump, and running broad jump, and entrants are limited to participation in the dash and one field event. Two qualification trials will be given in the jumps.

Joint Meet at Ogden Saturday.

Ogden park also will be the place of the intermediate and senior meets, which will be held together, beginning at 2 o'clock Saturday. The age division between the two classes is 17. Both senior and intermediate girls will be permitted to compete in one track event, one field event, and the relay.

Events carded for the intermediates are high jump, broad jump, 50 yard dash, and 440 yard relay. Senior events will be 50 and 100 yard dashes, high jump, broad jump, basketball throw for distance, and 440 yard relay.

Palmer park last week was announced as the winner of the junior girls' playgorund ball championship Palmer defeated Davis square, Mark White square, and Lyman Trumbull park in the round robin final by scores of 25-9, 18-3, and 25-10, respectively. Davis was second and White third.

GARDEN EXPERTS INDORSE TRIBUNE HONOR ROLL PLAN

Indorsement of THE TRIBUNE's plan of selecting Chicagoland amateur flower gardens for its honor roll of outstanding gardens was voted Thursday in a meeting of the Men's Garden Club of Chicago at the Great Northern hotel.

Several members of the club already have gained a place on the permanent honor roll through their home gardening efforts and the members have pledged themselves to select gardens in their communities which they believe deserve recognition. Another contest for fall judging will be announced in August, according to Paul Potter, garden editor of THE TRIBUNE, who addressed the club.

Methods of scoring, by which an entrant competes against a standard rather than in competition with his neighbors, were explained by Mr. Potter. In illustrating his talk a large Chicagoland map, on which all of the 160 gardens so far selected are designated by numbered pins, was exhibited to the club. O. V. Morgan, president of the group, declared that members of the club were heartily in accord with THE TRIBUNE's plan for encouraging a "Chicago beautiful."

NEW HOME READY FOR COUNTY FAIR OPENING AUG. 5

Horse Show, Dog Show to Lure City Folk.

The Cook County Fair association will put on a show this year that will embody all the features and time honored customs of the good old days when a county fair was something to talk about for weeks to come.

While there will be many of the modern exhibits at the fair, there nevertheless will be much to appeal to the farmer and the farmer's wife. The tiller of the soil and the cattle raiser will more than come into his own at this year's fair. There are premiums for all live stock, cattle, sheep, and swine. The prize winners and the runners up will parade each afternoon and night before the crowds with a grand parade on the final night of the fair, which opens Aug. 5 and continues through Aug. 14.

Prizes for Farm Wives, Too.

This will be the farmers' big end of the show, but their women folk will come in for equally important rôles.

Premiums are being offered for every known work of the farm housewife, from fancy needlework to the culinary arts. These will include prize jams, jellies, preserves, bread making, and cake baking.

There also will be featured boys' and girls' gardens and flower beds. The finest exhibits of grains, vegetable, and other produce will come in for honors.

This year's fair will be held at the association's new home, a 65 acre tract at North avenue and River road. Work on completion of the new grounds is being rushed and everything will be in spic and span order for the opening.

Horse Show and Dog Show.

For the cityfied folk the fair will have all the attractions of the big protentious show. A horse show that, it is said, will rival any held in the central states, is one of the outstanding features and there will be trotting and pacing races over the new half mile track both day and night. The oval will be illuminated with huge electric flare lights.

The amusement program includes a free daredevil show and concerts by competing choral societies.

A dog show will feature the two closing days of the fair, Aug. 13 and 14. This bench show will be sponsored by the Chicago Kennel club under the sanction of the American Kennel club, ruling body in the dog show world.

BRYN MAWR CLUB STAY AT HOMES HAVE PARTIES

Start New Bridge Tourney; Chairmen Appointed.

The South Bryn Mawr Wednesday club is one of those organizations which has taken advantage of the fact that more members than usual are staying at home this summer. Although the club is officially closed for the summer, hardly a week has passed without some gay social gathering of its membership.

The second bridge tournament of the summer season was launched Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, 1740 East 84th place. The first, conducted by Mrs. A. Lyden, retiring president, brought such a tidy sum to the treasury that a second was decided upon. Mrs. E. A. Lygene, Mrs. J. H. Struss, Mrs. William Davidson and Mrs. J. Stevens, 8101 Euclid avenue, were hostesses at the first series.

Chairman Announced by New President.

Mrs. J. Henry Debus, president, 1751 East 78th street, has announced the appointment of chairmen of departments and standing committees for the ensuing year.

Department heads include Mrs. Lyden, public welfare; Mrs. C. F. Koehler, fine arts; Mrs. C. Coombes, home and education; Mrs. J. Sullivan, American citizenship.

Chairmen of standing committees are: Mrs. Struss, house; Mrs. Gary Harris, luncheon; Mrs. W. E. Zobel, membership; Mrs. J. L. Sternberg, door; Mrs. R. D. Melick, finance and revision.

West Lawn Club Picnics at Hammond Beach.

The West Lawn Woman's club held its annual picnic at Hammond beach Wednesday. The members and their children left early in the morning, and remained until late in the evening. Husbands joined them for supper and the evening program. Mrs. John J. Farmer was chairman of the affair, which is the only one scheduled for the summer.

Marquette Manor Women Holding Series of Parties.

The Marquette Manor Woman's club held a card party Wednesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Edward Kalley, 8154 South Morgan street. Prizes were awarded at each table and there were refreshments. Two more card parties are planned for the summer, one on Aug. 18 and another on Sept. 8. Mrs. Irvin Risser, ways and means chairman, is sponsoring the series for the benefit of the club treasury.

Ivanhoe Garden Club to Form Junior Auxiliary Tuesday.

The Ivanhoe Garden club's junior auxiliary will be organized at the Tuesday afternoon session of the playground school which is meeting twice weekly in the village park. Miss Madeline Milliken, teacher of the school, will instruct the forty-seven youngsters in gardening activities until the school closes in August.

Then a junior flower show will be held to give the children a chance to show what they have learned. Flowers and vegetables grown by some of the juvenile garden enthusiasts will be exhibited in the show. The group ranges from 6 to 14 in age. Mrs. Frank Lindelof, sponsor of the juniors, hopes through them to reach some of their parents and bring them into the senior club.

FEW RECTORS ON SOUTH SIDE WILL TAKE VACATIONS

The south side's Episcopal clergymen are, for the most part staying home this summer rather than going away on vacations.

The Rev. Walter C. Bihler, rector of Christ church, 65th street and Woodlawn avenue, expects to conduct services all summer though taking leave of the city in the middle of the week on several occasions. A like plan is being followed by the Rev William D. McLean of St. Mark's church, 4437 Drexel boulevard, and by the Rev. H. R. Brinker of St. Bartholomew's in Englewood.

Except for one Sunday this month, the Rev. J. R. Pickells expects to be at his pulpit all summer at Old Trinity church, 26th street and Michigan avenue.

While the Rev. Edward S. White expects to be away from the Church of the Redeemer during August, the longest of the vacations is being taken by Dr. George H. Thomas, who is spending the summer in New England with Mrs. Thomas. His pulpit at St. Paul's is in charge of the Rev. Donald W. Crawford, his assistant. The Rev. Carl A. G. Heiligstedt of St. John's church in Kewanee, Ill., will take the Rev. Mr. White's charge in August.

GIVE RECITALS AT CHURCH WHILE PASTOR IS GONE

Organ recitals which have taken the place of regular services at the First Unitarian church 1174 East 57th street, will continue at 11 o'clock Sunday mornings until Sept. 25 when Dr. von Ogden Vogt will occupy the pulpit again. Robert L. Sanders, organist, this morning will include in his program Bach's "Prelude and Fugue, C Major," Dubois' "Chant Pastorale," and Boellmann's "Suite Gothique." Three Bach works will constitute a major part of next Sunday's concert. They are "Prelude, E Minor," "Fugue, G Minor," and "Der Tag der Ist So Freudenreich." Tschaikowski's "Andante Cantabile" also is to be included.

South Side Old Time Dance Club Plans Picnic

The South Side Old Time Dance club will hold an old fashioned picnic next Sunday at Ryan's woods, 87th street and Western avenue. Lamb, vice president, 8811 Dante avenue, is in charge of reservations.

Last week Mr. Harrington received a commission appointing him a colonel on the governor's staff. Now his friends are calling him Col. Harrington.

VIRGIL K. BROWN, PLAY EXPERT, ON TOUR TO COAST

With trailer hooked on behind the family automobile Virgil K. Brown, director of playgrounds and recreation in the south parks, set out for California a week ago with his wife and three children. It is his first vacation in five years and "V. K." expects to be gone for about six weeks.

Despite its being his vacation the park official will drop in to inspect national parks on his leisurely camping way across the continent.

Nor will it be strictly a vacation when Mr. Brown reaches the Pacific coast. In addition to attending the Olympic games in Los Angeles he will read a paper before the International Recreation congress to be assembled there at the time. This paper will be the principal one for the United States during the congress.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THOSE fairy [or fish] tale picture postal cards are slipping in from the north woods these days. You can be expecting them any time from the John Leanders, 10227 Racine avenue, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olson, who are bothering the finny tribes of Minnesota. Lewis Szelestey, 8217 Saginaw avenue, also is taking up a two weeks' fishing residence up Minnehaha way. But the story to date comes in person from Bert Tewberry, 7738 South Shore drive. After dispatching bales of cards saying he could tell plenty about his fish triumphs, but wouldn't because he wouldn't be believed, Bert broke down the other day and modestly told the boys around Simon's market, where he works, about one he landed that weighed slightly more than 80 pounds.

* *

Habits of a dozen years' standing are not easily broken, nor should they be, in the opinion of Prof. and Mrs. A. W. Slocum, 5549 Dorchester avenue, who are again at their Bay View [Mich.] summer home.

* *

The many friends of Lois Hawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hawes, 8447 Paxton avenue, won't be seeing her for a year now. Lois has taken off on a trip to the golden west and isn't to return until she has finished her freshman year at the University of Southern California. She was graduated from Hyde Park High school in June.

* *

HARRY MAY is careful these days about those to whom he gives a "light." Harry resides in Elkhart, Ind., and has been a switchman for the New York Central for some time, but he says his strangest experience was a week ago at 95th street when a stranger approached, asked for a match, lighted his cigaret and then stuck a gun into Harry's ribs, departing with about $2.

* *

One of the neighbors has given us a bit of the "lowdown" on the Sunday habits of John E. Hudson Jr., 7129 Merrill avenue, loop insurance mogul. Believe it or no, Johnny usually spends Sunday mornings writing insurance. And then in the afternoon he and his charming missus are to be seen taking a turn with the baby carriage on 71st street—sometimes all the way between Stony Island avenue and South Shore drive.

* *

The Ernest O. Wollans of 6243 Kimbark avenue are on their way to Spitzbergen, where Ernest will busy himself studying the cosmic ray under Prof. Arthur H. Compton.

* *

Congratulations are in order for the Richard R. De Youngs of 10834 Eggleston avenue. Ask any of the guests if their silver wedding anniversary wasn't a dandy. Golden next!

* *

* *

There's nothing slow about Bagley auxiliary No. 34 of the United States War Veterans. One of their members, Mrs. Una McGrath, 8429 Muskegon avenue, has been elected president of the Illinois department, while Alice Hufton is corresponding secretary and Dorothy A. Robinson is treasurer. S. M. Enis auxiliary of Roseland came in for a share of the glory in the selection of Mrs. Maude Rodey as recording secretary.

* *

Hyde Parkers are making use of their homes even during vacations these days. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sergel and their three sons, 5343 Dorchester avenue, have friends occupying their home while they are driving through the east. Likewise, the home of Prof. and Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed, 5706 Woodlawn avenue, is home for the Donald Riddles while the Goodspeeds are vactioning.

* *

Our good friend Art Winter, Hyde Park's Kiwanian clothier, is all set to open a campaign against barber poles that aren't fastened securely to buildings. Thieves grabbed a handy pole the other day and used it to smash Art's establishment and make away with several men's suits.

HOSTESS

Mrs. Edward M. Kalley, 8154 South Morgan street, president of the Marquette Manor Woman's club, was hostess to her club Wednesday afternoon at a benefit card party at her home under the auspices of the ways and means committee.

PLAY LEADERS, ON WAY WEST, WILL SEE SOUTH PARKS

A group of recreation leaders bound for the International Recreation congress to be held at Los Angeles during the Olympic games will be met and breakfasted at Union station this morning by Chicago park officials.

After tourning the west parks and Lincoln park in the morning, they will be given a glimpse of Chicago's skyline from Grant park and spend most of the afternoon inspecting the south park system. They will be luncheon guests of the south parks at the South Shore Country club. Prior to this they will be shown the Field museum, Shedd aquarium, Adler planetarium, the rising World's Fair buildings, and the Museum of Science and Industry. Afterwards they will drive through Jackson and Washington parks and conclude the trip by inspecting the facilities and work at Gage park.

South Side Young Men to Be Ordained Today

Two south side young men will be ordained by Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal church at a service to be held in St. Luke's church, Evanston, at 11 o'clock this morning. They are: The Rev. William D. McLean Jr., deacon-in-charge of St. John's church, Flossmoor, and John Strachan, lay-reader-in-charge of Holy Cross-Immanuel church, 5843 South Morgan street.

WHO'S WHO ON SOUTH SIDE

Standing more than 6 feet, personable Samuel J. Aurelius is the new leader of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club. Last year he was the vice president. Though a comparative novice among civic and service club men (he has been a Lion only three years), Mr. Aurelius has come to the fore rapidly. A relative of Marcus Aurelius, South Chicago banking leader of a few years ago, he has followed the same calling and earned his own recognition. Reared in South Chicago, he was graduated from grade and high school there and first entered banking thereafter further schooling at Armour Tech. Three years ago he went to the I-C Bank and Trust company in Hyde Park and now is vice president and cashier.

ST. ANNE NOVENA OPENS TONIGHT AT ST. LAURENCE

Services Every Evening Until Feast Day.

The annual novena in devotion to St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, will open at 7:45 o'clock this evening at St. Laurence church, 1340 East 72d street. This is one of the best known novenas in the south shore district and will be conducted by the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. McGuire, pastor at St. Laurence.

Services will continue every evening up to July 26, the feast day of St. Anne, which is universally observed by Roman Catholic churches. The church's highly prized relic of St. Anne will be exposed for public veneration each evening after the services, at which time almost as many persons outside of the parish are expected as are members.

Outdoor Frolic Planned.

An outdoor summer frolic, something new in recent times at St. Laurence, will be sponsored by the Altar and Rosary society of the church at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening, after the novena service.

Arrangements are being made to rope off 72d street for a half block east of Dorchester avenue, so that the party may overflow from the school yard into the street, where there will be dancing. There will be games and all sorts of refreshments in the school yard.

Mrs. Herrmann Is Chairman.

Mrs. Joseph F. Herrmann, 6743 Cornell avenue, is general chairman and said plans are being made to serve more than 500 persons. There will be ice cream, cake, and soft drinks. In the event of unfavorable weather, the frolic will be moved indoors.

Assisting Mrs. Herrmann with arrangements are Mrs. Clark E. Dilger, president of the society; Mrs. Thomas Walsh and Mrs. John R. Osborne, dance; Mrs. Edward A. Schroeling, Mrs. Thomas Conolloy, Mrs. Joseph Markby, Mrs. L. E. Friedheim, Mrs. Mary Schultz, Mrs. Edward J. Shanahan, and Mrs. Sophie Kinney, refreshments; and Miss Catherine Ryan, games. The Rev. Fr. P. J. Ronayne, assistant rector of the church, is moderator for the society.

Two weeks ago Altar and Rosary society members, also interested in the Little Company of Mary hospital, raised a purse of $250 among the parishioners and presented it to help the sisters carry on their work at the hospital.

'CRADLE' ORATOR VETERAN OF 7,000 LECTURES AT 12

Pink cheeked, blue eyed, and not unmindful of his talents as boy prodigy philosopher, Jack Barry is in the midst of a series of nightly lectures in St. Paul's library, 6010 Dorchester avenue. Jack stands just 4 feet 6 inches, weighs a bit over 70 pounds, and is 12 years old. Nine of these years have been occupied with about 7,000 lectures, and his mother, Mrs. John Barry, says he stood on a chair to give his first speech in Denver at the age of 18 months. Two years ago he spoke in the Hollywood bowl before 75,000 persons.

The lad has been hailed variously as evangelist, prophet, parson, and philosopher in his continuous travels. He prefers the latter designation and says he never studies or rehearses—speaks by inspiration. He has two ambitions—to be the world's greatest speaker and have the world's greatest library. He never intends to marry; books shall be his wife. Jack also has calculated the "end of the world" to come about 3000 A. D.

Mother and son have no home, living where he speaks. Their present address is 6147 University avenue. Jack was born in Sioux City, Ia.

10th Ward Democrat Club Wait Real Golf Battle

The Tenth Ward Democratic club will hold a golf outing Wednesday on the Burnham Woods golf course with a dinner in the evening. A probable added attraction is a renewal of the links rivalry of the South Chicago police and firemen. Capt. William F. Russell and Capt. Daniel Gilbert recently beat Division Marshal Anthony Mullaney and Capt. Thomas Noonan, fire chiefs, and the return engagement is quite agreeable to all concerned. Victor Schlaeger, Democratic candidate for congress from the Second district, is general chairman of the outing.

PROMISING

Miss Ethel Murphey last week was chosen the south park girl athlete of "greatest promise" and has been awarded a year scholarship to the American College of Physical Education, 1019 Diversey parkway. Half of the scholarship is donated by the college and half by south park alumnae of the college. Miss Murphey, who resides at 7519 Normal avenue, is a tall, lithe blonde. She intends to teach physical education and was "tickled to death" when Herbert G. Reynolds, assistant superintendent of playgrounds and recreation, told her she had been picked by the woman instructors of the parks. Miss Murphey has been playing around Hamilton park for a dozen years, starring as a high jumper as well as in tennis, volley ball, and baseball. She was graduated from Calumet High school in June and while there won a posture contest and a tennis title.

SOUTH SIDE MAIL VETERANS QUIT WITH PENSIONS

Chicago Lawn Workers Give Party.

MICHAEL SARSFIELD.

Eleven south siders were among the veterans who closed long careers in the postal service Sunday. They were retired on pensions, some of them to enjoy a long and varied vacation, others to take up new work in other fields.

Joseph P. Cody, 8354 South Elizabeth street, assistant superintendent of the stockyards station, was ranking man of the group. Mr. Cody, who had been in the service since 1901, all but the first five months at the same station, had been a foreman for 12 years before his promotion as assistant superintendent two years ago. At 69 years of age he hopes to begin a new career, possibly in insurance or real estate.

Recalls Start in 1881.

The longest record of service was that of Albert G. Wainwright, 6915 Stony Island avenue. His career began in 1881, and save for a break for two years from 1887 to 1889, he served continuously up to Sunday. He was a scheme corrector in the office of the superintendent of mails.

Michael Sarsfield, 6333 South Albany avenue, who was retired Sunday as special clerk at Chicago Lawn station, was a guest at a farewell party given to him Wednesday afternoon by fellow employés. He was presented with a humidor and reading chair. Mr. Sarsfield began his career in 1894, and had served at the 51st street, Ogden Park, and Clearing stations, as well as Chicago Lawn.

Woman Employed Since 1898.

Others retired and the dates of their entrance into the service were James H. Weller, 6936 South Artesian avenue, special clerk, 1903; Samuel Granick, inquiry clerk, 1894; Timothy Foley, 8809 South Racine avenue, check room worker; Miss Elizabeth Fitzgerald, 1432 East 66th place, mail order clerk, 1898.

Noble Cain Will Present Lament on Net.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A poll a few months ago on the question of what musical selection one would choose to hear if one had but two hours to live revealed "St. Louis Blues" the first choice among approximately 100 persons approached. Tomorrow evening radio offers an opportunity of hearing this jazz lament, sung by a heavenly chorus—with no perils involved.

The familiar melody (if it be melody) of "St. Louis Blues" will be presented by the Chicago A Cappella choir of 80 voices, under the direction of Nobel Cain, and Harold Stokes, directing his symphonic jazz orchestra, on the contented hour from 7 to 7:30 p. m., on an NBC network. This fantasy, arranged for chorus and orchestra, purports to represent the philosophizing of an old Negro sitting on the levee watching the Mississippi roll by.

With vaudeville restored there, Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey, husband and wife radio team, are heading the inaugural program at the State-Lake this week. . . . Alice Joy, deep throated singer of radio, tops the bill this week at the Palace. . . . Vincent Lopez soon heads for a vaudeville and big movie house tour again. . . . Stanley, the Great Dane of Charlie Agnew's orchestra, insists on spelling his last name Jacobsen. . . . That is the correct Copenhagen way, says the 200 pound tenor, who comes from Milwaukee, however, where he was noted as a football-track-basketball star. . . . It now develops that Irene Taylor, the contralto, is the original "it" girl. . . . And her initials, I. T., are the conclusive evidence, according to Agnew.

For midsummer week-end music try these:

The Saturday and Sunday evening Lewisohn Stadium concerts over W-G-N, best on the air.

JAMES MELTON.

Paul Whiteman's rhythm serenades from 5 to 6 p. m. Sunday. [Tuning in this concert forces you to miss Charlie Agnew's Twilight Musical, a fine Sunday feature. However, you may catch Agnew in a half hour from 1:30 to 2 on NBC with a program that is maintaining an unusually high standard of performance.] Paul deserves added applause for presenting Tenor James Melton with his outfit. What a team! And Paul is adding Virginia Rea.

Ralph Ginsburg and his matchless Palmer house ensemble on W-G-N, a sweet relief from the drivel that rides the July air waves.

Frankie Masters, an effervescent neophyte on ether lane. Rippling dance tunes, with plenty of rhythm, however, and entertaining novelties. Frankie did not make the mistake of trying to put his movie stage band stuff on the air.

Wayne King, W-G-N dance band leader, now touring the middle west, begins a month's vacation next Sunday. . . With his bride, the former Dorothy Janis of the movies, the waltz king-aviator will fly to California. . . . Rudy Vallee, realizing, perhaps, that crooning can not go on forever, is studying law with Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law school of Boston as his tutor. . . . There is nothing romantic about writing songs, says Delos Owen, W-G-N's musical director, who wrote several successful musical comedies. . . . Inspiration is so much blah, he feels. . . . Here's how his "Sweet Lady" came about. . . . Del had run down to New York to sell Sophie Tucker some songs. . . . But the tepid season had struck the torch mamma, and she evinced no interest. . . . So Del, to keep the trip from being a total loss, found a chap with money, and a lyricist, and wrote "Sweet Lady," which forthwith had a Broadway run of more than a year and did a local turn of three months. . . . Alex Gray, now a featured network baritone, played the leading rôle.

From Mildred Hemstreet, a patient at the Cook County Tuberculosis hospital, Harrison and Wood streets, comes this plea: "There are twelve girls here in one ward with T. B. We have to stick around a long time lying in bed, and we have no form of amusement. Maybe you know of some one who has a radio set they will give us."

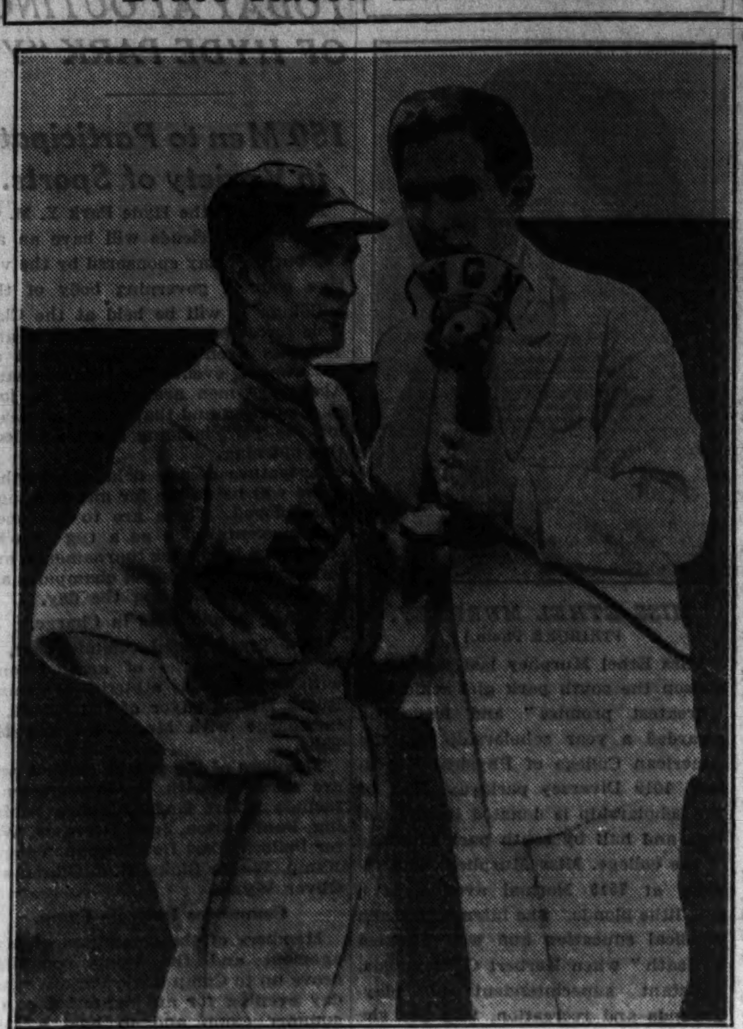
We ask for volunteers. If you have an extra receiver not in use, communicate with the Radio Editor of THE TRIBUNE. These girls need a direct current set, or a transformer with a regular A. C. set, as the hospital furnishes its own electricity.

Phil Levant, featured recently on W-G-N with his Royal Revelers, tried to outfly the stork on July 9. . . . Advised that morning in St. Paul that his wife had been taken to a maternity hospital he immediately took a plane for Chicago. . . . On arriving he found that he was the father of a seven pound boy. . . . After spending several hours with mother and child he sped back to the twin cities, reaching there in time for the evening session at the Plantation club, where he is playing. . . . Fannie Brice is slated for the air this fall. . . . David Guion of the cowboy song fame is vacationing in Texas and plans to bring back some more of those songs of the range.

Bernie [Best Dressed] Cummins, anti-nicotine and anti-gin maestro, has received letters from all of the 48 states complimenting him on his W-G-N programs. . . . Notes from Arizona, Massachusetts and Florida completed the cycle. . . . The Aces are cruising leisurely to California via Panama canal. . . . Leila Hyams is to take the feminine lead in "The Big Boadcast," featuring Bing Crosby. . . . Frank Tuttle is directing the film.

Bob Elson is a speedy driver and some of his more conservative passengers have long predicted that his coupé would come to grief. . . . These prophecies came true in an unexpected manner last week while he had his car parked. . . . A bunch of high school youngsters, in a hurry, smeared the car all over the landscape. . . . Bob just made it by taxi for the first play at Wrigley field. . . . Last Monday more misfortune followed. . . . Scuffling with a friend, he fell and his arm passed through a window, severely cutting his right hand.

Brave Rabbit Braves Mike



Rabbit Maranville, veteran infielder of the Boston Braves, took time out at practice last week to talk to W-G-N's baseball audience from the playing field at Cubs' park. Bob Elson, who presents baseball stars in informal interviews before detailing the baseball game for the fans, asked the Rabbit several question about his own playing and that of his team mates.

Parade of Stars

More major league baseball players are to be heard on the W-G-N baseball broadcasts this week. Because of the double header today, no speaker will be presented, but tomorrow Bill Walker, the pitching star of the New York Giants, will appear with Bob Elson in an informal interview for W-G-N listeners. On Tuesday, Stanley Hack, the young infield star of the Cubs, will be presented, while Wednesday's star will be Mel Ott, Giant outfielder.

On Saturday when the White Sox return to Chicago to play Cleveland, Eddie Morgan, the first baseman of the Indians, will be interviewed by Elson.

Bob continues to answer questions sent in by the fans before the game broadcasts which start each day at 2:45 p. m.

ORPHAN ANNIE OBSERVES 500TH AIR APPEARANCE

300 Performances on Network.

FRANK DAHM.

One of radio's most popular children's programs, "Little Orphan Annie," heard nightly at 5:45 o'clock over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel; WENR, and an NBC network, celebrated a birthday last week. The date was Tuesday, July 10—the auspicious occasion the 500th performance of the feature on the air. It also marked more than 300 performances on the chain.

Thousands of youngsters who heard Annie and Joe Corntassel discussing the mysterious footprints they found on the front porch of Big Bear lodge, the deserted summer resort where they are spending their vacation, in the day's adventure last Tuesday, probably noted the thinly veiled excitement of the pair. And it was more than professional excitement.

Only a few moments before the day's adventures went on they had been presented with wrist watches to commemorate the occasion and 11 year old Shirley Bell and 13 year old Allan Barruck, who play the two parts, could scarcely wait to finish the episode so that they might show their gifts to admiring friends and fellow performers.

Other veterans of the feature are Jerry O'Meara, who plays the part of Mr. Silo, and Henrietta Tedro, who enacts the rôle of Mrs. Silo. Also congratulated was Frank Dahm, author and director of the skit, who has written each of the 500 episodes,

Robert Leigh in Recital with Grant on Tuesday

Robert Leigh, tenor, who came to radio from the stage where he sang leading rôles in "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time," will be heard at 2:15 Thursday on W-G-N in recital with Allan Grant, pianist. Mr. Leigh will sing "Song of Grusia," "L'Amour Toujour L'Amour," and "Harp with the Broken String."

FATHER AND SON

Pierre Andre's heart interest in this picture is four year old David Bryant Andre, whose golden curls and blue eyes make a fine contrast to his father's black hair and brown eyes. In a recent W-G-N broadcast Pierre told Jane Ace that he wasn't married. David was listening and, turning to his mother, he shook his head solemnly and said, "Daddy is too married."

SCHUBERT WORK TO BE SYMPHONY FEATURE TONIGHT

Van Hoogstraaten Directs Lewisohn Concert.

The "Unfinished Symphony" in B minor by Franz Schubert will be featured by William van Hoogstraten and the orchestra of the New York Philharmonic society during the Lewisohn stadium concert, to be broadcast over W-G-N and a nation-wide Columbia network from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock tonight.

As intimate and sincere as anything he ever composed, this symphony reveals all of the finer Schubert—his tenderness, passion, and melancholy, his magical charm, and his sense of drama. It is a free fantasia, passing in mood from brooding melancholy to blissful dreams. The famous cello theme in the first movement is considered by numerous critics the most charming melody in the literature of music, and the second movement is replete with almost equally delightful themes.

Mendelssohn Numbers to Be Given.

Mendelssohn's Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will follow the Schubert selection. Always a devoted student of Shakespeare, Mendelssohn succeeded in this composition in bringing the great dramatist's work authentically into the realm of music. Much of the charm and gayety and romantic sweetness of the play is to be found in the overture.

In conclusion the orchestra will render the Bacchanale from Wagner's "Tannhauser." Full of the wild passion of untamed natural forces, the composition depicts the feverish dance of nymphs, naiads, and bacchantes against the weird background of a mystic grotto.

De Paul Head on W-G-N.

The Rt. Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of De Paul university, will talk at noon tomorrow on W-G-N as the first speaker of the week on the Midday service. The Rev. Father Corcoran will speak on "Religion's Master Passion," the topic for the week. Other speakers for the week are Dr. Daniel Kurtz, president elect of Bethany Biblical seminary, on Tuesday; Prof. William D. Schermerhorn, head of the department of church ministry, Garrett Biblical institute, on Wednesday; Dr. David Rosenbaum, Rabbi of Temple Judea, Thursday; Dr. Graham Taylor, founder and head of Chicago Commons, Friday, and Dr. John L. Dickson, director of the Midday service who closes the series on Saturday.

NORA LANGHORNE, LEFTY FLYNN ON W-G-N FEATURE

"Lefty" Flynn, Yale football star of yesteryear, and his wife, the former Nora Langhorne, youngest of the five daughters of a famous southern family, have been signed to appear as the regular featured soloists on the "Midsummer Nights" broadcasts on W-G-N and the Columbia network at 7:30 p. m. Thursdays.

Their success as singers on the program last Thursday resulted in their engagement for the entire series.

Maurice Bennett Flynn is his baptismal name, but it was as plain Lefty Flynn that he sped the pulse of Yale rooters with his gridiron activities a number of years ago. His name is inscribed among the football immortals of the Blue.

Mrs. Flynn is a member of one of Virginia's most illustrious families—the Langhornes. She is the youngest of the celebrated Langhorne quintet of beautiful sisters. Nora's sisters are Lady Astor, Mrs. T. Moncure Perkins, Mrs. Robert H. Brand, and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, the original "Gibson girl."

On their first broadcast the other evening, Mrs. Flynn sang "Beautiful Lady," a song which she wrote during the war, and with which she delighted the soldiers at the camps overseas.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Flynn, or "Lefty" and Nora, the "Midsummer Nights" broadcasts will include an orchestra under the direction of Jack Berger and different guest entertainers each week.

SALERNO TO SING SONGS WRITTEN BY W-G-N FOLK

Returning from a three weeks' vacation, Lawrence Salerno, popular baritone, will be heard again in "Troubadors" at 7:45 Tuesday in a request program composed of selections written by members of W-G-N's staff. Opening the program with "Side Street," the theme song of the musical comedy, "Cheer Up," by Delos Owen, conductor of the W-G-N orchestra. Mr. Salerno will sing as his other numbers "My Only One," by Mrs. Gaston du Moulin; "Always Mine," by Allan Grant; "Ma and Pa," by Carl Hoefle, and his own composition, "Uder a Mexican Moon." The orchestral number will be "Angelita," by Fred Meinken, W-G-N pianist and music librarian.

'AVENGING IKON' TO BE FEATURE OF CRIME CLUB

"The Avenging Ikon," a murder mystery by Charles Barry, will be presented by the Crime club, from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday over W-G-N and the Columbia network. The instruments of the tragedy are two religious ikons, or Madonna pictures. One man is found dead in London and another on the continent, and each had been trying to take an ikon from the wall. It is said that they are avenging ikons, bringing death to all who misused them. Laurence Gilmartin, Scotland Yard superintendent who appears frequently in Barry's detective stories, is faced with a perplexing problem, but he finally brings the secret of the ikons into the open and brings the criminal to justice.

Ross Has a Birthday.

During the week-end David Ross, veteran Columbia announcer, confessed that he had just passed his 37th birthday. The anniversary was marked by nothing more than his regular nine hour shift at the microphones.

Gracie Ponders a Hard One

BURNS AND ALLEN TELL HOW THEY GOT THAT WAY

East and West Unite to Form Team.

GRACIE—Some day when you come to the house I'll fix you some of those little snobs on toast.

GEORGE—Snobs on toast? What is that?

GEORGE—Well, if that's a snob, what's a squab?

They're billed on W-G-N and CBS with the Lombardos as Burns and Allen, George and Gracie respectively—but in private life they are husband and wife, gag man and gag woman, and [although they will deny it] incorrigible romanticists.

From East and West.

They were born on opposite sides of the continent—Gracie in San Francisco, George in New York. Gracie was sent to a convent, after which training the irrepressible young lady studied dancing with her sisters—Allen senior acting as matire de dance. The first time she appeared before the footlights was in the Hippodrome, San Francisco.

As for George Burns, his first performance was at a political dinner with the Pee Wee quartet, which three youngsters and himself had organized. They split $5 afterwards. A singer at the same dinner, who also received $5 for his single, was a young chap, 15—one Eddie Cantor.

After a few years of many sided experience George teamed up with Sid Gary, who later became a star in his own right. After playing 30 weeks in small theaters, they finally hit "big time."

Get Together in Jersey.

George and Gracie got together in Union Hill, N. J., several years later. Gracie had an act which wasn't working, and she was searching for a partner; George had an act which was working, but he needed a partner. Gracie's act would have cost $150 to put on—so they used George's. They started together in Boonton, N. J., and played Detroit on their honeymoon.

George shaped the act, at first, for Gracie to ask the questions to which he would deliver a funny answer. George says, of the first day they opened: "She asked the questions and people laughed, and I answered them and nobobdy laughed." Thereafter he reversed the routine so that Gracie gave the dumb Dora answers.

DR. W. A. EVANS WILL OPEN CLUB WOMEN'S HOUR

For the third successive year the Woman's City club will present a series of educational programs over W-G-N. The feature will be heard at 11:10 a. m. each Thursday starting this week. The club each year sponsors a radio drive for the eradication of weeds in Chicago and the suburban territory as an aid to hay fever victims. Their campaign has met with considerable success. Thursday's speaker will be Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE and conductor of the column "How to Keep Well."

W-G-N MINSTREL BOYS TO VISIT KENOSHA TODAY

The W-G-N Minstrel boys, who have been making personal appearances at theaters in various cities of the middle west, will appear at the Gateway theater in Kenosha, Wis., today. The performers are the same who present the W-G-N minstrel show of the air every Monday evening. Hank Moeller is the interlocutor, Carl Hoefle, the accompanist, while the jokesters and song men are Gordon and Bud Van Dover and Marlin Hurt, the Tom, Dick and Harry trio; Hall Gillies and Jack Spencer.

'SWEETHEARTS OF AIR,' WAYNE KING PHOTOS IN ROTOGRAVURE TODAY

In THE TRIBUNE rotogravure section today are presented pictures, suitable for framing, of Wayne King, popular W-G-N dance maestro, and the "Sweethearts of the Air," May Singhi Breen and Peter DeRose. Next Sunday pictures of the lovely Countess Olga Albani and that perennially popular male quartet, the Revelers, will be printed. Send requests for your favorite radio star to the Radio Pictures Editor, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 1718.

Tonight's "Headline" will be concerned with Joseph Knowles, who plunged into the Maine woods in 1913 to become a primitive man and prove that he could ignore civilization.

Romance of Stage Coach Travel to Be Described

The romance of stage coach travel will be described by Ruth Atterbury Wakefield in her historical talk on W-G-N at 1:30 Wednesday. Mrs. Wakefield will describe the arrival of the Concord stage in Chicago in 1830. She will tell of the stage's dash across log bridges, the four prancing horses, and the driver whose costume was the last word in fashion. Mrs. Wakefield's narration will also include the exciting arrival at Mark Beaubein's Sauganash inn and the final checking in by the driver at the office of Srink & Walker, operators of the stage line.

Neighborhood Theaters

Remember "Merton of the Movies?" It has been filmed again as a talkie and is appearing under the title, "Make Me a Star," at the Avalon theater this week with "Street of Women," and at the Tower theater this week with "New Morals for Old." Stuart Erwin, Will Rogers' double, has the rôle of the small town boy who takes a correspondence course in acting and then goes to Hollywood to do big things. Joan Blondell plays the worldly wise miss who helps the newcomer learn the ropes. You'll laugh with both of them, and perhaps shed a tear or two, if you're that sort of movie goer.

"Each skyscraper in this row of buildings was inspired by a woman," says the builder hero of "Street of Women," and so gives this picture its rather ambiguous title. Allan Dinehart, the builder, is inspired to erect his skyscrapers not by his cold-blooded wife but by Kay Francis, who portrays the "other woman" in gorgeous fashion. Yes, it's one of those "triangle" affairs.

A Film of Young Moderns.

"New Morals for Old" would prove that there's nothing to all this talk about the good old days and that we are as good as our fathers were before us. Robert Young and Margaret Perry are two young moderns, who before they get through come around to their elders' point of view just as they manage to convert their parents' to theirs. Lewis Stone and Laura Hope Crews are the parents.

With "New Morals for Old" at the Capitol theater this week "Unashamed" is being shown. Helen Twelvetrees is a foolish lass who's bent on marrying a scoundrel. Robert Young, her brother, kills him and goes to trial for his life. Lewis Stone and John Miljan contribute the best acting in the piece as defense and prosecuting attorneys, respectively.

Jean Harlow a Titan Steno.

The original platinum blonde goes titian-haired in "The Red Haired Woman!", the picture at the Tivoli theater this week. Jean Harlow may sacrifice one claim to fame in her newest rôle, but as the gold-digging stenographer who mounts to fortune via sex appeal, she retains all her others. Hot stuff, rightly labeled "adults only." Chester Morris, Lewis Stone and Leila Hyams also are in it.

* *

Unusual Films at Maryland.

"Society Girl" and "Roadhouse Murder" are playing at the Maryland theater the first half of the week. In the former James Dunn is a prize fighter with whom a society girl tries to find a new sort of thrill. Peggy Shannon's the girl and Spencer Tracy, the fighter's manager pal.

In "Roadhouse Murder" a crazy kid reporter sets about solving a murder mystery to win recognition to be able to marry sweet young Dorothy Jordan. The trouble he gets himself into through his detective efforts provides the story. Eric Linden, Purnell Pratt and Gustav Von Seyffertitz are in the cast.

HELEN BOARD, EVAN EVANS ON W-G-N FRIDAY

Helen Board, soprano, and Evan Evans, baritone, will be featured soloists during the popular concert to be presented by Andre Kostelanetz from 7:30 to 8 Friday evening over W-G-N and CBS. Kostelanetz also will direct a forty piece jazz and symphonic orchestra and a male chorus.

The following numbers have been chosen: "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," sung by Evan Evans with orchestral accompaniment: the love song, "They Didn't Believe Me," by Helen Board and orchestra; the descriptive piece, "Blue Shadows" of Alter, and a stirring interpretation of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor by the male chorus.

Also the overture to Bizet's opera, "Carmen"; the aria, "Estrellita," sung by Helen Board; a novelty number, "Candy Parade"; Evans singing Burleigh's arrangement of the Negro spiritual, "Deep River," and "Mardi Gras," a symphonic jazz work by Ferde Grofe.

DIXIE JUBILEE GROUP TO SING WITH SHILKRET

The Dixie Jubilee Singers, nationally known for their performance in the musical picture, "Hallelujah," will appear as guests on Nathaniel Shilkret's Week-end hour over W-G-N and Columbia at 8 p. m. Friday.

The famous Negro choristers will offer three spirituals, "Waiting for the Trumpet," "My Lord Is a Man of Woe," and "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho."

Appearing on the same program will be Shilkret's Salon orchestra playing his arrangement of Kalman's "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies" and Jessel's "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers"; the male quartet and Thelma Kessler, soprano, in a medley of Gershwin tunes from "Oh Kay," including "Clap Your Hands," and a surprise quartet-orchestral novelty.

LEON BELASCO, TITO GUIZAR ON "TO THE LADIES"

Leon Belasco and Tito Guizar will share honors as soloists on the presentation of "To the Ladies," to be broadcast over W-G-N and the Columbia network from 8:30 to 8:45 Friday evening. The youthful Mexican tenor will be heard singing a native Spanish selection, "Quieremo Mucho," and the beautiful "Indian Love Call" from the operetta, "Rose Marie." Belasco, whose repertory includes songs in seven languages, will offer the German comedy number, "Ich Steh' im Schnee" [I Stand in the Snow].

Henry Leach to Discuss "Fear of Libel" on CBS

Henry Goddard Leach, editor of the Forum, a national magazine, will discuss the subject, "The Fear of Libel," as guest speaker on "Bill Schudt's Going to Press" program from 4 to 4:15 p. m. Wednesday over the Columbia network.

COL. M'CORMICK TO BE SPEAKER TUESDAY ON NBC BLUE NETWORK

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the guest speaker on Tuesday night on a special broadcast over the Blue network of the National Broadcasting company, with the local outlet station WLS. The broadcast will start at 7 p. m.

The broadcast is being presented by the National Association to Reduce Public Expenditures, of which Col. McCormick is an active member. George W. Rosseiter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the national chairman of the Association to Reduce Public Expenditures, will present Col. McCormick.

More than twenty stations throughout the country will be linked together by the National Broadcasting company engineers to carry Col. McCormick's address.

R. APPLEBERRY HURLS AGAINST CUBS THIS WEEK

The meeting of Rube Appleberry, Tommy Malloy, and the rest of the Panthers with the Chicago Cubs is the highlight of the coming week's episodes of Big Leaguers and Bushers, W-G-N's baseball sketch, broadcast at 9:30 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings.

The fans of the Windy City have been waiting to get a glimpse of the famous Appleberry and his great fast ball, "Hurricane Hannah," and Rube does not disappoint them when he takes his place on the mound against Rogers Hornsby's fighting Cub team.

Rube's love affairs keep pace with his pitching feats and afford the big Posey county hurler many anxious moments. Tommy Malloy continues to burn up the league by his outstanding performances at shortstop and is generally considered the prize rookie of the season.

Bodyguard Is Accepted Rule in Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—This kidnaping and bodyguard business is getting something terrific over at Paramount. As everybody knows, Marlene Dietrich has bodyguards for her daughter and even for herself.

MARLENE DIETRICH.

She was bothered recently when a news photographer took a shot of her followed by her bodyguard on the set. She feared that now the kidnapers would recognize her bodyguard, and was so upset she went home for the day.

Then there is Josef von Sternberg, her director. He also is surrounded by bodyguards. They say those four men in his limousine are bodyguards with guns, and there are more of them on the set.

Groucho Marx said he felt that he was going to have a tough job getting to work at the studio where he and Sternberg both work because Von "had it so picketed with guards." At that, the film celebrities feel it is swanky to be attended by bodyguards, and it certainly keeps the money circulating.

* *

Fond of Cherries.

Tom Mix's horse Tony loves cherries. The rest of the story is that when he eats them it is just as well to keep out of range, for Tony spits the stones 50 feet.

Hollywood is now graced with one "Marche aux Puces" [Flea market], which is the odd name borrowed from Paris for a new and swanky interior decorator's shop out Sunset which advertises itself as specializing in "glass bathrooms and lovers' boudoirs."

The scale at the Paramount theater has everybody amused. On one side, dedicated to the Great Overweights it says: "O, that this too, too solid flesh would melt," and on the other side, for the skinny people, says "Thou hast been weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Mae Marsh and Louis Arms, her husband, have been pestered with divorce rumors. Mae finally got impatient and said: "Louis and I have been married much too long for such foolishness."

* *

Ambitious Young Players.

Stuart Walker's dramatic school at Paramount has four hard working young players learning all about acting. They are Adrienne Ames, George Raft [the delectable gangster killer who in private life never takes a drink], Cary Grant, and Sari Maritza. These four must devote four hours a day to their active training and this is the only studio where such a requirement is made of contract players.

ADRIENNE AMES.

It's too funny—those loving Bannisters who separated because they loved each other are both now stepping like ordinary couples that split up because they hate each other. Harry was at the Derby recently all in dither over a lovely mysterious blonde [any stranger in Hollywood is mysterious], and Ann was lunching across the street at the Tavern with a handsome beau, Ann all in white satin. And take it from a girl who knows what cleaners' bills are, no woman wears all white satin unless something special is up. It looks as if Harry and Ann are just common people after all.

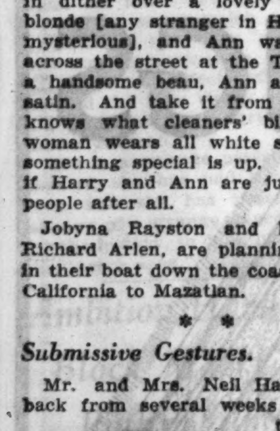
Submissive Gestures.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Hamilton are back from several weeks of touring the coast towards Canada in their car. Neil is burned a brilliant red and reports a grand time. He says he's had the same car for five years and intends driving it another year. This good resolution was reached partly by the pleading of ye scribe and his press agent, when he drove up to the Hillside front door in a beautiful new robin's egg blue car that cost much too much money for these hard times. After a long plea for economy and descriptions of all hungry school children, with Neil almost crying into his coffee, he gave up the idea of a new car for another year.

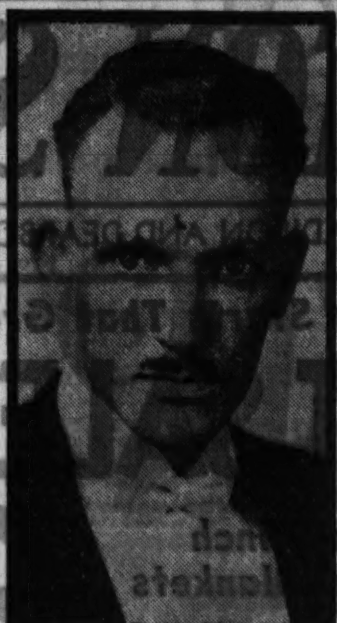


NEIL HAMILTON.

Baby Peggy Montgomery, now a young lady, appeared at a tea party recently in a red and white polka dotted dress and a tan polo coat and beret. She is quite tall for her age. She goes into the series of sport comedies with the Gleasons shortly.

They'll Direct Festival Choruses

MRS. JAMES H. GREENE.



PAUL CLAXTON.

FRANK BENNETT.

CARL CRAVEN.

FOUR organizations, the Allerton hotel, the Western Electric company, the Studebaker corporation, and the Illinois Central railway, have entered the chorus contest division of the third Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be given Saturday, Aug. 20, by The Chicago Tribune and cooperating newspapers and organizations in this vicinity.

HISTORIETTE

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS SR., was born in Denver, Colo., May 23, 1883. He was educated in that city at the Jarvis Military academy, East Denver High school and the Colorado School of Mines. This training included fencing, Delsartee and a range of athletic exercises. Mr. Fairbanks had also been ambitious to go on the stage and when he was 17 his wish was gratified. Frederick Warde, the actor, a family friend, met the boy and added him to his Shakespearean repertoire company in New York. After a while, Mr. Fairbanks become a star in his own right.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS SR.

D. W. Griffith induced him to enter the film field. His first film was "The Lamb" made for the old Triangle company. He was immediately popular. He has made oodles of pictures. "The Three Musketeers," "Robin Hood," "The Thief of Bagdad," "Come Up Smiling" and "Around The World in 80 Minutes" are among his best. He co-starred with his wife, Mary Pickford, in "The Taming of the Shrew."

He was at one time married to Beth Sully, the mother of his son, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Mr. Fairbanks is just back from the tropics where he has been making another travel film which will soon be on the silver sheets. Height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight, 165. Dark brown hair and eyes.

"Counsellor" Halts.

"Counsellor-at-Law" closed for the summer after last night's performance in the Plymouth theater, New York. It has had a run of 296 performances on Broadway. The play will reopen in New York Sept. 5, with Paul Muni again in the title part, which he created. Mr. Muni at present is making pictures in Hollywood and Otto Kruger has been appearing in the central rôle.

Film Time Table

CASTLE—A. M.: 9, 10:10, 11:20. P. M.: 12:30, 1:40, 2:50, 4, 5:10, 6:20, 7:30, 8:40, 9:50, 11.

New York Plans Opera Season on New Lines

By Edward Moore.

South Bend, Ind., Mrs. James H. Greene.

In many of the industrial plants throughout Chicagoland music takes almost as prominent a part as athletics. Another manufacturing concern which may enter a musical unit, a 55 piece band, is the General Electric company of Fort Wayne, Ind., through the sponsorship of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

The Hawthorne male chorus, now under the direction of Mr. Claxton, was organized in 1922 and has appeared in concerts over radio, in churches, at Orchestra hall, and in the Chicago theater. The officers are J. M. La Rue, president; M. F. Cihlar, vice president; A. Lamoure, secretary-treasurer; F. A. Hueser, business manager, and J. B. Gibson publicity director.

Four more organizations have entered the festival contests, bringing the total to 86. They are:

Juvenile band—Kankakee, Ill., High school band.

Public school band, Harvard, Ill.

Music Notes.

In spite of the folding up of some of the more important music makers there is considerable music left around Chicago even during the heated season. For example, Robert L. Sanders is beginning a series of Sunday morning organ recitals today at the First Unitarian church, Woodlawn avenue at 57th street. He will play a program of the works of Rheinberger, Bach, Dubois, and Boellmann. The hour is 11 o'clock.

The customary postlude recital program will take place at the Fourth Presbyterian church this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Anna Burmeister, soprano, will sing Eric DeLamarter's Cantata for solo soprano and organ, and Barrett Spach will play other works by Mendelssohn, Schumann, and DeLamarter.

Among the other recitals of the week, Wanda Paul, pianist, will appear under the auspices of the International Students' association at Ida Noyes hall, University of Chicago, this afternoon.

Alvene Resseguie, contralto, will present a program of songs, assisted by Adelaide Anderson, Tuesday morning at the Punch and Judy theater. It is one of the items of the Chicago Musical college summer series, as is a piano recital by Sara Levee in the same theater Thursday morning.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters to the Voice of the Fan should be written on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope, PLEASE.

Respectfully Submitted.

Dear Miss Tinée: Your recent suggestion to use Pola Negri and an Austrian in the talkie version of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" is not a bad one at all. Except as to her nose, eyes, face, and form, Pola does look like Katherine; speech is of no consequence in a talkie.

But I humbly suggest, instead, Harry Langdon for the poet, Zasu Pitts for Elizabeth, and Roscoe Ates for the irate father.

With Ates addressing Harry in an excited period, and Zasu waving her hands between, there really would be something to thrill about.

Resp., W. P. MAYER.

Editor's Note: I can take it, too.

Tired of Blonds.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have always enjoyed your column since I first began to read it, but will you please answer this one question?

Why, O why, do the casting directors insist upon giving us blondes when the public is getting so tired of them?

A MOVIE FAN.

Editors' Note—I don't know—and is the public?

Paramount sends Fredric March to M-G-M for Norma Shearer's "Smilin' Through"; Clark Gable is loaned by M-G-M to Paramount; Paramount gets Joan Blondell from Warners for "Make Me a Star," and Leila Hyams from M-G-M for "The Big Broadcast"; and Richard Arlen goes from Paramount to Warners for "Tiger Shark" with Edward G. Robinson.

From the report of the chairman of the committee on motion pictures of the General Federation of Women's clubs: "We believe that more people who want worthwhile entertainment are kept away from the theater through misleading press statements than are brought in through a pandering to the unclean and curious-minded. This becomes particularly regrettable as we note the high quality of many of the productions of the last year and realize that they have been unattended because of the belief, due to lack of honesty in the advertising, that the sex interest was the predominating one. . . . 'Tarzan the Ape Man' is one illustration in point. . . ." . . . HELEN HAYES doesn't expect to go back to the stage next year. . . . ZASU PITTS will have an important rôle in Fox's "Walking Down Broadway" with James Dunn. . . . CONSTANCE BENNETT has bought her a château in southern France and will take possession when she goes abroad in September. . . . Says the Motion Picture Herald: "It has finally come to pass! Stuart Erwin, Paramount featured player, has refused the offer of the company to star him in his next picture. The decision to lift Erwin from the ranks followed his performance in 'Make Me a Star.' Explaining his refusal to step into the position most desired by all film performers, Erwin said: 'There is a wide gap between the work of a featured player and a star. . . . I would prefer to achieve stardom, if that is my destiny, through a series of progressive steps. It's a lot safer and surer that way.'" Smart Stuart!!

See you tomorrow!

"1893" Title of Show for World's Fair

Second Company of "Of Thee I Sing" to Open in Chicago Sept. 18.

NEW YORK, July 16.—[Special.]—Frank C. Reilly, who stages a show now and then when he wants to get some recreation from the serious business of building electric signs for important advertisers, has a plan for the improvement of Chicago's Century of Progress exposition. He intends to stage a musical comedy spectacle for the period of the fair, opening it in a Chicago theater next April and continuing it through the summer.

The show will be called "1893," and will present a lyric interpretation of the city's history, specializing in the atmosphere of the Columbian exposition, now a glamorous tradition. Mr. Reilly and Forrest Wilson, who was one of the co-authors of "Blessed Event," have the libretto of the show in manuscript form at this very minute, and people who have read it say that it sounds promising. W. C. Fields and Ray Dooley will be engaged for the comic rôles, and Lea Seidl, a Viennese prima donna, will do the important singing. Mr. Reilly promises a production as elaborate as that of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Show Boat."

Present plans for "Of Thee I Sing" include a No. 2 company which will open in Cleveland, O., the week after Labor day, will spend another week in Detroit, and will then move on to Chicago for a run. Sam H. Harris is already at work on the casting for this troupe, but as yet he has made no definite selections for the leading rôles.

Rosalie Stewart, formerly active as a producer, and Patricia Collinge, the actress, have become interested in a possible fall production of a play that has been popular in Paris. It is Edouard Bourdet's "Vient de Paraitre,"—a title which translates into English as "Just Out," and which is a part of the patter of the book publishing trade in France. The play will be tested a week hence in Stockbridge, Mass., with Miss Collinge in the leading rôle. M. Bourdet is the man who wrote "The Captive," tabooed on this side of the Atlantic, and also "The Sex Fable," which was staged in New York last fall.

Angered by the conduct of an actor at rehearsals, a strong armed manager seized the thespian and hurled him violently into the street. The ejected one bounced into a passerby— a dignified old gentleman with a white beard. The elder generation picked itself out of the gutter, brandished its walking stick in the direction of the playhouse, and shouted:

"I'll sue this theater for throwing its actors at me!"

The full cast of Max Gordon's next revue, "Flying Colors," will include: Clifton Webb, Charles Butterworth, Tamara Geva, Patsy Kelly, Philip Loeb, Jean Sargent, Edward J. McNamara, Helen Carrington, Nonette Moore, and Imogene Coca.

Frank and Milt Britton's gang of crazy, roughhouse musicians, who appeared in the last "Ziegfeld Follies," are now smashing their fiddles at Graumann's theater, Los Angeles. This item is worth mentioning because the musical lunatics are supplying the stage entertainment during the showing of the film version of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude."

Charles Hopkins announces a play called "Sister Aimee," which is to be the dramatization of somebody's biography of Aimee Semple McPherson. The production is being delayed, however, by the fact that the play has not yet been written.

Mei Lan-Fang, the Chinese actor of women's rôles who appeared in New York, Chicago and San Francisco two years ago with great artistic success, will probably make a return American tour next fall. . . . "The Vinegar Tree" was a quick failure in London. . . . Sir Barry Jackson has a London hit in "Even Song," and has acquired the rights to Somerset Maugham's next piece of dramatic writing.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, July 16.—Broadway will see a new show next Monday night—its first in three weeks. Here is the playbill:

"The Chameleon" opens Monday night at the Masque theater. This is a comedy which is said to derive from a Hungarian piece by Adam Gostony. Ben Heinrich has made the adaptation, and the players, none of them particularly well known in this vicinity, will include Virginia Byron, Delphene Eaton, Frances Armstrong, Allen Forth, Earl Eby, and Robert Walker.

Money Crisis Closes Opera Comique

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 16.—The Opera Comique, one of the world's most famous opera houses and second in France only to the Opera, has closed for three months. The reason given is that repairs have to be made. But the real reason is pretty generally understood to be financial. The Opera Comique needs money. The government is unable under present circumstances, in view of a growing deficit, to provide the extra subsidy necessary. So the house has closed to catch up on expenses. That is believed to be the real reason.

At any rate, the result will be that Paris has only one opera house open through the summer instead of the usual two.

It is furthermore rumored that the Opera Comique will not reopen next October, as now scheduled. At least it seems almost certain that it will be drastically reorganized.

The Opera Comique needs $80,000 additional subsidy from the government. The Opera, too, has been in trouble lately, and an appropriation of $120,000 made by the last parliament was largely turned over to it. The Opera's director, M. Rouche, resigned in order to call attention to the straits of his institution. M. Masson, director of the Opera Comique, made an equally eloquent plea for funds, but did not back it up as dramatically as his colleague. Hence the Opera got most of the money.

Closing the Opera Comique throws 1,000 persons out of employment. The government would not like to make the closing permanent for that reason, and it is seeking a solution. A rumored plan is a pooling of the resources of the two opera companies.

Impressions of Libby Holman's Stage Career

By Charles Collins.

[su]ccess and establish a standard for [in]timate, highly sophisticated revues, she was merely Elizabeth Holman from Cincinnati, who had been graduated from college, had studied a little law, and then had invaded the studios of Greenwich Village and the impresarios' offices of Broadway in search of a career. But as soon as she began her moaning low in the "Little Show" it seemed that the whole playgoing nation was bent upon hailing her as something unique and extraordinary. To have seen and heard Libby Holman became a cachet of worldliness.

* *

"Little Show" Star.

Her first appearance in Chicago was at the Selwyn theater, April 20, 1930. She was one of the stars of the "Little Show," with Clifton Webb and Fred Allen as the other leading figures of the company; and during the spring run of that entertainment these three were the talk of the town—or at least that part of the community which is stage conscious.

In checking over the program of the "Little Show," I find that Miss Holman made the following appearances:

In "Moanin' Low," with Clifton Webb. The number was dramatized and danced. Miss Holman represented a quadroon woman of the Harlem streets; Mr. Webb disguised himself as her brutal, predatory parasite. There were some decidedly flagrant and shameless details in the miming, especially on Mr. Webb's part. Both in Chicago and in New York the skit narrowly escaped police censorship.

* *

Exotic Lady.

It would seem, on this evidence, that Miss Holman's participation in the "Little Show" was relatively slight. In contributing to the program she was by no means as active as Clifton Webb and Fred Allen, or the lesser principals such as Helen Lynd, Lucy Monroe, and John Carter-Waddell. But what she did was emphatic in its effect. She had that quality of strangeness which makes a star.

Her heavy black hair—a coiffure tousled and rebellious—glistened with bizarre ointments. Her complexion, whether in character as a Harlem quadroon or not, was a light saddle color. Her finger nails were scarlet, and her face was an expressive mask of sullen moods and sultry emotions. She seemed a vivid embodiment of the newest and most flamboyant forms of female paganism—an attitude which was her theatrical stock in trade.

The three stars of the "Little Show" returned to Chicago Dec. 20, 1931, in "Three's a Crowd," a revue of the same type, although not as popular. That engagement was a matter of three or four weeks at the Erlanger theater. A month before the Chicago opening Miss Holman had been secretly married to Zachary Smith Reynolds in Monroe, Mich.; but when gossip to the effect that she was contemplating marriage caused her to be interviewed, she answered: "There is nothing to that story."

* *

"Body and Soul."

Miss Holman's numbers in "Three's a Crowd" were:

"Something to Remember You By," in which she represented a shabby seaport sweetheart saying a reproachful farewell to her unappreciative lover, who apparently was a deckhand or a stoker in the French merchant marine.

"This Age of Ours," with Fred MacMurray as partner.

"Body and Soul," the leading "torch song" of last winter, which was groaned by millions of radio instruments for many mournful months.

Here again it seems that Miss Holman did not overwork herself. She had three songs which gave full expression to her "line"; she sang in her strong, dominating, unusual way, often getting effects of timbre that rivaled the bass violin; and she gave full proof of the importance of being Libby Holman.

She is a strange personality of the theater, she has had a strange success, and she has passed into the shadow of a strange tragedy. So much for the history, to date, of the muse of the "torch song."

Ambition, Hard Work Block Mae Clarke's Path in Film Capital

The 21 year old blonde star, too ill to work since a breakdown in February, must wait several months before resuming the career sidetracked then.

MAE CLARKE.

Too much ambition and the hard work to realize it are blamed for the setback that came to this girl who gave up the stage for Hollywood at just about the time that the talkies' advent ended her father's job as a movie organist.

It was her father's misfortune that caused her to bring her parents, her younger sister, and a brother here from Atlantic City where she could assume their support. And in the ten months before her collapse she had leads in eight films.

In Vaudeville

THE inaugural program marking the return of vaudeville to the State-Lake theater includes these entertainers on a seven act program this week:

Lee Sims with Ilomay Bailey—The pianist and singer of the radio with the latest variations of their "Piano Moods."

Olive Olsen—A blonde comedienne whose songs and dances provided laughter in such stage successes as "Follow Thru" and "Meet My Sister."

Gloria Lea and the Harris Twins—A pretty dancing girl and her two dancing men.

Barney Grant—Offering the folk songs of the hillbillies.

The five act vaudeville program at the Palace this week includes:

Alice Joy—The "dream girl" of the radio, whose voice and method of singing popular songs has attracted attention.

Colby and Murray Revue—singers and dancers in a bright entertainment.

Producers Get Ready for New Stage Season

"Flying Colors" to Have Tamara Geva as Dancer; Judith Anderson's Play.

MAX GORDON, engaged in casting for his new revue, "Flying Colors," announces the addition of Tamara Geva to the players. Miss Geva, who appeared last season in "Three's a Crowd," will be the première danseuse in the show. Already engaged for principal parts are Clifton Webb, Charles Butterworth, and Patsy Kelly. The production is by Howard Deitz, and will go into rehearsal July 21. The première is set for Philadelphia on Aug. 22.

Peggy Fears has acquired the dramatic rights to Leyla Georgie's novel, "The Establishment of Mme. Antonia," and has added the play to her fall schedule. The author and Gladys Unger are adapting the book and the producer will have Judith Anderson in one of the leading rôles. It is likely that Helen Menken will share the acting honors. Already on Miss Fear's schedule is "Nona," by Gladys Unger, in which Lenore Ulric will have the chief acting assignment.

Joseph Schildkraut will appear in October with Eva Le Gallienne in a revival of Molnar's "Liliom," which will be the first production of the New York Civic Repertory theater's new season. Later, as a permanent member of the theater's acting company, he will be seen in several other plays, including "Camille" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Rod LaRocque, who toured with Vilma Banky a season or two ago in the play called "Cherries Are Ripe," has been engaged to appear in "Domino," the comedy from the French with which William A. Brady will open his season. Although the leading woman has not yet been selected, rehearsals of "Domino" began last week. The play's preliminary tour is expected to open in Atlantic City on Aug. 1.

James Barton will be the featured player in "Follies Bergere," the revue which Max Rudnick will present at the Liberty theater, New York, after an engagement in Atlantic City late next month. . . . "Ballyhoo," the long announced revue, has begun rehearsals at the 44th Street theater, New York. Willie and Eugene Howard will be the chief members of the company.

Patricia Calvert, Hans Hansen, and Millard F. Mitchell have been engaged for "Nona," the play by Gladys Unger that Peggy Fears will produce with Lenore Ulric as star. Rehearsals of "Nona" will begin on Aug. 12.

With Lou Holtz and Ethel Merman heading the cast, "Humpty Dumpty," the Laurence Schwab-B. G. De Sylvia show described as "a musical comedy about a revue," will go into rehearsal in New York on Aug. 15. The show's preliminary engagements will begin on Sept. 12 in Pittsburgh.

Popular Prices.

To meet the purse of every one who wants to see "Clowns in Clover" at the Apollo theater, Lew Leslie has reduced the prices of his musical revue for the summer, bringing the evening admission down to a scale of 50 cents to $2, and the matinée performances from 25 cents to $1.

Additional matinees will be given on Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday.

On Fall Schedule.

Harry B. Forbes has acquired for fall production a play called "Iron Flower." The author is Cecil Lewis, who translated "Improvisations in June," produced in New York several seasons ago by the Civic Repertory theater.

Mrs. Garner Carries Husband's Dinner Tray, Shocks Small Fry

When the Speaker of the House Is Ill with a Cold His Wife Orders His Meal in the Coffee Shop and Calmly Takes It Up in the Passenger Elevator.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — [Special.]—One afternoon as I sat sipping a soda in the coffee shop of the hotel where the speaker and Mrs. Garner make their home two lovely ladies rushed over to my table in dire consternation. Now, these ladies, as the wives of two exceedingly obscure congressmen, are, as so often is the case, extra zealous about maintaining what they refer to as their "social position" and the social position of the entire congressional crowd.

Hence their shudders and shivers as they related to me the following little incident, which was anything but a little incident to them.

It happened a few weeks ago. "Cactus" Jack Garner, ill with a bad cold, was confined to his apartment in the hotel and obliged to take his meals in his room. Did Ettie Garner, his wife and secretary, telephone downstairs to room service and have a waiter bring up dinner for the speaker of the house of representatives of the United States of America?

Apparently she did nothing of the sort. Instead Mrs. Garner walked down to the coffee shop.

"And then," here the other wife took up the tale in a voice deep with agony, "I was in the elevator and with my own eyes I saw her walk into the elevator, the passenger elevator, mind you, carrying a tray with their dinner on it. Now, imagine that for the wife of the speaker."

"The wife of the Democratic nominee for the vice presidency," supplemented horror stricken woman No. 1.

"Well, he wasn't that then." Woman No. 2 wanted to be fair. "But he was the speaker. Just imagine!"

In unison they gasped.

Defends Government Clerks.

Speaking of working wives, everybody around here is talking about the plaint of the government employé who, faced with the possibility of Uncle Sam, in a move for economy, dismissing either him or his wife from the federal pay roll, wrote his sentiments to a local newspaper the other day. Eleanor Roosevelt, he pointed out, runs a furniture factory, teaches school. Has for years. And her husband gets himself nominated for the presidency.

Ettie Garner, he recalled, has been her husband's secretary ever since he came here in 1903. Her husband gets himself nominated for the vice presidency.

Last Tuesday the Democrats went up the river to get votes; next Tuesday the Republicans will go south for the same purpose. The ladies of Democracy, headed by former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross, and the G. O. P. ladies, marshaled by Mrs. Dolly Gann [now that their chief, Mrs. Ellis Yost, has opened headquarters in Chicago], are running a close race even during these hot days.

So the Democrats chartered a steamer last Tuesday night and sailed up the river, playing bridge and talking politics. Proceeds of the evening go toward the campaign expenses. And the Republicans will borrow a garden next Tuesday afternoon when they will assemble at Hollin Hall, the Virginia estate of Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson, to smell pretty flowers and talk politics.

Laurence Bungardeanu, personable young Rumanian diplomat who was stationed in Chicago when Queen Marie's visit turned that city upside down, and who is now attached to the Rumanian legation here, left to motor to the Adirondacks for a holiday. And he hopes that no garage attendants will realize the meaning of that yellow legend "diplomatic" beneath his license. Here in Washington, where all diplomats have yellow "diplomatic licenses" on their motors and where everybody understands the special traffic privileges that accompany the tag, these privileges have their penalties.

Not infrequently, they tell me, when a diplomat parks his car overnight in a garage the wash boy, captivated by the idea of a whirl in a favored auto that gets only polite bows from a traffic cop, will go for a midnight jaunt in the borrowed car. And when the car comes to grief the diplomat is routed out of bed by a telephone call from a desk sergeant, who says in some bewilderment that he does not believe it's a diplomat in the smashed car. Even if there is no accident, these night rides eat up diplomatic gasoline.

Chicago Motorists Driving Through White Mountains

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.—[Special.]—Chicago motorists have been numerous throughout the White mountain resorts this week, and many stopped at Maplewood club to watch the 18th annual trapshooting contest in progress all the week. Franconia, Pinkham, Crawford, and Dixville notches are scenic points, one of which usually is the objective of the tourist, and the free camp grounds offered at convenient points by the United States forestry service are used by hundreds.

The estate of the late John Sumner Runnels of Chicago, at Chocorua, Willowgate, has been leased by the heirs to Dr. John W. Bartol for the summer. Mrs. William James, wife of Prof. James of Harvard, the former Miss Runnels, is at her summer home at Chocorua.

Mrs. R. D. McFadon of Chicago arrives this week at the Waumbeck, Jefferson, for her annual visit, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Kendrick Bangs Jr. of Detroit, and Mr. Bangs, who is a member of the Waumbeck golf team and winner of many events here in the past seasons.

Mrs. McFadon's eldest daughter, Mrs. Mark Skinner Willing of Chicago, has a cottage in the Waumbeck colony, but during recent seasons has remained at her Virginia estate in the hunting country for the summer.

Mrs. John G. Glessner, president of the White Mountain Garden club, announces the annual flower show, which will be held at the Casino, Maplewood club, July 28. The proceeds will be used for civic planting within the White mountains. Last season the club beautified the plaza at the Littleton railroad station.

Mrs. E. P. Prentice Invites Friends to Violin Musicale

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—[Special.]—Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice's musicale at Mount Hope farm, Williamstown, was the outstanding Berkshire society event this week-end. Albert Spalding, violinist, was the artist and in the audience of 150 were a number of Williams college professors and their wives. Mr. and Mrs. Spalding were the principal guests at a luncheon which Mrs. Prentice gave before the concert.

The chimes on the Fields Memorial tower at Stockbridge are played each night from 6 to 6:30. This tower was given by the late David Dudley Field to commemorate the site of the first Indian mission in the wilderness.

Mrs. Kimball Salisbury of Lake Shore drive, Chicago, and her sisters, Mrs. Alexander Simpson and Miss Cynthia Eaton of Pittsfield are taking part in the weekly trips of the Pittsfield Riding and Polo club over Washington mountain trails. Miss Katherine Louise Weston, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hale Holden of Chicago, was in charge of a paper chase this afternoon. Donald M. Weston, Miss Judith Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Crane Pomeroy, and Miss Beatrice T. Bardwell, whose mother, Mrs. Robert D. Bardwell, is the former Helen Pillsbury of Minneapolis, were among others riding.

Willem Willeke, conductor of the South Mountain string quartet and Elshuco trio, has arranged a program of quartet music by Brahms, Schumann, and Saint-Saëns for the third concert tomorrow afternoon in Mrs. Frederick Coolidge's temple of music at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

The annual interclub team golf tournament for the Berkshire championship is to be held at Stockbridge next Saturday. Ten teams of six men each will be in competition. The Pittsfield Country club team, of which Kimball Salisbury has been a member, has won for the last two years and he is getting in form at Pittsfield for the 23d.

Estate of the Baums in Michigan Is Reminiscent of Russia of Old

By Cousin Eve.

QUITE some time ago, earlier in the season, I went traveling across to Michigan. As the guest of Mrs. William Baum we motored over to stay at a delightful farm she has, Longcroft, a little south of South Haven. Not a "house-end" party, as the man called them after the third cocktail, but just a plain trip to the country. In fact, I was put up at the gardener's cottage, a very luxurious place, and she lodged at the villino—more about that later.

The great house was not then open. I had always heard that Longcroft was individual and had charm, but why should it look like a Russian estate of the old régime? It is a large and rambling property with meadows, a deep ravine wherein Indians once held war councils and sacred rites, thick woods, acres of flower and vegetable gardens, and a long lake frontage. On the low bluff over the lake among tall, natural trees stands the stucco house, a two storied manor. It was perhaps this house that made me think of Russia with its length and simple architecture, standing by a wide stream or placid lake, and its formal flower beds, rows of pansies, geraniums. It was all like some old Russian country house in those dreamy stories of Turgenev.

Counting all the buildings on the estate, there are nineteen, including lodges, cottages, barns, stables—and, surprisingly enough, these are painted sky blue. Not even in Russia in its palmiest days did they paint their estate houses sky blue, but somehow this color sank into the fresh young woods and blended with the real sky and clouds, and it was all delightful. Perhaps it was the manner of life that made me think of Turgenev and old Russia—horses in the stable for all; tennis courts, croquet, a beach of white sand and a grand place for beach suppers by moonlight during the hot nights.

Flowering Woods.

We strolled in the woods, and they were Russian woods in the Ukraine, carpeted with lilies of the valley and tiny pansies, and forget-me-nots, and May flowers, until one feared to tread. A raucous cry. Peacocks! Two beautiful snow white peacocks have spread immense tails and are promenading in an important manner over the lawn. It is before the season of garden flowers and home grown vegetables, that crowded moment just before things begin to happen. In two more weeks the season is on—berries, cherries, roses, every delectable fruit and flower.

It was Mrs. Baum's villino, her home-made Italian retreat, that takes the breath of all her visitors. Built by men of her household after her own design, it is one of the most fascinating modern villas one can hope to see outside of Italy. Not pale blue but creamy white is this pavilion, standing squarely in the middle of a flower garden on a tapis vert. It is really one long room with eight long windows. The floor is marble.

At the back are a kitchenette, bath and dressing room; on the front a terrace with lounging chairs, tables. The pavilion is divided inside by screens, high and modernistic. One corner may be a bedroom, another a dining room, another a bookroom, a fourth a living room—or with a wave of a wand it might all be a charming ballroom lined with splendid chairs. Mrs. Baum uses her villino only as a study during the season when the big house is going. But early and late in the season it houses the family.

Mervyn Baum, youngest son of the family, is home from Andover and with his brother now at Longcroft. Living at South Haven for the last few months is the eldest son, Winston Lawrence. He has taken a house in what is really a delightful town, a short motor ride from Chicago. Married very young, he has now a family of three handsome children under four years, all with a tinge of red in their hair, and dark eyes. Winston Lawrence is the brother of Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams.

Mrs. Baum became president of the Fortnightly in May and also president of the Carl Schurz foundation in Chicago. This is a society for establishing good feeling between Americans and Germans and will begin its active life in October with a large and important dinner. Details for this will be announced much later. Lots of lively things are brewing already for the fall, but nothing like the amusing "hard times" parties they were having all last season along the Riviera.

There was one dinner followed by dancing at Cannes where nobody could wear anything that cost over 10 francs (40 cents). That was a narrow margin. But Lady Charles Mendl (Elsie De Wolfe) had herself wrapped up in a couple of yards of black silk crêpe, and then had a parure of jewels painted on her neck, breast, and wrists. All her diamonds were done by a very good artist and were certainly sensational, because hers was the cleverest idea of the evening and took the first prize.

Moving to Nantucket.

Among the many Chicagoans leaving Chicago to have a permanent home elsewhere are Col. and Mrs. Robert Stewart. They, like several others, are moving to Nantucket, a perfectly darling place, if distant, and 'way out in the Atlantic ocean. It is like living on the deck of a ship, and no end of quaintness. I love all the neat gray houses that belonged to the sailor men, captains of great sailing vessels that sailed the seven seas. Horsehair furniture, south sea shells, wax flowers under glass. My memories of Nantucket are vague now, for the town crier is dead, and the quiet streets are now alive with motors and alert summer people.

Col. and Mrs. Stewart discovered a house there that pleased them, selling for a song or two. It had fifteen bedrooms, and the rumor was that the former owner had blown in $7,000 on the English wall paper that adorned the living room. Inasmuch as it was a very fine large house and being practically given away, Mr. Stewart bought it, and the family is now in residence at Nantucket.

So are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Taylor, who bought an old house and moved themselves last year. Dr. and Mrs. Frank X. Walls are annual visitors, but they still live at 219 Lake Shore drive. Mr. and Mrs. Leeds Mitchell have an old family house where they go in summer, on the water, just out of Nantucket town. They have two power boats and they go down early and stay late. Mr. and Mrs. Norris Bokum are Nantucketers, also Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Goodrich, who, however, are abroad for the late summer.

Radios in Germany.

The last Foreign Relations luncheon of the season was for William Hard, friend of many of us, writer, politician, looker-on at life. Vibrating sort of meeting. Many there in the red lacquer room. Pleasant chat of luncheon closed by Graham Aldis, president of the society, who made such a model introduction, such a perfect speech of presentation that all chairmen should inquire into it and learn how. Mr. Aldis never kids himself into believing that the audience is wild to hear two long speeches. He knows better—and consequently he stays popular. He is a delightful president.

William Hard is wonderful on the radio. He has a low voice, leisurely, distinct. He was born in India and has spent half his life in foreign affairs. He began by commenting on the tremendous growth of radio in Germany in fourteen years. There are now millions of radios in Germany, it seems. And then Bill Hard's real voice died on us, went glimmering. It failed me, or I failed it. I heard the beginning of many interesting Hard sentences, but never the finish, the finale, the climax. Alas, that fatal drop in the voice and the slight physique of the speaker. But the lecture season is now closed and I don't intend to be lectured until the open season, which is October.

Several of my friends, including Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, have been trying to lure me out to Lake Forest this summer to the Deerpath inn. They point out that I can run into the kitchen, call the cook Ruth, like all the rest of the population, and feel very much at home in no time. And also that the old, old apple trees and the rock garden are good for those who, like myself, are afflicted with a love for beauty.

The Deerpath inn is really most attractive looking, and quite a few friends are there for the season, including Mrs. Edward Carry, who has with her two grandchildren, children of her lovely daughter, Ermina Nicholson, gone a year now. Mrs. Granger Farwell is there, Mrs. Charles Ackert, and Mrs. William McIlvaine.

* *

In Deep Mourning.

Fashion is a freakish dame. Even mourning varies. For years the most crushed widow has worn no crêpe and no veil but a short one of chiffon in the first days of grief. Really, veils of mourning have been in the discard. But recently two women of high fashion have appeared in long black enveloping veils that sweep the floor. They are Mrs. Richard T. Crane, whose slight figure is submerged in sable folds, and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, tall and stately blonde, whose long crêpe veil is held to her head by a small cloche and strap of white under the chin. Blue eyes, fair hair, and all are lovely in the panoply of sadness.

Mrs. Leiter may be in town, or rather Lake Forest, all summer with her children, Tommy and Nancy. Her nephew, Colin Campbell, also lives with them. Under the terms of the grandmother's (Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter's) will, the grandchildren receieve $10,000 a year income from her estate each year they live in Chicago. That very unusual clause has also brought here from England Cecil Howard, son of Daisy, countess of Suffolk, a sister of Joseph Leiter. Cecil, I fancy, is heir to the earldom of Suffolk, a high sounding title, dating back to Norman conquest. He has been staying at an uptown hotel, rather lonely, I fancy, as he has been brought up entirely in England.

Among others of a younger set now living here are the Van Lear Blacks of Baltimore, a young publisher and his wife. Van Lear Black's father, who was drowned two or three years ago, was publisher of the Baltimore Sun, was an aviation enthusiast, a great yachtman, and a man of large means. The young people have come to stay, I believe, and will take a house in the fall.

Lost to the Stag Line.

The latest news of those tall very, very brainy sons of Mrs. William S. Ennis is that Lambert is probably definitely lost to the Chicago stag line. A Harvard student, some years ago he specialized in the study of English to such an extent that his university was all agog over the results. He wrote months ago a thesis on the Spencerian stanza which has since grown into a college text book.

After that, his next intellectual feat was to imitate the style of any great classical writer from Chaucer to Galsworthy. After this he received his B. A. Then, Lambert High, who is really a very merry fellow, gay and full of appreciation of life, took up the study of the Gothic language, a speech which preceded Anglo-Saxon. And this achievement, added to the others that have gone before, may land him a Ph. D. In which case a professorship at Harvard would permanently tie Lambert Ennis to Boston.

William Ennis, a younger brother who has been managing the Mormon's ranch owned by the family in the California mountains, is also a great student. He has specialized in the modern languages and speaks German, French, Spanish and Russian. A year ago he traveled alone throughout Russia, up and down the land, and had many a weird adventure owing to his knowledge of the language.

Howard George, and Mrs. Harry Hill Thorndike of Boston. Pourers at the first tea on Monday will be Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick and Miss Helen Jones.

Mrs. Roland J. Mulford is conducting a bridge afternoon at Kenarden lodge, the residence of Mrs. John R. Dorrance, on Thursday afternoon. Tea will be served. Many members of the summer colony have made reservations for tables.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Montague entertained at dinner this evening in honor of Mrs. Montague's cousin, James Angell, and his fiancée, Mrs. Paul Woodman, who is Mrs. Montague's house guest. Guests at the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Martin Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Stimson, Mr. and Mrs. Phoenix Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Train.

About ninety attended the buffet supper at the Bar Harbor club last Sunday. At one table were Miss Eleanor McCormick, Miss Florence Crane, Mr. and Mrs. William Laurens Van Alen, A. Atwater Kent Jr., and John Dane Jr.

Prof. Herbert V. Neal and Mrs. Neal and Prof. Ulric Dahlgren and Mrs. Dahlgren entertained about 150 at a tea and reception on Monday in honor of Prof. William H. Cole and Mrs. Cole. Prof. Neal and Prof. Dahlgren, former directors of the Mount Desert biological laboratory, are giving the affair to introduce Prof. Cole, the new director of the laboratory.

The tentative date for the Navy ball, as announced by the Bar Harbor club, is Aug. 4. The water sports are to be held on Aug. 20.

Art Patron Asks for More Camera Club Exhibits at Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

SOMETIMES letters are a good indication of the pulse of the public. Last year and this the hanging of the Chicago Camera club's exhibit in the print galleries of the Art institute has been a theme of active discussion in this column. Although it is too late to make the change now, and we may expect to be confronted by photographs in the east wing galleries of the museum on July 21 when the summer shows open, yet the prospects are good that the museum authorities will see the justification of the hope which would prefer finding them with the other less dramatic graphic arts in the print galleries, another season. Even the finest photographs are much more closely akin to etchings and block prints and engravings than they are to oils, water colors and sculpture.

The letter which aroused this train of thought is as follows: "I have never quite forgiven you for begrudging the time and space given the Camera club exhibit at the Art institute last year, particularly in view of the dreadful things which have been occupying those walls this season. But one Saturday you enthused over an exhibit at the Knoedler gallery of tropical birds by a Karl Plath. For once I found we had something in common and the friends to whom I passed the good news were equally delighted with the pictures.

"Why does not the Art institute set aside a room where lovers of beauty in art can enjoy such work as that? There are many of us who find it impossible to accept the crude atrocities perpetrated in the name of modern art who would appreciate the opportunity of keeping abreast with the works of this man Plath and his contemporaries. If the institute would keep its walls filled with such works I could sympathize with your resenting the intrusion of the Camera club.

"As you may surmise, I am more proficient at the shutter than the palette, but I still delight in seeing a beautiful painting."

* *

Exhibits Invited.

Curiously enough, a note from Karl Plath followed upon the heels of this appreciative comment of his work. He writes: "I have had two invitations for my exhibit, which encourage me. One is from the Chicago Woman's club for December and the other from the Brooks' Memorial Art gallery, Memphis, Tenn., for next February."

Mr. Plath's exhibit of bird paintings was one of the finest exhibits Chicago enjoyed last winter and it is of such caliber that people the country over would delight in it. The Art institute would be infinitely the gainer were it to act in accordance with our first letter and show it in their galleries. When one contemplates a certain surprise the institute has in store for us, a room full of paintings by Chicago prize winning artists of the last several years [prize winning in the Art institute shows, be it understood], one shivers at the prospect. So much trash has been rewarded, one wonders whether any gold will gleam from the loot. With Karl Plath's bird paintings in view, none of those anticipatory shivers need course the spine; one knows before that his exhibit would be exceptionally fine and sound at every point.

Letter Tells Story.

Letters are human documents. Here is one more that gives us a quick impression of another's life. It is from Herbert Lewis who recently had a one man show of little paintings in the new tiny gallery in the Auditorium tower, a gallery so small it hardly justifies its name of "The Little Gallery," for it is even smaller than that, more a studio, in fact, than a gallery at all. The letter runs: "Possibly you may recall that I had an exhibit in 1930 at the Petit Gourmet" [yes, we remember it], "in hopes of raising money to defray in part the cost of a sailboat cruise down the Danube from Germany to the Black sea. The show was not a success, though by hook or crook Mrs. Lewis and I managed to buy the 26 foot Jollekreuzer in Berlin and sail her to the Black sea. The Pathé films that we had were lost in shipment in the Balkans, or confiscated, and consequently the cruise was a financial disaster.

"I have been living in a shack here" (a little town in Michigan) "to make up by rigid, Thoreau-ian economy and painting abstractions. My New York show in 1929 was the only thing that made the cruise possible." Still, in spite of all, one is willing to wager that Mr. and Mrs. Lewis would not exchange their cruise memories for anything, comfort included. Such adventures are like wine, and memories the fragrance, bettered by keeping.

News of Art and Artists.

Elmer A. Forsberg, head of the School of Fine Arts, will conduct his usual summer school at Covington, Mich. Miss Mary Scovel, head of the teacher training department, will assist him. Albert H. Krehbiel will teach in the Saugatuck summer school conducted by Frederick Fursman, and Wellington J. Reynolds will teach in the Taylor summer school of Saugatuck. Saugatuck with its picturesque setting on the bluffs of the Kalamazoo river overlooking the dunes of Lake Michigan, is growing in popularity as a summer art colony.

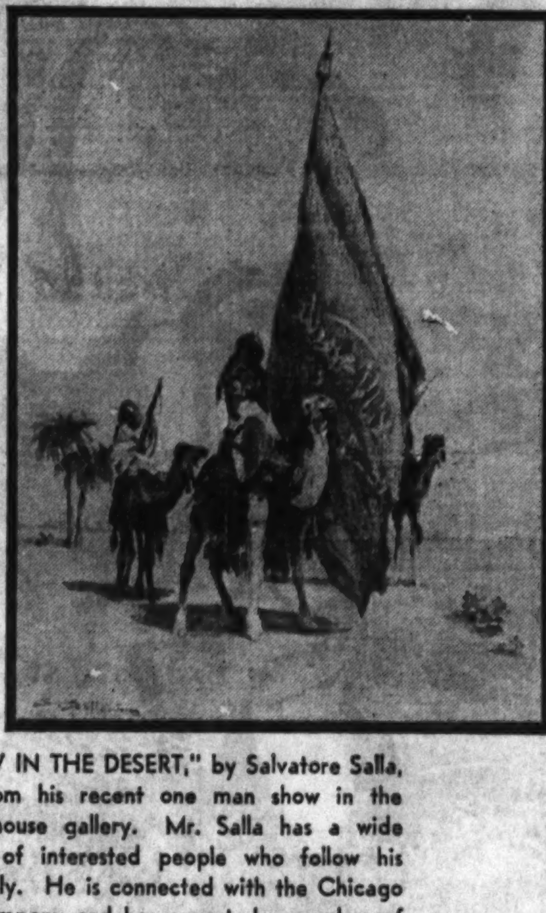
The Alumni association of the Art institute owns a tract of land at the mouth of the Kalamazoo on which, in Oxbow inn, the summer school conducted by Mr. Fursman is located. This gives a varied landscape, with lake, river, woods, and dunes to the four sides. Saugatuck is a pleasant quiet little village, boasting more curves than any other town in Michigan, twenty-two, if some one did not make a mistake the last time we drove through. There may be bluffs, but the Kalamazoo is a lazy, low stream, as seen from the bridge, and the houses run easily down to its edge, faced by green lawns and many shrubs and trees, heavy with leaves.

An attractive small art gallery is a feature of the place. Increase Robinson, director of the studio gallery, Diana Court building, plans to send some sort of an interesting exhibit to it in August.

The Taylor Art school is charmingly housed in an old-fashioned, rambling house up and across the street from the gallery. The children's classes are particularly featured and much is done to develop originality. Cora Bliss Taylor, Wellington J. Reynolds, Walter R. Williams, and Dorothy Powers are the able staff of instructors.

The American Federation of Arts is circulating several interesting exhibits. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Chicago Art institute, chose the group of contemporary oils, fifty in number, to represent Chicago painters. Among the artists selected by him as representative of Chicago are Jean Adams, Ivan Albright, Anthony Angarola (deceased), Boris Anisfeld, Frances Foy, Davenport Griffen, J. Theodore Johnson, June M. Knabel, Constantine Pougialis, Louis Ritman, and Paul Trebilcock. Exception may be taken to the group inasmuch as many of our brilliant painters are left out and too much accent, perhaps, is laid upon the Art institute affiliations of others. Louis Ritman and Boris Anisfeld, for instance, are instructors in the institute school, and otherwise not particularly Chicagoans. Angarola was also at one time an instructor, although he was more of a Chicagoan, perhaps, living here consistently for many years. Trebilcock, Theodore Johnson, and Davenport Griffen, as well as Pougialis, are distinctly Art institute progeny.

One would like to see included in this list such painters as Frederic M. Grant, Charles Killgore, Frederic Tellander, Pauline Palmer, Beatrice Levy, Karl Plath, and others whose names will occur to you as being exactly as representative of Chicago talent as the intensely personal interpretations of Salcia Bahnc and Ivan Albright. This matter of selecting a representative group is always difficult, but there seems little reason to include Pougialis and Louis Ritman and leave out Joseph Allworthy and Oskar Gross.



"LAW IN THE DESERT," by Salvatore Salla, from his recent one man show in the Allerton house gallery. Mr. Salla has a wide audience of interested people who follow his work closely. He is connected with the Chicago Opera company and has executed a number of striking portraits of various musical personages.

British M. P.'s in London for Summer Take Tea on Terrace with Sartorial Leniency

Gordon Selfridge Uses Store as Setting for His Unusual Parties.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON.—[Special.]—There is a strange quietness in the English political atmosphere just now. With nearly all the great leaders away to one conference or another, tea on the terrace of the house of commons lately has more and more inclined to partake of the garden party spirit.

Even the dress of M. P.'s seems to be more informal, and that is a sure sign of the times. Before the war the heights to which the thermometer soared did not in the least alter the usual morning dress and shining black silk topper, but now it is left to Sir Austen Chamberlain and Capt. Crookshank to maintain such correctness in the midst of what is known here as "summer heat." Capt. Crookshank is the son of Mrs. Henry Crookshank, who formerly was Miss Emma Comfort and is one of the most popular American hostesses in London.

The birth has been announced of a son and heir to the Hon. David Bowes-Lyon and Mrs. David Bowes-Lyon.

Mr. Bowes-Lyon is the youngest son of the earl and countess of Strathmore and the youngest brother of the duchess of York. He was married early in 1929 to Miss Rachel Spender-Clay, daughter of Lieut. Col. H. H. Spender-Clay, M. P., at St. Margaret's, Westminster, and their wedding was one of the most important social events of the year. Their first child, a daughter, was born in 1930.

The recently announced birth of an heir to this couple calls to mind that the baby's mother is the granddaughter of the first Viscount Astor, and his father is brother-in-law to the king's son—so the breach between American blood and the royal family narrows.

Rachel Spender-Clay's mother, the Hon. Mrs. H. H. Spender-Clay, was before her marriage the Hon. Miss Pauline Astor, daughter of William Waldorf Astor, the first viscount. She is consequently the sister of the present Viscount Astor. Consequently, also, Rachel Bowes-Lyon's children, who are grandniece and nephew of the American, Nancy Astor, are also first cousins to the little Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose.

And so it isn't such a far jump, in one way of thinking, from American blood to that which is very blue and English!

Another Selfridge Party.

Gordon Selfridge has again lived up to his reputation of giving unusual parties. But this time the party was really incidental to a most unusual exhibition of diamonds. Inclosed in a space of 72 square feet more than $5,000,000 worth of diamonds were displayed.

On the fourth floor of Mr. Selfridge's store, where he stages most of his spectacular affairs, in a black curtained inclosure, there is a sort of tank of rolled steel and armor, plate glass which cannot be splintered by any man driven blow. Within this inclosure there is another similar tank which houses the display. Between the two tanks the space is electrified with an invisible ray so arranged that any interference rings an alarm bell. A floating piece of lint broke the current in my presence and bells began to call detectives from all the dark corners.

Arranged in trays are diamonds in bulk—2,341 on one tray and 1,172 on another. Then there are specimens of variously cut stones and gorgeous examples of colored diamonds. On the other side of the exhibition are the famous gems of the collection. Here may be seen the Nasak diamond, valued at $165,000, which formed part of the booty taken when the last independent ruler of Nasak surrendered to the British. Nearby is the Porter Rhodes diamond, worth $200,000, and two other fine specimens valued at $425,000 and $300,000. There is the Romyn diamond, a perfect stone of nearly 64 carats and hexagonal bought from the shah of Persia.

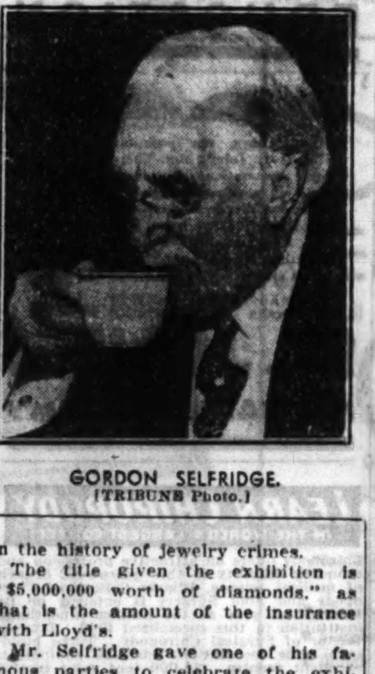
Famous French Necklace.

The romance and intrigue of the court of Louis XV. are typified in the Marie Antoinette necklace, intended as a gesture of regard for Mme. Du Barry, and finally the object of one of the greatest confidence trickeries in the history of jewelry crimes.



GORDON SELFRIDGE.

The title given the exhibition is "$5,000,000 worth of diamonds," as that is the amount of the insurance with Lloyd's.

Mr. Selfridge gave one of his famous parties to celebrate the exhibition, which is the outcome of his 20 year old aspiration. A buffet dinner and drinks, with a nonstop cabaret on the fourth floor and ices with music on the roof garden, were features of the entertainment. The party ran two nights, with 1,500 people present each night.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Raalte, Lady Cooper, Baroness Stempl, Lady Atkinson, Mrs. Astbury, Sir Gomez Berry, Lady Spencer Churchill, Lady Clive, the countess of Clonnell, Miss Peggy O'Neill, Gladys Cooper, the Princess Wiasemsky, and Jack the Violet, being the Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Sibour.

Gordon Selfridge, the younger, after being host until the small hours of the morning, took the night train to Liverpool and from there will fly to the different branches of his father's great concern, which are under his direction. Later he expects to take his plane to the continent for his holiday.

Fields Limit Party to 800; Gotham Agog

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It begins to look to this writer that Chicago and London in common have had the honor of giving New York something to talk about and, what is more, of eradicating the memory of Ward McAllister's mythical four hundred with the substitution of an arbitrary eight hundred. Not in many a long month has there been so much excitement as in the days that preceded the dinner and fête given by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field at Caumsett, Lloyd's Neck, Huntington, L. I., last night.

The preparations sent every one into a fever of inquiry, the more so since no end of rumors flitted about town as to some of the features of the party, including such stalwarts as Vincent Astor and Willie Rhinelander Stewart as honorary head waiters.

* *

Limited Number of Guests.

At any rate, there have been heartbreaks enow, you may be sure. The dinner was by subscription only, with a limitation of eight hundred guests, and I can assure you that there is no better way of drawing a line about social borders than by giving so huge an affair and limiting the invitees.

Thus at one very clever stroke the unwieldy mass of Gotham society has a chance to segregate its fashionables, and I shouldn't be at all surprised to discover that Mrs. Field's "eight hundred" will henceforth constitute a definite blue list. It was done in the best English manner and has simply taken the town by storm.

Besides the dinner proper, there were all sorts of sports, with a midway on the lawns of Caumsett and a freak show that included in its members Mrs. Malcolm Meacham, her sister, Mrs. Ralph Isham, Mrs. Joseph Davis, and Mrs. Harold Talbott. Then there was the booth presided over by Vincent Astor where the guest chucked balls at plates and tea cups and meat platters in a perfect orgy of destruction. In the drawing room of Caumsett Mrs. Field was mistress of ceremonies of the cabaret distinguished by the queer harmonies of the Boswell sisters.

In fact, it was the biggest party town has seen in years and years, and one which gives rise to the thought that Mrs. Field may be destined to become in this day what Mrs. Astor and Mayme Fish were in their own departed ones.

Plans Autumn Debut.

Now that she is Mrs. C. Suydam Cutting, the former Mrs. James Cox Brady is preparing to do more nice things for her adored and adoring stepchildren. Mrs. Cutting is planning the debut of Victoria Brady, and the first signal bow will be made on Sept. 14 when Mr. and Mrs. Cutting will give a dance for Viccy at Hamilton farms.

Victoria is a daughter of the late Lady Victoria Percy and the late James Cox Brady and a granddaughter of the late earl of Limerick. Her grandmother, the dowager countess of Limerick, is very much among those present, living, as she does, in lovely Kent. Lady Limerick will present the Brady debutante at court next season. In the meantime, Viccy is happy in making her bow under the watchful eyes of her lovely stepmother, Mrs. Cutting.

Racing at Saratoga.

Town is beginning to give a thought to Saratoga, for the annual month of racing is not far in the future. All the racing families will be much in evidence. The C. V. Whitneys, the John Hay Whitneys, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Charles Minot Amory, the Marshall Fieldses, and such will all be in residence.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, who reminds me much of the late Queen Victoria, is just a bit saddened because her plump daughter, Joan, now Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, shows no interest at all in the Whitney stables. Joan is decidedly domesticated and is much more engrossed in her four children than the family racing colors. She and her husband will not even be at Saratoga this summer, having decided instead to "do" Europe.

However, all the rest of the social world and his wife will be out in force, and Gotham looks for an unusually brilliant season at the Spa.

Flower Show Slated for Southampton

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I.—[Special.]—The annual flower show will be held in the Parochial hall here on Aug. 5 and 6. Among the members taking part will be Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson, Mrs. Robert Waller, Mrs. Albert B. Boardman, Mrs. James Taylor Terry, Mrs. George G. De Witt, and Mrs. Charles R. Henderson.

The unemployment relief fund will hold a contract bridge tournament at Four Fountains on Tuesday. Mrs. Reginald Fincke is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Littleton Fox, Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, Mrs. Josiah Copley Thaw, Mrs. William Robinson Simonds, and George L. Wrenn. Among the sponsors of the tournament, the first of a series, are Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. Edward H. Van Ingen, Mrs. C. Tiffany Richardson, and Mrs. G. Faber Downey Jr.

Mrs. Phelps Plays in Golf Tournament

WATCH HILL, R. I.—[Special.]—Mrs. Louise De Koven Phelps, for three years women's champion at the Misquamicut Golf club, was a participant early in the week in the Shenecossett Golf club tournament at New London with several other ladies from Watch Hill. The two women were among those present at a dinner given by Mrs. George Valentine Smith of Philadelphia for the Watch Hill women taking part in the tournament.

Hubbard Phelps was at his mother's home for the week-end, having gone over from Camp Eastford, Conn., where he is a junior counsellor this year. He brought with him as a guest Barrett Wendell of Chicago, who is a senior counsellor at the same camp.

Tennis Tournament Draws Many to Eastern Resort

MANCHESTER, Mass.—[Special.]—North shore tennis enthusiasts are gathering at the fashionable Essex Country club, Manchester, for the annual invitation tennis tournament which commences July 18. With an entry list of 64, including many international stars, the tourney promises to be one of the most successful this club has ever sponsored.

Tournament week will be the occasion for many luncheons on the velvety green terrace in front of the clubhouse. Among the Chicagoans who will be present when the first set is called are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett, Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis and the Misses Barbara Wendell, Florence Crane and Evelyn Lilly.

Walter Dengere has returned this week to Villa Crest, Manchester, after a short visit in Chicago.

Arthur G. Leonard of Chicago arrived the last week at Druimteac, his charming summer home far out on Eastern Point, Gloucester. His daughters, Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis of Chicago and Mrs. Carleton B. Swift of Pasadena, Cal., and their respective families are with Mr. Leonard for the summer. Mr. Ellis and Mr. Swift will join their families later in the season.

The Oceanside theater season will open July 18 with the presentation of the comedy success, "The Man in Possession."

Yale Glee Club Entertained by Paris Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Close Give Large Tea at Historic French House.

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—The capacity of Paris to weave foreign strands into a vast web of entertainment while giving them the Parisian impress was shown recently by several brilliant affairs. The Yale glee club, enjoying the strong support of the American colony, gave a lively performance and was entertained at several private receptions.

Edward B. Close and his wife gave a large tea for the Yale boys in their unusual apartment on the avenue, Iena. This apartment forms the upper part of the house built for Prince Roland Bonaparte, who bequeathed it to the Geographical society. On the broad terrace surrounding the apartment the Yale contingent had a superb panorama of the entire city. Lawrence Tibbett of the Metropolitan opera joined the boys in informal singing at this tea and also sang a solo. A Chicago girl, Betty Holdrege, was among the program sellers at the Yale performance and also figured at the teas and dinners.

Reception and Garden Party.

Two large functions were an evening reception in honor of the new French president, Albert Lebrun, and an annual garden party given by the British embassy in the Faubourg St. Honoré, which was attended by many Americans. This historic building has been the English diplomatic headquarters since the days of Waterloo, being acquired just before the famous battle by the duke of Wellington. He bought it from Napoleon's sister, the handsome Pauline Bonaparte.

After the dinner for President Lebrun the British ambassador, Lord Tyrrell, and his only daughter, Ann, the Hon. Mrs. Holman, received society of the capital, including many notables of statesmanship, letters, diplomacy, and the arts. The musical program was furnished by the California violin prodigy, Grissa Goluboff, who is studying here under Jacques Thibaud and plays like a veteran.

The next afternoon the house became a secondary setting on the great stretch of greensward reaching to the Avenue Gabriel and forming the magnificent embassy garden, only a short distance from the Elysée palace. This annual affair, which is the leading social event before the summer dispersion, likewise draws the Paris elite. Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Fairbank were among the Chicagoans seen at this garden party. Also present were the Comtesse de Danne, formerly Elizabeth Stone, and Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Raffalovitch.

Housewarming in New Residence.

The latter couple gave a big housewarming the next day in their new apartment on the Avenue Malakoff. Recently they gave a large luncheon at the Ritz, having among their guests Otto H. Kahn and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, and Mrs. A. B. Spreckels. Mrs. Lila Ross Haskell, here on her annual visit, was seen at another luncheon at the Ritz.

Mrs. M. McKay Leroy, who has just been in Paris, is now at Vichy taking the cure. Mrs. William Henry Bush, another Chicagoan, is making a long stay here while her daughters, Carol and Emeline, are taking courses in painting and architecture at the Fountainbleau school.

Hints on Divorce Fill Entire Page in Vienna Paper

VIENNA.—(AP)—In recognition of the special interests of woman readers who have been or are about to be divorced, or are thinking about seeking divorce, one Vienna newspaper has inaugurated a special "divorced woman's page."

Here, instead of the usual housewifely hints on how to please husbands, or how to make last year's hats look like 1922's, feminine readers find practical legal advice and a question and answer column to which they may appeal for suggestions bearing on divorce, alimony, and even reconciliation.

Art Notes

News about the Art institute instructors and their summer plans is amusing, particularly the note about Laura van Pappelendam, who has not lost her great enthusiasm for the primitive life of Mexico, where she has gone for several years. Mexico, with its color, its atmosphere, its landscape, its peculiar blue sky, and its naive people, has an irresistible fascination for those who have once been there.

The suburban trolleys carry not only passengers, but pigs, goats, chickens, geese, and burros, if they can crowd them in. It is not an uncommon sight, Miss van Pappelendam tells, to see the conductor stop and help on a squealing pig, together with its proud owner, and when chickens make their escape the conductor, as a matter of course, stops the car and helps recapture the squawking fowls.

Other of the Art institute instructors will go, however, to less vivid spots. Albin Polasek, head of the sculpture department, is bound for Europe and a summer in his native Czechoslovakia. Miss Helen Mackenzie will go with a group of university students to London, Paris, Italy, Holland, and Germany. Miss Helen Parker will conduct a private party through England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, and Italy. Louis Ritman has gone to New York with one eye on a quick run to Paris. Boris Anisfeld will summer at his cottage in Croton, N. Y.

The Chicago School of Sculpture, Viola Norman director, has opened its summer session, although more pupils will be received as occasion requires.

The summer school of the Art institute announces a special class in textile crafts beginning Aug. 8 and continuing two weeks under the charge of Miss Mary Hipple. There will be morning and afternoon sessions. Instruction will be given in the design and dyeing of printed fabrics. For further information address the Art institute of Chicago.

A Premier's Wisecracks

PARIS.—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, premier of France and mayor of Lyons, though he passes for a stolid and solid citizen with a wealth of musty book learning, is rapidly rising to the position of national wisecracker, vacated by the late Aristide Briand and held by Clemenceau before him.

He not only coins his bons mots in French, but in other languages as well. Thus at Lausanne, when a German newspaperman asked him how the conference was going, he came right back with a quote from Heine's "Lorelei"—and in the original.

"Die Luft ist kuhl undd es dunkelt" ["The air is cool and the darkness is setting in"], responded the chief of the French government.

Unlike Clemenceau, Herriot's shafts are not barbed. For example, in his explanation of the legendary absentmindedness of ex-Premier Painleve, another professor in public life who now is air minister, Herriot said:

"Painleve's forgetfulness is a real system! In his chosen field of science he has succeeded very well with it. He ought to try it in politics!"

"He's a boy who knows how to get on! He's one of those people who can buy a garage, exchange it for an apartment building, swap that for a big farm, and that in turn for a collection a rare pictures and at every step gain an automobile, a flat, a cow—and a Rembrandt!"

His best recent line, however, was coined in Switzerland after his midnight conference with Hugh Gibson of the United States disarmament delegation. Asked to comment on the thesis that European arms reductions might be followed by American debt cancellation, M. Herriot pulled this:

"I'm not the Messiah of Europe. I'm only the mayor of Lyons."

Jobless Turn Scientific on Fifty Dollar Capital

BUDAPEST.—(AP)—Workmen who had lost their jobs with a scientific expedition were so certain that discoveries could be made in a certain cave of the Hor valley in the Bukk mountains that they persuaded an official to advance them $50. They found human bones which experts of the Hungarian National museum say are between 100,000 and 120,000 years old.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct. 31, 1880.

DEAR Julia:

The campaign is drawing to a close. I have heard so many speeches and listened to so many political arguments I am quite dizzy. I had to smile this evening, when after attending a Republican mass meeting at which we were told the country would be hopelessly lost if the Republicans met defeat at the polls, I picked up the evening paper and found an open letter to the public, in which there occurred this arraignment of the Republicans:

"It is an historical fact that the worst and longest period of financial disaster and widespread bankruptcy that has ever been experienced in the United States has occurred during the administration of the government by the party now possessing its reins. Thousands of merchants who had passed unscathed through previous panics went down in the crash of the last seven years, and their estates passed through the bankruptcy courts.

"Every merchant knows the general causes which brought about this dire condition of things. General extravagance was a prominent one. Widespread corruption in some of the departments of the general government was another. The causes which have contributed most largely to restoration of confidence in business and the beginning of a period of prosperity are: 1. General economy and industry, following the period of extravagance. 2. Abundant crops in our own country and failure of crops in Europe. 3. Prosecution and conviction of dishonest officials." [They give no credit to Republicans, of course!] This is signed by prominent Democrats including such men as L. Z. Leiter, W. C. D. Grannis, Lambert Tree, Robert Law, J. H. McVicker, Cyrus H. McCormick, Potter Palmer, J. V. Clarke, A. F. Beeberger, Perry H. Smith, Charles Henrotin, W. D. Kerfoot, and Lucius B. Otis.

A dispatch from Buffalo says the Buffalo Express is sure that Lincoln, if he were living, would vote for Garfield. Will says this statement makes him think of what an old Vermont farmer used to add, after telling a story which he felt might be questioned: "And that's so, too, and I could prove it if old Doc Frisbie was livin'." This is one of Will's favorite country expressions: "I could prove it if old Doc Frisbie was livin'."

We heard Gen. Benjamin Harrison of Indiana at Farwell hall a few nights ago. Will wanted me to go, for he felt this speech would be one of the ablest efforts on the Republican side. Long John Wentworth was on the platform, looking rather old, I thought. Another gentleman of the committee I recognized was James P. Root, an able Chicago lawyer, high in the Republican councils of the state. C. M. Henderson presided.

Gen. Harrison was applauded to the echo when he appeared, for the returns from the Indiana election showed great Republican strength there. Will thinks one of the most telling things he said in a few words was: "Thirty bushels of wheat at a dollar a bushel is the best argument against Hancock." That is true, of course, for the party in power is strengthened by good times and weakened by hard times, regardless of the merits of the platform.

I was quite interested to read a despatch in one of our Chicago papers about Gen. Grant at a dinner of the Middlesex club in Boston. It said that immediately he was seated, he turned his wine glasses upside down. It made me think the old story of his drinking so much whisky during the civil war was untrue. Indeed, it could not have been true, for with a brain muddled by whisky he could never have thought out his great campaigns.

In spite of the pressure of politics—for it seems to me I take as deep an interest as if I were a voter—we have had one lovely social event the last week. Mrs. W. K. Nixon gave a beautiful reception at her Rush street home for her son, Miles Nixon, and his fiancée, Miss Emily Campbell. Miss Campbell, a daughter of Ben Campbell, looked a picture in white muslin with soft tulle about her throat, extending to her waist, where a bunch of red rosebuds caught the ends in graceful folds. Her hair was done in a simple coil at the back of her head.

Miss Winston of Superior street, just returned from a long stay in France and Germany, wore a French gown of delicate brocaded blue silk. Miss Kitty King, daughter of the Henry W. Kings, had on such a pretty light blue striped satin dress trimmed with Breton lace. I think Martha will want her new evening gown trimmed with that. Louise De Koven was wearing a white muslin, caught here and there with violets.

Many people were there whom you would know. Maj. and Mrs. Kirkland asked for you. So did Mrs. T. B. Blackstone. Mrs. Arthur Caton and her sister, Mrs. Augustus N. Eddy, and the Misses Houghteling were others I saw. It was one of the prettiest parties I have attended for a long time.

We are feeling sorry about Dr. Hiram W. Thomas' troubles in the Methodist church. For two years this popular Chicago preacher has been under fire for his so-called heretical views, and I know he went to the autumn conference with much anxiety as to what might befall there. His sermons have been so much admired that the newspapers have printed them in full every Monday morning, and have held him up as the one progressive preacher in his denomination. This was not true, but the claim was made, and he has had so much publicity other clergymen have, I think, resented it. The church claims he is teaching doctrines not in accord with the Bible, but if there ever was a man of God, Dr. Thomas is one.

I heard him give his beliefs recently, something like this: "I hold to the inspiration and authority of the scriptures; that in matters of doctrine and duty, they are final, the authority of God. But I do not accept the 'verbal' theory of inspiration, nor claim that all parts of the sixty-six books of the Bible are of equal authority and value. I believe that all sin will be punished; but I do not believe in a material hell fire, nor in the terrible ideas of future torment which have come down to us from the past. And I have a hope—a hope that has come to me through much suffering and prayer, and that seems to be strengthened by the nearest visions of God—that, somehow, all the divine love and striving to win and save souls will not end with this poor, short life; but that the work of discipline and salvation may go on in the immortal world."

Dr. Thomas has been requested to withdraw from the church, but Will feels the vote does not represent the real feeling of the church at large. One hundred and ten members voted in the affirmative; but 65 were absent or declined to vote, and 49 voted in the negative. Dr. Thomas is now without an appointment from his church, but a number of Chicago men who are admirers of his preaching have raised a sum large enough to cover the expenses of an independent congregation and are to meet, we hear, in Hooley's theater, where the good doctor will preach the gospel as seems to him "in accordance with the will of God," as his sponsors put it.

We are so glad he will not be leaving Chicago. He is much beloved by all who know him, really one of the great men of our city, and we couldn't spare a man whose theology rests on love—the love of God for his children; the love of man for his Maker and for his brother man.

Before another week passes, we shall know who will be our next President.

With love,
Yours as ever,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes.

James P. Root, mentioned as one of the sponsors of the meeting at which Gen. Benjamin Harrison spoke in 1880, was father of Frederick K. Root, Charles P. Root, and Mrs. Claiborne A. Wilson of Chicago; and of Clarence J. Root of the weather bureau at Springfield, Ill.; and Frank H. Root of Watertown, N. Y. Mr. Root's likeness to Gen. John A. Logan has often been remarked.

"Miss Winston of Superior street," who attended the Nixon reception, became Mrs. Thomas Grover and is the mother of Mrs. Margaret Grover Tagmoss of 244 East Pearson street. Mrs. Grover lives at 200 East Chestnut street.

Miss Kitty King became Mrs. Pomeroy and was mother of Mrs. John Edgar Freeman [Roxana Pomeroy]. Maj. and Mrs. Kirkland were parents of the late "Madame X" of THE TRIBUNE, and of Mrs. Victor C. Sanborn of Lake Forest.

Dr. Hiram W. Thomas, leader in the religious life of Chicago, was for twenty-five years the pastor of the People's church, whose founding Martha records in today's letter.

Will the reader who sent a story of being taken for a ride behind Maud S. write again? The letter containing this reminiscence has been lost, and we especially wish to print the story.

Bernis W. Sherman, writing from the Illinois commandery of the Loyal Legion, 320 Ashland block, says: "I began attending national conventions in 1880 and have only missed one held in Chicago, since then. I was present when Garfield, Blaine, Cleveland [twice], Bryan, Roosevelt [twice], Taft [twice], Hughes, Harding and Hoover were nominated—a total of twelve conventions. I attended the last Democratic convention by radio."

Has any reader a higher score than Mr. Sherman?

The mention of the Chickering quartet has brought several letters and readers ask that something of Charles A. Knorr's musical record be told. One of these letters from Mrs. C. P. Van Inwegen, Oregon, Ill., follows: "I remember the Chickering quartet well. The outstanding member was Charles Knorr, the first tenor. In fact, he was the leading tenor of the United States, being in demand with all the prominent oratorio societies. He sang at the Worcester festival, an honor all musicians longed for. He sang for our own Apollo club innumerable times. He was tenor of the Plymouth church quartet when it was on Michigan avenue near 26th street. He was a member of the Chicago Church Choir company and leading tenor soloist, an artist whose attainments should not be forgotten. I enjoy 'When Chicago Was Young' because the letters bring back my youth. The account of my Dearborn seminary graduating class was of special interest."

Mr. Knorr, who is regarded as an authority on church music, lives at 4958 Blackstone avenue.

The High Bicycle.

Mrs. M. M. Hitchcock, Berwyn, Ill., writes:

"In the early eighties, when my husband and I were newlyweds, we went to live in a small town in South Dakota. Soon afterward my husband bought a high wheel exactly like one pictured in a recent TRIBUNE, and started out for his first lesson in riding it. A few minutes later, as I went for a stroll, I saw him coming down a slight incline, traveling at what seemed to me a most astonishing speed. I shouted cheerily: 'Where are you going?' Imagine my consternation when he called back: 'Wherever the darn thing takes me. I don't know how to stop it!'

"Of course he found a way as soon as he got on level ground. He landed right side up and lived to exchange it for a safety, two or three years later. This he brought to Chicago in 1889 and made many a century run on it afterward. This is submitted in response to your request for memories of the old high wheel."

Count Apponyi Eyes European Turmoil Calmly

By William Shirer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST.—The last of the old guard, the only Hungarian statesman who served under Frantz Joseph to survive the war and the revolution and take a place in the statecraft of the new order, Count Albert Apponyi, Hungary's "grand old man," lives on and on, defying time and man, defending what is left of his country at every new international conference, and when he is home rarely missing a session of parliament, in which he has sat without interruption for fifty-nine years as faithful representative of the peasant district of Jaszbereny.

At 86, nearing the end of a life which has seen the map of Europe changed by continuous wars into a new topsy-turvy pattern, witnessed the death knell of kings, including his own, and the rise of bolshevism and fascism, Count Apponyi looks on the European scene philosophically and still, with almost boyish enthusiasm, cherishes two fond hopes.

They are: First, the restoration of the Hapsburgs to the Hungarian throne. Second, the establishment of a Danube economic confederation out of the ashes of the old Austro-Hungarian empire, or rather, out of the ashes of the present petty central European states which are riding to economic ruin behind their respective tariff ramparts.

* *

Through Aged Statesman's Eyes.

On the fulfillment of these two objects depends the future of all eastern Europe, believes Count Apponyi, and he applies himself to the cause with all the vigor of a man half his age.

He guides your correspondent down the corridor to a quiet bench to explain his views.

About the Hapsburgs first. I ask him why and how he wants them back.

"It isn't a question of any sweeping change, this so-called Hapsburg question," he says in his faultless English (he speaks six foreign languages with perfection). "On the contrary, it is merely a question of working the constitution and restoring a king to his rightful place as head of the kingdom."

"Think what a strengthening force a king would bring to us, especially in these troubled times. His return would also hasten the progress of democracy in this country."

"But how?" I asked. "The Hapsburgs were not exactly democrats."

"Ah, but Otto is a modern youth with modern ideas about government and democracy. He understands the post-war mentality. He would be a constitutional king. And with the stability and the force for modern methods which he would give, this country would profit immensely."

"But seriously, do you think the Hapsburgs will ever come back, at least within the present generation?" I asked.

"The restoration is bound to take place. Not today, nor tomorrow, nor perhaps even day after tomorrow, but after that, certainly. It must come because it is the logical step in the evolution of this country which, you must not forget, is still a kingdom."

* *

Favored by Nature.

About a new Danube economic confederation, Count Apponyi's ideas follow closely those of an increasingly large number of central European leaders. He feels, as do they, that the Danube valley was formed by nature to be a perfect economic unit; that under the Hapsburgs it was almost as close to being that as man could make it, and that it could become so again if politicians stopped thinking politically and thought, for a change, in terms of modern economics.

Armored Riders Take to Foot

A FOUR centuries old folk festival, one of the hundreds that are being given all over Germany this summer, is that of "the Armored Riders of Torgau." Ever since, in 1542, the sturdy citizens of Torgau turned the tide of battle in favor of their elector, three companies of burghers of the thousand year old town have marched out, with lances, shields and swords, and in cuirass and iron helmet, for this biennial medieval play.

Germany Speeds Up Trains for Tourists

FROM the North sea to the land of the German knights, Silesia and Saxony's mountains in the east, from Bavaria's Alpine peaks, the Black forest and the Rhine to the beaches of the Baltic, Germany this summer is one great chain of festivals and races of folk plays, music, regattas, tournaments, and jazz.

Several hundred of the famous mediaeval feste, the origin of which often goes back to pre-Christian times, are taking place this month in as many towns and villages all over the country. From Rothenburg, Dinkelsbuehl, Noerdlingen, Landshut, Kaufbeuren and other picturesque old places in the south to the "tun-festival" on the picturesque Darss in the Baltic, and from the celebration of Apollinaris day in Remagen on the Rhine to the gorgeous display of native costumes at the meeting of the landsmanschaften in Zoppot, one colorful display follows another.

An the German railroads have announced a new schedule of their fastest trains in the 1932 summer tables, giving the trains a speed of from 55 to 60.3 miles an hour. One can travel from Hamburg to Berlin, a distance of 178 miles, in exactly three hours, reaching even 74.5 miles an hour at times. So it is not difficult to follow the trail of the festspiele and the other numbers on Germany's tourist entertainment program.

Eagle River Is High in Air, But Low in Rates

THE Eagle River region in Wisconsin is 1,800 feet above sea level, but, in contrast to its elevation, it boasts of extremely low rates for tourists and visitors.

Beside its natural attractions, the region offers as much vacation pleasure per dollar as can be found anywhere.

Here, it is claimed, there are more lakes to a given area than will be found in any similar area in the country. It is a rare natural setting that lends much to aquatic sports. Pine and balsam scented breezes billow the sails of many little craft set out in pursuit of recreation.

New Liner Will Be Launched Monday

THE Lurline, sister ship of the Mariposa and Monterey, will be launched tomorrow at Quincy, Mass.

It will be christened by Mrs. Lurline W. Roth, for whom its was named, and who is the only daughter of Capt. Matson.

The Lurline, a 26,000 ton steamer, built at a cost of $8,000,000, will make as its maiden voyage a cruise of the south seas and the orient.
